Arnie McAvoy Overwhelms Bud Burnett

Entire Ticket Swept Into Office by Decisive Margins At Frosh Election

By WAYNE HARBERT
After the clouds of smoke had cleared yesterday afternoon from the freshman political battlefield, Arnie McAvoy and his entire ticket has been swept into office by overwhelming majorities by one of the biggest first year classes in recent years.

The standings of the candidates were announced by Roland Rourke as follows:

President:
Arnie McAvoy, 193.
Bud Burnett, 152.
Vice-President:
June Brown, 208.
Helen Labbe, 135.
Secretary:
Faye Buchanan, 206.
Phyllis Gardner, 138.
Treasurer:
Bob Bailey, 216.
Dick Sleight, 129.

The frosh carried their first college political campaign at such a fast pace election eve and all day yesterday that the whole campus eagerly awaited the result after the polls had closed at 3 o'clock.

Yesterday morning's dawn revealed that considering electioneering went on during the night as students were greeted by huge yellow letters printed on the streets and numerous signs placed at advantageous points on the campus.

Enthusiasm Rampant

Between every class, cars carrying swarms of freshmen careened down the streets, attempting to impress the class-bound students of their political superiority by displaying banners and lots of temporary lettering. Even a sound car was employed by one of the groups. Indeed, the freshman class of 1939 has started off with flying colors, interested individuals exclaimed.

Ye Tabard Inn Holds Initiation

Rupert Pray and Willard Marsh were regularly initiated into Ye Tabard Inn, honorary writer's fraternity; and Winston Allard was elected president of the group, at a meeting of the organization held at the home of Prof. W. F. G. Thacher, faculty adviser.

The program for the evening consisted of the reading of several original stories written by the members, and discussion of plans for the coming year.

McAvoy Snatched, Left At Lonely Sawmill In Wilds

Editor's note: Arnie McAvoy, newly elected frosh prexy, was unable to be contacted anywhere last night. Following is an eye witness's factually correct story of why and what happened.

By BILL PEASE
Gather, my innocent freshmen, and I shall tell you a tale about the boggy-men that wear mole-skins. Yes, the sophomores.

As all good stories do, this begins with
ONCE UPON A TIME there came to this campus a freshman. But this freshman had heard that to be elected to a position of honor one must go politician in a big way—even as far as to hand out cigars.

So, with a pocketful of cigars, Arnie McAvoy set out to become president of the class of 1939. In the same class there was also a freshman that wanted to be president, and he, too, had cigars.

Each of the two candidates lined up a ticket and the battle was on.

While each of the two was working his hardest to "give his class an honest deal and wished nothing for himself—nothing but the opportunity to serve his class," five grim and sneering sophomores were up to their armpits in connivery, plotting to kidnap in the corner of the frosh class—he who would

Comin' Dad?

Connelly Takes Fight Before Anti-War Group

Petition Submitted Faculty by Council

Gordon Connelly, sophomore in journalism, continued his fight for exemption from military when he appeared Tuesday night before the Eugene chapter of the American League against War and Fascism.

The chapter was unable to consider Connelly's case at that time, but S. Stephenson Smith, associate professor of English at the University, was appointed to preside at the investigation of Connelly's plea.

A further step was taken Thursday when Art Stanley, president of the Student Christian council, handed the following petition to Carlton Spencer, head of the exemptions committee.

Campus Smoothies Denied Use Of Co-op Phone

To Betty Coeds and Joe Colleges: the University Co-op telephone is no longer of free public use.

The situation is thus: as long as the telephone is used for business only everything is running smoothly. But when a telephone reaches the stage where Johnny calls up Martha for a date the next weekend and when little Billy has to phone home to find out what he has forgotten one must install a telephone with a sign reading: Drop Nickel Please.

Marian McClain, manager of the Co-op, however, is not installing a pay telephone but wants the college students to realize the situation as it stands. A number of the business stores in the vicinity of the Co-op have replaced free telephones with those that require a nickel.

