Mohan Raj to Speak Sunday For Presbyterian Groups

By Charles Paddock
Westminster house is dispensing with its regular Sunday evening meeting this week to attend Fairmount Presbyterian church where Mohan Raj, India's ambassador of goodwill, is to speak at 6 o'clock. Students will assemble at Westminster at the hour and go out to the church together.

At the 9:45 discussion period in the morning Mrs. Clara M. Smerkenko, head of the Greek department, will lead. No special topic has been chosen.

A large group of Westminster students went to Oakridge Friday to appear at an assembly of the high school there. The audience, they say, was one of the best they have had and very appreciative. This is one of numerous deputations trips Eugene's Presbyterian students are making.

Bill Gearhart will conclude his series on Plato's "Symposium" Monday at 4 p. m.

This Sunday is national brotherhood day and will be specially observed by several local churches. Rev. Clay Palmer will speak on "The Jew, Catholic and Protestant—Toward an Understanding." His pulpit editorial will concern the supreme court gold decision and the Christian attitude.

Morning worship at the Baptist church will include a sermon "The World of Jesus' Day and Ours," by Rev. Bryant Wilson, pastor. In the evening he will speak on "Crippled Humanity Facing an Infinite Savior."

Captain L. H. Nixon leads the 9:45 Sunday school class. E. Y. P. U. is held at 6:30 in the club room.

Wesley Club this week will be led by Pauline Gillespie. The topic is "Prayer." The morning forum meets at 9:45 in the pastor's forum. A social half-hour at 6 p. m.

precedes the regular meeting each Sunday. It is open to all. Chief among the activities of Wesley Club this week was the annual Mad Hatter's banquet, held last night at the church.

Police to Conduct Premises Inquiry On Rice Murder

Nile Green Rug Forms the Nucleus for Hunt

An investigation of the premises surrounding the death room of Edgar Rice, 52, stabbed Thursday morning, is being conducted by Police Inspector Hunt and District Attorney Galwey, in the Park Gardens apartments.

The Nile green rug in the living room with two ugly stains on the southeast corner, formed the nucleus of the investigation which is an attempt to determine from where the unknown assailant advanced on the pajama clad financier. The questioning of Gertrude Rice, widow of the deceased, and Mary Dugan, was temporarily postponed pending an important discovery in the tactics of the murderer.

In the wardrobe, filled with expensive clothes, a silver metal-cloth dinner dress, recognized as the gown worn by Miss Dugan in Life Begins at 8:40, was taken for study.

Eeremeeff Constructs 'Pipeless Pipe Organ'

With Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, as aide and adviser, Ivan Eeremeeff, Russian physicist and co-creator of the helicopter, has developed a "pipeless pipe organ" which draws its music from the beams of automobile headlights.

A FEW NEW RECIPES FOR CAMPUS COOKS

To cooks, house managers—It is hoped that these new tested recipes which the Emerald will bring you every Saturday will prove useful in planning your daily menus.

Courtesy food stores advertising in this issue of the Emerald.

RHUBARB FLUFF
2 cups of early rhubarb.
½ teaspoon of grated orange peel.
½ cup of sugar.
Enough water to prevent sticking. Cook till tender, cool, and whip in the stiffly beaten egg whites and fold in whipped cream. Chill and serve in sherbet glasses with Maraschino cherry for garnish.

CREOLE HAM PATTIE
6 slices of pineapple.
1½ lbs. ground ham.
2 tablespoons mayonnaise.
1½ cups mashed and creamed sweet potatoes.
6 marshmallows.
To make—Place pineapple sliced in baking pan. Mix mayonnaise in ham and form in patties, place one on each slice of pineapple on this, place spoonful of potatoe. Top with marshmallow and place in moderate oven for one half hour. Nice luncheon dish.

State Senators See Benefits in Compulsory Fee Measure

By Marge Petsch
"I supported the Wheeler bill providing for compulsory payment of student body fees at the University of Oregon because of the reasons advanced by the proponents of the bill," stated Senator Harry Corbett, president of the senate yesterday.

It was in an effort to discover the determining factors which influenced various leading men in the legislature to favor the bill that Senator Corbett and others were interviewed. Senator Corbett expressed surprise when told of the conflicting opinions over the bill on the Oregon campus, and stated that in his estimation the benefits of the proposition should be apparent to all who had studied the various merits of the situation.

