PE Building Will Have No Natatorium

Insufficient Funds Given For New Pool, States Dean Bovard

Plans Being Rushed for Early Construction

Oregon's $350,000 physical education building will not include a natatorium or swimming tank.

"The board told us that whatever we should do in planning for the new building, we should do it right," Dean J. F. Bovard of the school of physical education stated today.

With the funds available, the pool could not be included in the building without sacrificing some of the original plans, or not "doing them right," according to Bovard.

Total Cost Too High

Using the unit system, plans for a natatorium which would seat several thousand people were submitted for estimate along with those for the administrative and activities units. The total cost of the project would then range from $150,000 to $250,000, too high for construction this year.

Dean Bovard stated that the inclusion of the tank within the activities unit could be done only on a small scale with space for spectators eliminated almost entirely. Because of the growing interest in swimming and the fine record of the Oregon team, Bovard feels that such a move would be more expensive in the long run, would not improve present conditions, and would be unwise in general.

Remodeling Considered

The possibility of remodeling the pool in the men's gym with 600 bleacher seats extending back from the tank is now under consideration, but funds have not yet been appropriated. The work would probably have to be financed by the University.

President C. V. Boyer could not be reached last night for a statement in regard to the remodeling of the gym. The military department may ask for the use of part of the building when the physical education school enters its new quarters.

In order that the ASUO might handle the intercollegiate swimming meets, ticket booths would be installed at the corner entrance of the gym if it is remodeled.

Members of the physical education faculty are working feverishly to submit detailed plans for the new building and its contents to the architects.

If the plans are completed in time, actual work may be started during the early winter months.

Original First Editions Of Vanity Fair at Libe

Students who have found it a pleasure to study the work of Charles Dickens will be interested to know that two of the original first edition volumes of Vanity Fair may be found on the shelves of the library.

These volumes, published in 1860, were secured this summer from the state library in New York. Of particular interest is the general makeup of the book and the styles of printing used. The volumes are in the basement of the building.

The Polynesian Society Journal in 42 volumes is among other additions to the library this summer.

Campus Calendar

Social swim for men and women tonight at 7:30 in Gerlinger hall. Suits and towels furnished.

The University band is asked to assemble tonight at 7 o'clock for the rally parade. The meeting will be at the Co-op corner, Kincaid and Thirteenth.

Marauder Eludes Pursuit on Campus

Thief Holds Off Pursuers at Point of Gun; Robbery Yields $270 in Loot

By Le Roy Mattingly

A daring daylight robber led pursuers across the campus early yesterday afternoon and twice saved himself from capture with a well-worn revolver and the warning, "Stop or I'll shoot hell out of you." He was still at large late last evening.

Carrying about $270 in loot from the home of E. H. Hall, 2174 Fairmount, the robber twice held off pursuers at the point of a gun and finally disappeared near Villard hall, eluding Abram Merritt, business administration student, and a group of student FERA workers. Dressed in a blue cheviot suit, light shirt and hat, reddish of complexion, 23 to 25 years of age, and with a jagged tear in the seat of his neatly pressed pants, the robber won his freedom when a group of student FERA workers failed to answer Merritt's call for assistance until their quarry pulled a gun on his pursuer on the Anchorage porch.

Robs Hall Residence
Chase began in Fairmount when neighbors noticed a strange man playing with a dog in the Hall yard and a moment later moving about in the house. They called Hall, who, accompanied by Jennings King, 115 E. 11th street, rushed to his home to find the robber gone with jewelry valued at $250 and $20 in cash.

Entrance had been effected by smashing the glass in the bathroom window and unlatching the catch.

Hall picked up the thief near the University campus and was held off at the point of a gun. He stopped Merritt who was riding on a University truck.

Joining the hunt near the men's dormitory, Merritt followed past the rear entrance to Johnson hall and sighted the burglar on eleventh street as he was walking west.

Merritt asked student FERA workers to aid in the capture. The man became alarmed and cut back up the street, across a fence and across the tracks.

Cornered at Anchorage
Continuing the chase alone, Merritt cornered him along the mill race and chased him across the Anchorage porch.

Three feet behind and gaining rapidly, Merritt stepped off the porch and found himself looking into the muzzle of a gun. "Get the hell out of here or I'll shoot," the cornered man said.

Coolly taking the risk of crossing the campus once more, the thief went back up the steps in front of Villard hall losing the group of students who finally came to Merritt's aid.