Evans Rallies After Blood Transfusions

John Stark Evans, organ professor, was still a "very sick man" in the words of Dr. W. E. Neal when contacted last night. His condition, the doctor also said, is "very favorable" as compared with that of several days ago.

Two blood transfusions have been administered to the professor, after which he has staged a marked rally in his fight for life.

Graduate Honorary Seeks Chapter Here

Phi Delta Gamma, national graduate honorary for women, has written the graduate office on the campus offering to install a chapter at the University of Oregon. Any women interested in the plan, or in seeing the official journal of the organization may call at the graduate office.

An elaborate banquet is to be held in the Straub Memorial hall Saturday evening, beginning at 6:15, after which the dads will be entertained by witnessing the "inside" of a genuine college dance.

Funds for New School Rest on Miner Decision

"If the Miner building is declared tax exempt adequate funds will be made available by next fall for the establishment of a school for real estate and insurance at the University of Oregon," stated Mr. E. R. Bryson, Eugene attorney, in supporting the University's claims in the Miner building case before the Oregon supreme court last Friday.

Mr. Bryson asserted last night that he was very sure that the case would be decided in favor of the University and explained how, if such a school could be established, the University of Oregon would be the only university in the West offering such a complete course in real estate and insurance.

Orides Solicit Musical Talent

All independent women interested in the chorus of voices or string quartet which the Orides are organizing have been asked to attend the regular meeting at 7:30 Monday night in Gerlinger.

The chorus has been requested to sing between acts of "The Queen's Husband," new Guild theater production. Entertainment at social functions will be furnished by the string quartet.

All those interested who cannot attend the Monday night meeting please contact Theda Spicer.

Sigma Nu Again Hits At Rushing Fine; May Quit Fraternity Group

Theta Chi Accepts $15 Fine; Phi Sigma Kappa, Delta Tau Delta Still Undecided on Action

Coming as a reverberation from the bomb shell exploded by the tribunal of the Interfraternity council last night, Sigma Nu announced that they were considering withdrawal from the council but that no definite action would be taken until after the meeting tonight.

Larry Quille, president of Delta Tau Delta, announced that his house would accept the fine of $5 which the council approved but would protest should the judgment be unfavorable to them on a fine of the same amount which was deferred at the appeal session.

Phi Sigs on Fence

Phi Sigma Kappa, although not entirely satisfied with a final decision assessing them $10, is undecided as to further appeal. Al Whittle, house president, stated last night.

The judgment in which the council upheld a fine of $20, mitigated to $15, has been accepted as final by Theta Chi, President John Rogers announced.

Recognition Given To Dr. Comish For New Book

Dr. N. H. Comish, professor of business administration at the University, is receiving considerable recognition for his new book: "Marketing of Manufactured Goods." It has been reviewed favorably by many magazines and newspapers, and marketing authorities throughout the country have sent Dr. Comish letters.

Among others to add favorable comments are Dr. Paul H. Nyström, professor of marketing at Columbia university, Dean Harrison Dale of the school of business administration at Miami university, and Professor Curtis Kelley of Oregon State college.

University Band To Exhibit Team Work

Following an hour and a quarter of intensive drill practice the members of the University band are prepared to put on an exhibition of closely co-ordinated drill-team work such as has never before been demonstrated at a campus occasion.

The precise details of the practice period have been kept a secret, but is reported that several unusual marching formations have been evolved and will be "unveiled" at the Idaho game this Saturday for the dads.

The application blanks are to be forwarded to the Portland office of the national youth administration, and must be in the executive secretary's office by the first part of next week.

Dads' Dance Set for Igloo

Skull and Dagger Pushes Event

Football spirit is to reign after the Idaho game tomorrow night in McArthur court where Skull and Dagger, sophomore men's service honorary, is bending every effort to stage a successful dance.

Tickets are selling in men's living organizations at 75 cents a couple. Dancing is to begin at 9 o'clock with Buck McGowan's 10-piece band in the music box. All dads will be admitted free and seated in a special section down stairs where they may mingle with the dancers.