"Proponents of the bill proved that it would offer a fundamental saving for the student body as a whole, and that it really was an economy for them. I was also informed," he stated, "that there were provisions in the bill for students who could not afford to pay the required $5.00 per quarter."

Senator Dean Walker, well known on the Oregon campus, and equally familiar with the campus situation, was another of the prominent legislators who contributed his influence toward the successful passing of the bill last Monday. Senator Walker, who was a successful coach at the University at one time, and later dean of men, stated that he supported the measure because he considered it definitely the right thing to do.

"If I had a boy or girl attending the University, I am sure that I would like to have him a member of the student organization," he asserted, "and if the necessary $5.00 for student fees were the deciding factor in whether he was to attend college or not, I honestly think it would be better for him to remain at home." Having supported the bill as chairman of the ways and means committee, in the meetings of the educational committee of the senate, and when the report of the educational committee was made, Walker may be given considerable credit for his participation.

Another reason, advanced by Walker yesterday, for his voting in favor of the measure was due to his conviction that all students should be able to attend college functions. He claimed that were each student to possess a card, all could benefit equally from the opportunities which the card offers, and there could be eliminated forever the students who must necessarily feel themselves outsiders because of their failure to belong to the student organization.

"I realize," he continued, "the proportions which $5 can assume for many students. And yet I am convinced that the money which he invests in the card is fully repaid to him through the benefits in which he shares." Senator Walker cited the Hofmann concert, the appearance of Heifetz, and the address given last week by Will Durant as sufficient evidence of advantages to be gained by student body membership.

In regard to the recent bill approved by the legislature providing for scholarships at the University of Oregon, Senator Walker stated that the bill was accepted most favorably by both the senate and the house, and that it now awaits the signature of Governor Martin. The measure will permit the paying of scholarships, to cover student body fees, up to a maximum of 2 per cent of the enrollment. The scholarships are to be voted by the board of higher education of the University of Oregon.

Governor Martin stated yesterday in respect to the two bills which will so vitally affect the university, and which now await his signature, that he had not given the measures sufficient thought to venture a statement as to his probable action.

Co-op Has Paid Off $20,000 Debt; McClain Tells History

Relatively few people on the campus know that every student in this school is a member of the University Co-op and has a vote in the election of its directors. Likewise unknown is the fact that the store is not primarily a money-making concern.

In an interview recently, Mr. M. F. McClain, Co-op manager, revealed many elements of the store's purpose and history with which he said most students are not acquainted.

Over 14 years ago, explained Mr. McClain, students had to buy their books down town at a high price. Realizing the necessity of having a store to sell texts at list price, the associated students incorporated the present Co-op.

But they had no capital. Dean John Bovard and Dean James H. Gilbert went with Mr. McClain to secure a bank loan of $5000. But this sum was inadequate, and by the time the books were on sale, the Co-op was in debt $20,000! That debt has been entirely paid off.

Dean Gilbert and Dean Bovard have remained on the Co-op advisory board every since the beginning of the store. The board consists of two faculty members and five students. Because of their majority in numbers, the students have the controlling power.

The students on the Co-op advisory board are Orval Thompson, president; Howard Ohmart, secretary; Hale Thompson; Ed Wheelock; and David Crosse.

The Co-op is run on a strictly cash basis and pays each month's bills as they come, according to Mr. McClain. It has a net worth of $31,000. The store strives to make a slight profit on the year's business to cover repairs, improvements, and enlargements.

Starting in what is now Kramer's Beauty shop building, the Co-op moved to its present building in 1923. The store now maintains a thriving little branch in the art school, with Bob Vannice as manager.

WAGE AMENDMENT PASSED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The administration recently sustained a major defeat when a senate entirely out of hand attached the McCarran prevailing wage amendment to the $4,880,000,000 work relief bill.

but now that he's done it, he's going through with it.

According to Hale's "Law of the Press": "Civil libel . . . consists of written or printed material which holds a person up to public ridicule."

This definition makes the above quotations at least questionable, if not actually libelous.

It is harmful to your workers as well as to your publication to allow them to "get away" with writing which would certainly never pass even the most mediocre copy desk.

Is it your general policy to lay the Emerald open to legal attack through the carelessness of over-enthusiastic dirt-columnists?
