Eade May Automatically

Next year's senior class finds itself without a president today following a decision of the judiciary committee of the ASUO yesterday that Tom McCall was not legally elected at the recent balloting for class officers.

McCall's name was written in at the last minute by supporters, and he topped Grant Eade, opposing candidate, by some 20 votes.

Campus leaders were of the opinion last night that Eade would automatically succeed to the office but Joseph Renner, student body prexy, said that in order to clear any doubt on the matter he would present the question to the judiciary committee today. If Eade