Dogs to Sell

A fantastic gridiron will be constructed to provide the motif for the dance. Idaho and Oregon colors will predominate. "Hayward Junior," which is the water wagon used by the lemon-yellow football team, is to be on hand and hot dogs are to be sold to dancers to make the game atmosphere more complete. Eddie Vail, new yell king, will be master of ceremonies.

A prize dance is to be held at the half, it was announced by Noel Benson, chairman. On his committee are: patrons, Bob Wilhelm, Bill Dalton; tickets, Bill Pease, Woodrow Truax; decorations, Avery Fisher, Mel Shevach; announcements, Ralph Cathey, Frank Cooper; and advertising, Lyle Baker.

Recent maneuvers of the United States fleet in the Pacific proved that planes flying at an altitude of 1000 feet can easily locate submerged submarines.

Frances DeLoe Received Enthusiastically at Recital

By LAURA MARGARET SMITH
Proving herself an interesting addition to local music circles, Miss Frances Margaret DeLoe, soprano, was warmly received in her recital last night at the school of music auditorium. A recent arrival from Cincinnati, where she included among her achievements several appearances with the symphony orchestra, Miss DeLoe was presented last night by the music school in cooperation with the Eugene adult music study group.

In the Mozart "Non Mi Dir" and Gluck's "Divinites du Styx," arias from "Don Giovanni" and "Alceste" respectively, the artist gave evidence of her extensive operatic training. The impression left was that she would be quite adequate in such work.

The opening Handel number was beautifully done and the Caccini "Amarilli" displayed a rich but restrained minor.

It was in the Brahms group, however, that Miss DeLoe's voice seemed to find its best medium. Her selection revealed a personal preference for the unaffected, emotional German songs, of which "Die Mainacht" was outstanding. In these her excellent range, combining warmth in the lower reg-

Group Also Questions Right of Council to Make Eligibility Ruling On Scholastic Rating

Editorial Comment

Taking exception to two recent actions of the Interfraternity council, namely: the legality of the motion passed just prior to rush week by the council with reference to those freshmen automatically ineligible because of low high school scholastic ratings, and the action of the council in the levying of the fine of $45 against them, the Sigma Nu fraternity issued a formal protest last night.

In a statement printed elsewhere in the Emerald, Sigma Nu indicated that they "disregarded the list of those ineligible on account of a low prep school rating because it was in an unconstitutional manner."

Plan Adopted 1933

On April 22, 1933, the interfraternity council adopted the "Oregon plan of deferred pledging" which stipulated that those freshmen having a "1" psychology rating were ineligible as pledging material for the fraternities of the campus. The same plan delegated power to the tribunal of the council.

Lost and Found Business Hits Slump This Fall

With business everywhere showing a definite upturn, with bankers and business men discarding their crying towels and leaping upon the bandwagon of renewed prosperity, there is a local industry which has slumped desperately. This industry is the lost and found business.

Located centrally as it is in the University depot and possessing an abundance of material—some 2500 students—to work on there appears to be no reason for its fall. But the sad statistics of the case remain: there are but two notebooks, two one dollar textbooks (formerly, nothing but $5 stuff was handled), and the remains of a disgusted-looking fountain pen being held for lost owners at the present moment.

ister with clarity and power in the high tones, found its best expression.

The last group, all in English, comprised a tasteful selection, and by demand of her audience Miss DeLoe repeated the last, Puccini's "Waltz Song."

A tendency to approach tones with a slur was apparent, as was a slight break between upper and lower registers occasionally. Miss DeLoe's enunciation also is at times a bit too throaty to be perfectly distinct.

Her performance was, however, most satisfying and sincere. She has a voice of real beauty and a careful technique and should prove popular even with the discriminating audiences for which Eugene is noted.

Aurora Potter Underwood at the piano complemented the artist perfectly with the fine art to which she has raised accompanying. "La Papillon" and "Mandoline," if more spectacular, were only typical of the exacting artistry required for such assistance.

Following the concert a reception was held, with members of Mu Phi Epsilon, Phi Beta, and Phi Mu Alpha, music honoraries, assisting in the lower reg-