Dean W. L. Morse Again on Council

Dean Wayne L. Morse has been selected for the fifth year a member of the Pacific regional committee of the National Social Science council, it was announced yesterday.

The report came from Robert T. Crane, executive director of the Social Science Research Council of America. The committee consists of seven members representing the research program of seven coast universities. It strives to create interest in research and to secure financial support for specific projects. Also on its annual program is the Social Science conference held in San Francisco in June.

Dean Morse succeeded Arnold Bennet Hall, former president of the University, as a member of the committee.

300 Grads Obtain Teaching Positions
Almost 300 graduates of Oregon received assistance in obtaining appointments as teachers this year. It was announced today following a check-up of figures of the annual report now being compiled.

Available positions number nearly twice that of 1933, the report shows, and they compare favorably with 1929 when employment was at its best. An optimistic outlook for the teaching profession is indicated as the trend is also toward higher pay.

New Recreation Classes Planned

Recreational classes for town and faculty women will be conducted at the women's gymnasium and swimming pool, it was announced today. Activities will include folk, clog, and interpretative dancing, stunts and tumbling, games and swimming. All will be under the direction of expert instructors from the school of physical education.

Miss Jane Potter, a graduate of the University of California at Los Angeles, will be in charge of dancing and games; and Mrs. Agnes Morgan will be in charge of the activity in the pool where individual assistance will be given to both beginners and advanced swimmers.

Beginning October 8, classes will be given each Tuesday evening from 7:30 to 9:30, and will continue for 10 weeks. Bathing suits and towels will be furnished for dancing and swimming and those taking the courses need only supply rubber soled shoes. A fee of $1.25 will be charged faculty wives and University employees, and $2.50 will be charged townspeople.

Comish, Stillman Teach UO Extension Courses

Professors Stillman and Comish are giving extension courses in Portland this year which they attend once a week. Professor Stillman has an accounting class Wednesday evenings and Professor Comish a merchandising class Tuesday evenings.

New Loan Funds Made Available To U. O. Students

Grants to $150 Per Year Now Obtainable

Scholarship loans up to $150 per year are now obtainable by Oregon students who can qualify from the Educational Alliance of New York according to an announcement received by Dr. C. V. Boyer, president.

The grants are usually made to third or fourth year students. No interest charges are made and no definite time is specified for repayment. Payments may be made after graduation in amounts and at intervals permissible by the student's circumstances.

The loans are made on the basis of individual merit, scholarship, and need. All factors being equal, the foundation prefers to aid Jewish students, according to Henry Fleishman in his letter to Dr. Boyer, but the grants may also be obtained by others. Full information may be obtained from the office of the dean of men.

Van Vliet Charges To Play First Tilt

Despite several unforeseen handicaps, Maury Van Vliet, former U. of O. grid star and now coach at University high school, expects his team to make a creditable showing when it opens its 1935 conference schedule against the reputedly strong Albany high eleven here tonight.

Van Vliet is a little skeptical over the outcome of the encounter principally because of the fact that Albany has won its first two games by convincingly large margins. However, he does expect to get a good line on the strength of his team and the qualities of his individual players.

With only eight returning lettermen, the former Webfoot flash is as a decided disadvantage at placing his men to their best advantage. Despite their inexperience, most of Maury's proteges are big men and the team should average 175 pounds.

LETTERS UNCALLED FOR

Two letters still remain uncalled for at the office of the dean of women, it was announced today.

These are for Ellen Moore and Myrtle Pullock.

Three-fourths of the army's total squadrons are assigned to pursuit, attack and bombardment; while the navy assigns less than one-third of its total to those services, over two-thirds being engaged on patrol, scouting and observation.

Church Night Will Welcome UO Students

All Invited to Attend the Annual Event Tonight

'Fun' Is Plan of Majority Of Organizations

More than a dozen churches will swing open their doors tonight to welcome a crowd of Oregon students which may exceed 1000. This event yearly gives new students and others a chance to renew church connections severed when they leave home. Most Eugene groups are planning hilarious get-acquainted parties tonight, though a few will attempt a serious presentation of their programs.

Tonight they will strive mainly to demonstrate the attractive features of their organization through gay carnivals, spritely programs, and care-free parties. The Emerald presents the complete programs of all organizations participating in this annual church night event.

