Lawyers Challenge Business Ad Majors in Baseball

SUMMONS In the Intramural Circuit for the State of Oregon, University of Oregon, campus. Gentlemen of the Law School, Plaintiff, vs. Business Ad Majors, Defendant.

COMPLAINT In the Intramural Circuit for the State of Oregon, University of Oregon, campus. Gentlemen of the Law School, Plaintiff, vs. Business Ad Majors, Defendant.

I That on or about the 22nd day of April, A. D. 1934, the defendants herein received an ill-deserved victory over the plaintiffs in a game of softball played upon the field adjoining and abutting Hayward field off of 15th street, and departed therefrom emitting loud raucous noises and catcalls directed toward disparaging the characters and athletic ability of the gentlemen of the law school.

II And further it is alleged that even after the aforesaid misfortune of the 5th inning, the law school filled the bases in a rally in both the 6th and 7th innings that would have netted an easy victory had not the business ad majors willfully and fraudulently coerced the umpire by threats of personal violence into handing the game to them unearned.

III And further, the business ad team on the day of the game aforesaid was composed in major part of subsidized professional ball players, which unfair advantage was well known to the defendants but unknown to the plaintiffs. Wherefore, and as direct consequence whereof, the plaintiffs were deprived of a deserved victory and have suffered severe loss of pride and reputation, together with extreme pain and mental anguish.

I The defendants have been guilty of encroaching upon the sanctity of the law school curb, and have neglected thereon to show a proper respect to their superiors; and further that they have been guilty of cluttering up the law school curb with one-quarter inch snipes when it is common knowledge that the gentlemen of the law school never smoke a cigarette down shorter than one and one-half inches, which gives the impression that the lawyers are hard up and irresponsible. II And further, from the 22nd day of April aforesaid and continuously ever since the business ad majors have strutted and puffed out their normally concave chests, and hurried pusillanimous taunts at the aforesaid gentlemen of the law school, plaintiffs herein, as they pass in and out of the law school building, which conduct on the part of the defendants has been a source of great annoyance and anxiety on the part of the plaintiffs and has occasioned additional mental suffering.

Wherefore the plaintiffs demand judgment that the defendants be adjudged to be sissies, and that their pitiful little school be rated accordingly, and that the plaintiffs be adjudged to be the rarest, their school the merriest; and that they be declared to be the victors, and that they be restored to their position of pre-eminence as regards their lowly school. LAWYERS. By: Arthur Clark, President.

Oregon's Sociology Majors Given Preference for Jobs The University of Oregon department of sociology has recently been gaining national attention through the placement of all of its students in the last few years who have received either M.A. or M.S. degrees, it has been revealed by members of the department. Oregon students in sociology have had fellowships, scholarships, and other responsible positions offered to them, in preference to students from large eastern colleges—one factor which is making eastern educators "sit up and take notice" of the University of Oregon, faculty members point out. Most outstanding examples of this demand for Oregon sociology majors has been brought to light by the several offers Paul Fore-
