

Fraternity Combine Stung to Action; Revision Planned

Committee Appointed To Submit Tentative Structure for New Council Constitution

A pointed statement by Ed Fenwick, Sigma Nu president, and an Emerald editorial stung the interfraternity council to action Friday afternoon and led to a series of suggestions for revision or modernization of the council's constitution, and a barrage of opinion in favor of an intelligent program of increased activity.

William Thomason was appointed by President Tom McCall to head a committee to draw up plans for a complete revision of the constitution. The other members of the committee are Willard Jones, Orton Goodwin, and Bill Davis.

Approval Given

A movement that all business of the special meeting held the Saturday before this year's rush week, including the question of pledge eligibility rules, be declared valid was unanimously approved.

All houses with pledges ineligible under this ruling will have them revoked.

Dean's Daughter In Chicago Shool

Madeleine Gilbert, daughter of Dean and Mrs. J. H. Gilbert, is a first year student in the School for Social Service Administration in Chicago this year.

Miss Gilbert is attending medical lectures in Billing's hospital and has been assigned field work in social service among the negroes in Washington park, the negro section of Chicago.

Upper classmen will remember her as a former Oregon student active in school activities, being editor of the Oregona two years ago.

Japanese Student To Talk at YWCA

Takako Nakajima, Japanese foreign scholar, will be the guest speaker for the freshman discussion group at the YWCA at 4 p. m. Wednesday. Her topic will be "Japanese Idea of Loyalty."

Miss Nakajima is a graduate in physical education on the University campus, coming from Japan this summer with the Japanese student tour.

A special invitation is extended to freshmen women.

Band Lineup Includes Many Star Musicians

By FULTON H. TRAVIS The most powerful, most versatile, and most accomplished band in the history of the University! In the days of Barnum words were used like that and people believed them but Barnum unfortunately, is dead and the world moves on.

But when John H. Stehn, who, on occasion classifies the performance, the spirit and the individuals all under the one succulently descriptive word, "Lousy!," says that the University has the most capable band in its history, it means something.

At the Multnomah stadium last Saturday, the University band, despite the rain, put on an exhibition of playing which ranked with that of any band of college caliber. Yells, hand-clapping and even the "Associated" loud-speaker system failed to drown them and through the din their notes came clear, precise and with perfect harmony.

Seven Champions

The reason for this outstanding performance can be brought down to facts and figured — proven. There are seven state band contest champions in the band. They are: Earl Scott, cornet, 1932; Billy Curry, French horn, 1935; John Miller, French horn, 1934; Vinton Sny-

Portland Women Confer on Libe Browsing Room

Preliminary Plans Laid For Raising Funds

Mrs. George D. Gerlinger and Mrs. E. E. Harpham, both of Portland, were in Eugene Friday, conferring with the Eugene committee for raising funds for furnishing the browsing room of the new University library. Mrs. Gerlinger is president of the Portland committee, and Mrs. Harpham, secretary.

At the meeting of the Eugene committee preliminary plans for raising the needed funds were laid.

Mrs. Gerlinger, who was notably active in former fund-raising campaigns for both the Fine Arts building and Gerlinger hall, which was named for her, remarked that she "is happy to be working for the University again."

Mrs. Harpham, who was formerly Josephine Evans, is an ex-University of Oregon student.

Cynthia Liljeqvist To Head Office

Word was received here this week that Miss Cynthia Liljeqvist, '34, has been appointed to head the office of the Coos Bay Times, Coquille, Oregon. The Times, in establishing this office, seeks to improve news coverage there.

Miss Liljeqvist was an outstanding member of the senior class at the University last year and was affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

November 15 — Kappa Sigma pledge dance.
November 16 — All-dorm semi-formal.
December 7 — Alpha Xi Delta pledge dance.

Steel Tower Pours Cement

120-Foot Structure Puzzles Students

For the purpose of informing the puzzled, uninformed, the gaunt, tower-like structure overlooking the new library-to-be is a patented device for pouring cement into various sections of the building. It stretches to the vast height of 120 feet, composed entirely of six-foot lengths of steel, and is balanced by guywires fastened to "deadmen."