Westminster house, 1414 Kincaid, will play host, in addition to its own recruits, to students from Central Presbyterian and Fairmount Presbyterian. It opens the evening with open house at 8:30. Included in the program will be vocal solos by Murnard England, Robert Mack, George Skipworth, and Evelyn Hollis. Dorothy Davis will accompany. Instrumental music is also planned. Games are scheduled and the evening will be concluded with dancing and refreshments. Hazel Lewis is general chairman of the program, assisted by Frances Mayes.

YWCA Organizes For Membership Drive This Term

Purpose, Contact Group to Campaign

Organization of the Y. W. C. A. membership drive went forward yesterday afternoon when representatives from women's living groups met at the bungalow for the purpose of concentrating their efforts in opening the campaign Monday, October 7.

Patsy Neal, chairman of the drive, organized the representatives into a purpose and contact group and acquainted the group with the meaning of the "Y" and what the association offers to women on the campus.

Houses were urged to go 100 per cent in membership as a number have done in the past. The membership drive will close with a membership banquet October 17. Doris Mable has been appointed chairman of the banquet.

Freshman discussion groups which will open next week offer contact with other girls, a method of broadening interests and an interest in the organization in general. All campus women are urged to visit the YWCA and sign up for interest groups.

Oregon Graduates Treated To Typical Chicago Scene

Chicago believes in staging an appropriate show for the entertainment of visitors from the "wild" west is the impression received by Miss Madeleine Gilbert, '34, who is now enrolled in the school of social service administration at Chicago university. The demonstration put on for her entertainment included an attempted bank robbery by seven masked men with the attendant machine gun fire and a defusive barrage of tear gas.

It all happened last Monday when the young lady went with her uncle, Willard Shaver, ex-'14, to do a little banking business at the University State bank. Leaving her uncle to adjust the final details in the banking transaction, Madeleine went across the street on her errand.

On her return Miss Gilbert found a crowd assembled where a group of masked men had shot down the guard and a woman near him. The robbery was averted by turning loose the tear gas. Customers, including Mr. Shaver, were compelled to lie prone on the floor of the bank lobby to escape the gunfire and the blinding gas.

The after effects of the gas were so damaging that Mr. Shaver was compelled to take the remainder of the day off after giving his description of the gang to the Chicago police.

As the hold up men fled from the scene of the robbery the police gave chase and in the machine gun fire three officers of the law were wounded.

Information regarding this unusual introduction to the life of the windy city was conveyed in a letter from Miss Gilbert to her mother, Mrs. James H. Gilbert. The letter was accompanied by a clipping from a Chicago newspaper with a banner headline referring to the attempted robbery and the shooting that attended the event.

Emerald Women's Page Workers to Meet Today at 4

Houses Contacted By ASUO in Drive For Membership

Groups Strive to Reach 100 Per Cent Record

The total membership of the ASUO was swelled considerably yesterday as the drive was narrowed to make direct contacts through representatives in living groups.

Cecil Barker, chairman, expressed the opinion last night that more fraternities and sororities would join Phi Gamma Delta and Phi Sigma Kappa in netting 100 per cent membership before the drive ends next week. Several groups were rumored to have reached the 99 per cent mark yesterday, although none reported going over the crest.

A 25 cent saving will also go to ASUO men on the home games rally dance tomorrow night in McArthur court. Admission for non-student body members will be set at 75 cents, tickets going on sale in front of the Co-op this afternoon.

Workers Should File Addresses

All students wishing employment through the University employment agency are requested to leave their name and class schedule and the most likely place that they may be contacted at the employment office in the YMCA hut, Janet Smith, employment secretary, announced yesterday.

The office is making placements in positions as rapidly as possible, although the number of applications still exceeds the number of jobs available.

It will assist the office greatly if all applicants can be reached at definite places, Miss Smith said.

Women Athletes To Start Practice

Volleyball and hockey practice start next week for all those interested in these co-ed sports. No experience is needed in order to sign up for either game.

Volleyball practice will be held in Gerlinger hall every afternoon at 5 o'clock except Friday, daily hockey practice will be held at 4 o'clock except on Fridays.

Intramural and interhouse tournaments will be held later in the term in volleyball and intramural tussles will be held in hockey. Participation in these sports throughout the year will count towards winning the All-Sports plaque which is now in possession of Susan Campbell hall.

Oregon Students Will Entertain Dads October 9

The sons and daughters of Oregon are to bring their proud fathers to the University for a day, October 9, when they will be in the center of the spotlight of exciting events, featuring the coast conference football tilt between the University of Idaho and Oregon.

