Chairman

Cosgrove LaBarre, above, has been named chairman of the Junior Prom to be held Friday, May 10, during Junior weekend in McArthur court.

'Spring' to Be Junior Prom Motif May 10

Plans Are Made for First Official Appearance of Junior Queen

Spring is the predominant idea of the elaborate plans being formulated for the annual Junior Prom, major social function of the year, which will be held Friday, May 10, in McArthur court, according to Cosgrove LaBarre, chairman of the affair.

The most spectacular event of the evening will be the first official appearance of her majesty the queen and attendants, who are being nominated this week, before her subjects during the first dance, which, according to tradition, is set aside for the queen and her court.

Cups to Be Presented
Junior weekend is marked by the many honors bestowed on outstanding junior men and women, among which are the Koyl and Gerlinger cups presented to the outstanding junior man or woman on the campus.

The selection of these distinguished students is based on character, leadership and scholarship. All of the honors are not confined to one class.

With the canoe fete, waters carnival, and other Junior weekend festivities attracting large numbers of guests and parents, to the Oregon campus, special arrangements are being made to arrange a section for onlookers at the Prom.

New Ideas to Be Used
Members of the 1935 Junior Prom directorate promise the most unique, and unusual affair ever presented, and are now considering new ideas in decorations, features, and programs.

The committee assisting LaBarre in arrangements for this gala spring formal are: Mary McCracken, secretary; Elma Giles, refreshments; Margaret Jean Cooper, patrons and patronesses; Reva Hens, programs; Roberta Moody, publicity; Gerald Thomas and Edw. Rausp, construction; Tom Blanchard, clean up; Dean Conaway, tickets; Jerry Murphy, decorations.

Infirmary Releases Five
Five patients, John Weills, Lloyd Gottlieb, Marion Habbitt, Clifford Kämpf, and Mary Arnsperger were released from the infirmary Wednesday. Three more still remain, one with the mumps and the other with German measles. They are Phyllis Corman, Paul Fox, and William Delzell.

Sophomores Announce Opposing Tickets For Offices

Secrecy Rule Held

Junior, Freshman Plans, Candidates Unknown

By Wayne Harbert
Class political whisperings, shrouded in the darkest possible secrecy, ran back and forth across the campus yesterday and last night, with no definite conclusions made with the possible exception of the sophomore class which seems to have its ticket definitely outlined with its candidates for next year's officers.

Meetings of various factions, dealing with promises and elaborate plans for the nominations to be made at class meetings slated for tonight, were held in several rivaling organizations last night but the results of these meetings were all kept secret.

Sophomore's Tickets Up
Craig Finley heads one of the sophomore tickets with Peggy Carper running as vice-president, Marjor Kissling as secretary, and John Allen as treasurer.

Heading the other sophomore ticket is Kenneth Belieu for president, with Carmen Curry, vice-president; Grace Ceck, secretary; and David Crosse, treasurer.

Fresh Ticket Unknown
The freshman class seemed to be greatly confused last night as to any definite candidates to run for next year's sophomore officers, although political observers said a ticket headed by Lyle Baker had obtained considerable backing, but those running on this ticket and the houses backing it were not disclosed.

Campus Leaders Debate on Fees

The optional fees controversy will go on the air tonight when Joseph Renner and S. Eugene Allen meet on KORE at 8 o'clock to debate the question: "Resolved, that senate bill 204 be referred to the people."

The debate will differ from that held on the campus in that the question will deal with the advisability of resorting to the referendum rather than the basic merit of optional or compulsory fees. Many houses favoring the optional referendum as "dragging education into politics."

Allen will speak first in tonight's debate. Renner will follow. Constructive speeches are of 10 minute duration and the rebuttals, five minutes. Allen, as organization chairman of the student relief committee, has been active in the referendum drive. Renner, president of the ASUO, has vigorously favored a return to the compulsory fee status and recently led a team that participated in a campus debate on the fee question.

Hollis Announces Speaking Contest

Five law students will compete tonight in the annual Hilton prize contest, Orlando J. Hollis, professor of law announced yesterday. The contest, which is open to the public, will be held at 7:30 p. m. in room 105 Oregon building.

The field of five entrants includes Corwin Calavan, John Pennington, Ralph R. Bailey, Otto Vonderheit, and Howard Bobbitt. They were chosen as the final contestants from manuscripts submitted by a larger number of law students. Each entrant will speak for 15 minutes.

First prize of $50 is donated by Frank H. Hilton, Portland attorney.

Semi-Formals Will Be Seen At Frosh Glee

Skull and Dagger to Tap Prominent Freshmen During Dance

Motif Not to Be Revealed Until Saturday

Committee chairmen of the Frosh Glee, which will be held next Saturday evening at McArthur court, aid Tuesday that they had made plans which they feel certain will more than uphold the "Frosh Glee reputation" as one of the best all-campus dances held during the school year.

The motif of the dance will not be previously announced, but something unusual and strikingly different is promised. This is the first big event sponsored by the class of '38 and they are determined that it shall be a huge success, the co-chairmen, Lyle Baker and Louis Hillis both agree.

