Columnist Attempts to Compare Men on Two Rival Basketball Teams

By Ned Simpson

Taking life in the proverbial hands we slip a sheet of paper in the typewriter to begin to compare the personnel of the two teams that meet tonight for the third time this year—the Oregon Ducks and the Oregon State Beavers. So far, as you know, the Beavers have won both of the games played—one by an unmentionable score, the other by a two point margin of victory. Well, here goes:

Beginning with the forwards we find that Oregon State is represented by Capt. George Hibbard and Wally Palmberg. These two men have functioned very smoothly together this season, with the steady, all-round excellent play of Hibbard somewhat eclipsed by the brilliant left-handed shots of the former Astoria ace. They have furnished a scoring punch that has accounted for most of the Beaver victories. For the Webfeet tonight, Johnny Lewis and Rollie Rourke will probably start in place of Captain Bill Berg and Ron Gemell. Both these men are primarily offensive threats, and while they may outshine the Orange pair in that department, they still must concede an advantage to Palmberg and Hibbard on the defense. We give the Beavers the edge here.

At the pivot position for Oregon we find the league leading scorer Willie Jones. Opposed to him will be Conking, 6 foot, 4 inch Beaver jumper. Willie is primarily a forward and away from the center circle he outshines Conking plenty, although the Beaver sophomore outjumps him. Oregon gets a decided advantage here.

At the guard position we find Lyman and Bergstrom for the Beavers and Sanford and either Budd Jones or Sammy Liebowitz. Sanford is far better than Bergstrom, although the Beaver whirlwind is a better shot. Glen has stopped all the big-shot sharpshooters this season with great success, and in the first two Beaver-Duck encounters he was about the best man on the floor. Budd Jones is equally effective, although he plays a more rough and tough game. If he gets the call over Liebowitz it will mean plenty of fireworks when he and Lyman meet. Liebowitz, originally slated to start the game, is so erratic in his flashes of real brilliance that it minimizes the big advantage that would be ours if he were "on."

Reading over what I've written above it would seem that Oregon has the best team by a two-to-one score. It's true that they are better on paper, but to date they haven't had the dash and flash that the conference leading Beavers have. If they click tonight it will mean that the score will favor Oregon.

Frosh Batter Rooks In Fast Game, 36-22; Second Game Today

Silver and Stafford Lead Ducklings to Victory in Fast But Unexciting Game; Vanelli Is Rook Star

Holding the Oregon State Rooks to three scattered points for nineteen minutes of the first half, the Oregon Frosh last night won a high scoring but listless game by a 36 to 22 count.

The game was featured by the playing of Dave Silver, Duckling forward, who scored 16 of his team's 36 points with shorts from all angles. He sunk seven field goals and two foul throws for his grand total of the evening. Two other Oregon freshmen also stood out by their fine passing and floor work. They were Jack Stafford, forward, and Vernon Moore, 210-pound guard. Stafford sunk one field goal and six free throws for a total of eight points, while Moore contented himself with one field goal. The teamwork and fire of this pair, however, was largely responsible for the lopsided score.

Game Starts Slowly

The pace started off in a hesitant manner, with both teams doing plenty of bad passing. Oregon began to hit the basket first, and the taste of blood settled the frosh down to staidier but more determined ball. Silver, Danner, Lasselle, and Stafford all connected with the hoop several times until at the 19 minute mark the score stood Frosh 18; Rooks, 3. Hakala, Rook forward, finally connected with a long howitzer for the first field goal for his team. A few seconds later Bailey dropped another one in, and the half ended Frosh, 18; Rooks, 7.

The Rooks started off the second half like a different basketball team, and it was evident that Coach George Scott had told them something exciting. The rejuvenated Ravens began hitting the hoop from all angles and soon had the score 18 to 12, in favor of the Frosh. At that point the uncanny eye of Dave Silver came to the rescue of the freshmen and the score changed to Frosh, 21; Rooks, 12.

Game Gets Rough

Both teams began to play rougher ball at that point and numerous free shots were awarded. Silver sank two more field goals, and was given a needed rest. Miller replaced him. Moore dropped one in, Canessa made a gift shot and it stood Frosh 26; Rooks 15. Soon after that, Gene Shields, Frosh mentor, sent in an entire new team composed of Dickson, Long, Crawford, Haas, and Shevach who ably stood off a Rook rally in the last few minutes of the game. The final score: Frosh, 36; Rooks, 22.

For the Beaver yearlings Vanelli and Kolberg played fine games, with Bailey, Rook forward, leading his teammates in the scoring end of it by tallying eight points. This afternoon at 1:00 p. m., in Corvallis, the two teams play the second installment of the 1934 four game series.

Stan Summers refereed the game.

Jewett oratorical contest for experience and training. He also pointed out the advisability of beginning preliminary work on the contest soon.

Stories may or may not have first appeared in a college publication during the contest. All stories must be legibly written and from 1500 to 6000 words, on one side of the paper. The winning stories will be published by the magazine.

Oregon Riflemen Score Four Wins In Opening Week

Duck Shooters Lose One of Five Initial Tilts

The Oregon rifle team opened the 1935 season last week with five telegraphic matches counting four wins and a single defeat. Scores from the University of Wyoming and the Virginia Military Institute whom the Duck shooters also met are not yet available.

Washington's off-time championship aggregation outdid the Duck marksmen. Although Oregon added five points to the high mark of 3728 points which last year's crack team established, the Huskies banged out 3761 counters.

Of the ten men whose scores count toward the total, Washington's score sheet shows that in the prone position, eight men turned in perfect scores, while the other two were close behind with 99. In the standing position the high score was over 90.