Frank Bondurant has been named by ASUO President Blais to head the committee of students who are to lay the plans for the annual Dad's day events. On Bondurant's committee are: Wayne Harbert, publicity; Dan Clark II, advertising; Mary McCracken, registration; Jean Stevenson, banquet; and Virginia Proctor, secretary.

To Be Guests at Banquet
Besides the football game, the dads will be guests of honor at a huge banquet, a get-acquainted mass meeting, and at dinners at various sororities and fraternities Sunday noon.

Earle Wellington, president of the Oregon Dad's organization, is anticipating a record attendance for this year's event, having already received word from fathers in many western states that they are planning to come to Eugene for the event.

On the faculty committee which is working with the above student committee are: Earl M. Pallett, general chairman; George Godfrey, publicity; George Belknap, advertising; Virgil D. Earl, registration; and Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed, banquet.

U. O. Graduates Secure Positions

Letters from other institutions indicate country-wide notice has been brought to the campus through placement of all holders of recent master's degrees from the University. Responsible positions have been offered to advanced sociology students in preference to those of long-recognized eastern colleges.

Paul B. Foreman and Eugene T. Stromberg, who received master's degrees last June, are well pleased with their positions according to word received by Helen McCarter. Foreman accepted a teaching assistantship at Vanderbilt university in Nashville, Tennessee and Stromberg accepted a fellowship at Cornell university, Ithaca, New York.

Other graduates recently placed include Earl Pemberton, M. A., '31; and Joel Berreman, M. A., '33.

KEM IS NEW SECRETARY

Miss Thelma Kem, who was secretary to the English department last year, is now employed as secretary in the school of law.

The former secretary in the law school, Miss Margaret Read, is now employed in San Francisco where she is secretary to the first vice-president of the Getz Exporting and Importing company.

Rally!
Everyone rally around tonight for the huge demonstration and parade. Oregon spirit is on the upgrade. Rally!

Speeches by Prominent Figures to Cap Big Parade

Starts at 7 o'clock

Band Will March in Trek Downtown

By WAYNE HARBERT

Mighty Oregon's greater student body is to join forces tonight at 7 o'clock sharp to snake its way through downtown streets in a mammoth rally as a gala herald of the inter-sectional gridiron spectacle to be staged on Hayward field tomorrow afternoon between the forces of Utah and Oregon.

Jack Campbell and Roberta Moody, co-chairmen of the men's and women's newly appointed rally committees made this announcement late last evening, shoving the University's pep program for fall games to a rousing start.

Attendance Asked
Every student enrolled in the University of Oregon, Campbell appealed, should be at the corner of Thirteenth and Kincaid at the starting time so as to impress Eugene that the campus is solidly behind the sweeping movement to keep the "big" games at home.

Noise-making apparatus will not be featured in the impressive demonstration, Campbell intimated, because of the late hour at which it was decided to stage the display. All students who have cars have been asked to enter them, but hundreds of students will serpentine behind the vehicles. The flashy University band will lend musical assistance.

Speeches Planned
Broadway and Willamette will be the center of the excitement after the procession has wound its way through town. At this intersection fiery pep talks will be given by such men as "Prink" Callison and "Tke" Armstrong, coaches of the opposing pigskin forces; Howard Ragan, president of the Eugene Chamber of Commerce which is taking a leading role in the "big - games - at - home" drive; Bill Russell, Oregon graduate of last June who is chairman of downtown Eugene's efforts to make football throngs on Hayward field what they should be; and "Baz" Williams, one of the University's greatest of football heroes.

The women's rally committee became a reality yesterday when the executive council passed the petition for the forming of such a group, tendering to Oregon women a more active part in pre-game excitement. They will work in conjunction with Jack Campbell and his assistants tonight and tomorrow at the game.

Independent Men Called by Yeomen
All independent men on the campus who wish to participate with the Yeomen's club in intramural sports competition this winter are urged to secure a membership ticket with the club as soon as possible.

The fee is $1 and entitles the holder to attend all Yeomen activities besides entering competitive sports, according to Fred Gieseke, president.

The banquet committee, headed by Ernest Savage, met yesterday to further plans for the big banquet set for next Friday, October 11, and the dance with the Ordes, women's independent club, following.

Portland Center Has Industries Course

Portland Center is offering a commerce and industry course for one term under the auspices of the school of business. The course deals with the industries and commerce prevalent in Oregon and the Northwest.

A series of talks is to be given by outstanding industrial leaders of Oregon during the course.