Skull and Dagger, sophomore men's honorary, will select members from the freshman class at the Frosh Glee to join its ranks next year.

The dance, contrary to the Frosh Glee of former years, was announced as semi-formal. This will mean that there will be flowery chiffrons and veils swirling around many a slim ankle above silver slippers that will be "tripping the light fantastic" to the alerting rhythms of Jimmy Dierick's orchestra from Corvallis.

Novelty features and arrangements will be presented by Dierick's band which has been dated for next Saturday night.

Tickets are on sale at the men's living organizations for $1 a couple. Any freshmen with class membership cards will be admitted free, and money will be refunded at the door on tickets purchased for the full price if one of the couple is a freshman class member.

The contest between the living organizations has begun. Prizes are being awarded the sorority and fraternity house with the largest percentage representation at the dance.

Hobson Appointed to Succeed Reinhart as Coach; Haberman, Root Get Publications Posts

Committee Asks for New Business Manager Applications

Deadline on Friday

Emerald Editorship Open; Group Undecided

Rejecting applicants for business manager of the Oregonana and calling for new aspirants to that position, the executive council of the ASUO late yesterday confirmed recommendations of the publications committee in appointing Eldon Haberman, Grants Pass, junior in business management of the Emerald for 1935-36 and George Root, junior in journalism, to edit next year's Oregonana.

No action was taken by the executive council in regard to the editorship of next year's Emerald as the publications committee has not yet made a recommendation to the council. Further interviews with candidates for Emerald editor will be held by the publications committee before recommending one man to the executive body for final approval.

Applicants Unapproved
Neither Sam Bikman, freshman in science, nor Lester Miller, freshman in business administration, who were the only two candidates to file for Oregonana business manager, met with the approval of the executive council.

In throwing the position open once again, the council set 12 o'clock noon, Friday, April 19, as the deadline for accepting petitions of any students who may seek the managership of next year's yearbook.

Succeeding Grant Thuemmel, who finishes his second year, is

Meet Oregon's New Coach

Howard Hobson, above, who was yesterday appointed varsity basketball and baseball coach at the University by the executive council. At present Hobson is athletic director of Southern Oregon Normal school. He will begin his duties here next fall as successor to William J. Reinhart, who has accepted a similar position at George Washington university.

Traditions Group Summons Unruly To Library Steps

Dire Punishment Awaits Failure to Appear

The members of the traditions committee requested last night that the following students should appear on the library steps today at 12:40:

- Eugene Lincoln
- John Porter
- Howard Ohmart
- Andrew Bogdanovich.

Both Lincoln and Porter were summoned to appear last week for punishment for violating the tradition prohibiting smoking on the campus. They failed to appear today is the last day for them to appear before the council. It is warned that unless they report today at the scheduled time things will go rather severe with them when they are finally apprehended.

Ohmart has been accused of smoking on the sacred premises of the campus, while Bogdanovich has been seen wearing the traditional cords of the upperclassmen.

Giesecke, LaBarre Run For Offices in YMCA

Nominees for position in the YMCA cabinet to be voted upon Wednesday, April 24, were announced last night. The YMCA hall will be the polling place and polls will be open from 12 noon until 1:30.

Nominees are Fred Giesecke, president; Cosgrove LaBarre, vice-president; Edward Hanson, and Charles Paddock, secretary; and Brittain Ash, treasurer.

John Warren Astoria To Coach Freshman Sports Next Year

Mentors Acclaimed

Former Webfoot Athletes Fill Places in Fall

By Clair Johnson
Ending weeks of guessing by Oregon sport fans the executive council of the associated students last night announced the appointment of Howard Hobson, athletic director at Southern Oregon Normal school, as varsity basketball and baseball coach, and John Warren, coach at Astoria high school, as freshman sport coach.

Selection of Hobson as a successor to William J. (Bill) Reinhart, who has directed Oregon teams for the past 12 years, did not strike as too much of a surprise to close followers of the situation.

Hobson Was Favored
Rail-bird experts have been hailing the S.O.N. mentor as the leading candidate for the position since Reinhart announced his resignation March 18 to accept his new post at George Washington university.

Warren will step into the berth left vacant three years ago when Prince G. (Prink) Callison was promoted to head football coach. Since that time the yearling football, basketball, and baseball teams have been directed by varsity coaches out of their seasons, and by volunteer and student mentors.

Move Is Surprise
The early announcement, which came following long sessions of the athletic and executive councils yesterday, was rather surprising to many who thought the positions would be held open for some time yet, as was the move to build up the athletic staff with Warren's addition.

Following the recent student body fee difficulties the associated students faced after the start of spring term many doubted whether the expanding move would be possible because of a shortage of finances.

Both Are Ex-Ducks
Although making no announcements that this influenced their vote, the executive council apparently favored Oregon graduates in their selection, as both men are ex-Webfoot athletes. Many out-of-state men were included among the applicants.

Hugh Rosson, graduate manager, representing the student body,