The Oregon victims included Oregon State college, which turned in a score of 3537, Washington State college, with 3565, North Dakota Agricultural college, 3724, and Western Maryland college. Western Maryland submitted a score of 1867 for a five-man team, while Oregon's five high scores totaled 1885.

This week Oregon is scheduled for telegraphic matches with the University of Idaho, the University of Missouri, and Natrona County high school, of Casper, Wyoming.

Cressman Writes Paper on Indians And Civilization

Faculty Member's Article Appears in Journal

L. S. Cressman, professor of anthropology and sociology, is the author of an article which has been published in the Oregon Educational Journal, on "The Indians of Oregon."

In his article, Professor Cressman considers the Oregon Indian as an individual and from the standpoint of the civilization he has produced. He studied and recorded tribal variations and the spread of language due to migration and says that the diversity of language of the Oregon Indian is convincing evidence of the great diversity of life within its borders.

Explains Customs

Physically, there is a great variance of types. The two types of bodily modification in which the Indian indulged were tattooing and the binding of their heads, in order to produce a desired headshape. One of the illustrations of Professor Cressman's paper is a tribal custom which was practiced. The young Indian would travel into enemy territory to lie in hiding near the enemy camp, and memorize their song which he would later recite to his own people.

a 90-day jail sentence when he appeared in court and admitted that he was the ringleader of a group of 15 young people who stole three chickens from a farm near Roseburg. Others in the group were juveniles.

Discussion Group Tells County Plan To Two Audiences

Dahlberg Gives Pro, Con Townsend Survey

William Hall, Kessler Cannon, and William Labursky, members of the men's public discussion group, accompanied by W. A. Dahlberg, a coach, returned yesterday from a trip on which they appeared before the Kiwanis club in Oregon City and the general community group of Sweet Home.

Hall and Cannon presented the problem of county re-alignment before about 50 members of the Kiwanis club among whom were many county officials. The general conclusion of the group as indicated by the discussion forum which followed the presentation was that some sort of county re-organization is becoming increasingly imperative in view of changing governmental problems, Dahlberg said.

About 600 people were present to hear Labursky and Hall set forth the same problem in Sweet Home. Following their discussion, Dahlberg gave a brief but comprehensive survey of the advantages and disadvantages of the Townsend old age pension. The response of the audience to the Townsend plan reflected the conviction that, although some old-age pension program should be adopted, that plan is not a plausible solution to the pension problem.

Visits in Portland—Frances Corcoran, librarian in the business administration building, went to Portland yesterday where she will spend the weekend visiting her family.

Instructor Recovered From Illness—Lee C. Ball, associate professor of business administration, resumed teaching of his classes yesterday after an absence of several days due to illness.

Student Ill — Genevieve McNeice has been absent from classes since Wednesday due to illness.

Oregon Football Trio To Play in Exhibition Grid Tour of Orient

Three former University of Oregon football stars left Eugene Thursday to play exhibition games in Japan with a group of 35 or 40 other Pacific coast gridiron warriors. The Webfeet who were selected to accompany the all-star aggregation were Raymond "Butch" Morse, end and co-captain of last fall's varsity; Howard "Dutch" Clark, stellar guard on the 1933 coast championship squad; and Alex Eagle, great tackle of the last two years. Choppie Parke, who played on Oregon teams in 1929-30-31 and brother of Bob Parke, is co-coach of the big squad.

The trip is being sponsored by a Japanese newspaper syndicate that is attempting to introduce the sport into Japanese schools and colleges. Several exhibition games will be played.

Two other players from this state making the trip are Hal Fangle and Norman "Red" Franklin, Oregon State's great backfield pair.

Bradshaw Seeks Opponent to Fight At Yeoman Event

Campus Pugilist Goes to Portland to Find Man

Joe Bradshaw, well known campus fighter, who has worked his way into recognition throughout the Pacific northwest, has announced that if a man can be found to fight him, he will put on a bout in connection with the Yeomen smoker to be held Friday night, February 22 at 7:30 p. m. in the men's gym.

It had been previously planned to hold this smoker in the Y hut, but the smoker has assumed proportions which bid fair to make it one of the biggest athletic events of the entire year.

If plans go through as scheduled, the Bradshaw bout ought to be one of the snappiest mix-ups which has ever been put on at the University. Bradshaw is making a trip to Portland this weekend and after much investigation, it has been discovered that it is for the sole purpose of arranging a match with a well known Pacific coast champion. The identity of this man, while hinted at, has not actually been revealed and until Joe's return, Fred Gieseke, in charge of the smoker for the Yeomen, will not make any definite statement other than this:

"We are planning the biggest fight, in all probability, this campus has ever seen and the quality of men we have lined up are far superior to the talent we had only hoped to get. It's going to be a wow!"

Admission to the smoker will be 25c and already, Bradshaw has assured Yeomen officials, there are more than 200 townspeople whose attendance he personally guarantees.

have already indicated their intention of entering the contest, Casteel said.

Further details may be obtained from the speech division. It isn't too late to enter yet!

Sorority Groups Get Questionnaires

Questionnaires entitled "What Does My Fraternity Membership Mean to Me," which have been issued for the purpose of determining the value of sororities to the individual and to the campus, were received by the dean of women's office last week and have been passed to the sororities to fill in.

The questionnaires were compiled by Mary Alice Jones of Chicago who is conducting a research study in order to get an expression of opinion of undergraduate fraternity women on the college sorority as an organization influencing character development. They contain questions concerning the value of the fraternity in personal relations, scholarship, and philosophy of life.