Height Sufficient

Mr. Reynolds, clerk of construction work, feels that the height of the scaffold is sufficient to reach any part of the library up to the time of its completion.

The mechanism of the hoist, as explained by Mr. Reynolds, is run by a "donkey" engine, electrically operated. This engine raises and lowers the skip, which is the cement carrier.

Capacity Measured

The materials for the cement are measured automatically from bins and bunks and separate water tank. The capacity of the mixer is measured, and, when mixed a certain length of time, is spilled into the "skip" which is hoisted on the tower. There are cantilevered derricks to receive the mixed cement from the skip into spouts, and the cement can thereby be directed into any part of the construction.

Journal Reviews Book by Leighton

"Studies of Laboratory Methods," a book by Dr. R. W. Leighton, professor of education, was reviewed in the Journal of Higher Education for October, 1935.

The book tells of the experiments conducted at the University of Oregon, for the purpose of selecting methods of teaching which were productive of the desired outcome in science courses.

The review is by Ben D. Wood, who is one of the Columbia university faculty, and who is also a national figure in the educational world.

Bossing to Resume Duties in November

Dr. Nelson L. Bossing of the school of education, who has been incapacitated for about two months, following an operation in August, expects to resume his duties about the first of November.

During his illness, Dr. Bossing has conducted his activities from his home.

Don Caswell, Oregon Grad, Visits Campus

Delinquent Roomers At OSC Get No Grades

Unpaid board bills at Oregon State college fraternities would mean no grades for the delinquent R. J. Bramwell Barber Shop, C. student if recommendations by the J. Brier & Co., Bristow Jewelry inter-fraternity council there should become effective, a story way Cash Store, H. F. Brogden in last night's Register-Guard said.

Landscaping At University To Start Soon

Athletic Fields, University High Will Benefit From Project

Work on the $21,489 project of landscaping will begin in a few weeks, according to F. A. Cuthbert, professor of landscape and architecture.

Money allotted by the PWA amounts to $17,846 and the University is to furnish the difference of $3,643. The project will afford 395 man-months of labor.

Plans are to finish the work which was started last year under SERA, including completion of the grading of the athletic fields, practice field for University high, and work around the music building, which is principally walk construction and planting.

Bumper Rail Planned

"Further plans for improvement are to equip the parking area by the music building with bumper rails to indicate car spacing. There (Please turn to page two)

Dr. Moore Will Serve on Rhodes Committee Work

Oxford Information Is Available at Libe

Dr. A. R. Moore, who returned to the Oregon campus this fall as instructor in the zoology department, has been made a member of the University committee on Rhodes scholarship awards. Dr. Moore has been on leave of absence the past several years while doing research work for the Japanese government both in that country and in the United States.

He will work with S. Stephenson Smith, English department; Dr. Andrew Fish, history department; Dr. L. S. Cressman, sociology department; and Dr. R. R. Huestis, zoology department. Students planning to take the examination may confer with these men for information.

Mrs. Clara L. Fitch, secretary of the graduate division, has announced that books on Oxford, which sponsors the scholarships, may be secured in the reserve library.

All Rhodes scholars are admitted to honor schools, says Mrs. Fitch. Recently Oxford arranged for giving Ph.D. degrees to properly qualified Rhodes scholars. The original award is for two years, but a third and even fourth year will be given if the student's work is exceptional.

The third year of work does not necessarily have to be taken at Oxford, but may be taken in any country outside of the United States.

Miss Burns, Hall Honored

Two Are Chosen as Members of 'Sifters'

By DARREL ELLIS Announcement of the selection of Miss Ann-Reed Burns, senior in journalism, and William Hall, senior in social science, as representatives of the University in "The Sifters" club was received yesterday from the office of C. V. Boyer, president of the University.

"The Sifters," a national organization with headquarters in Washington, D. C., receives two members from each state college or university. The purpose of the club is to create interest in the study of state tax problems and to foster a closer cooperation between college students and state governments.

Miss Burns and Mr. Hall were chosen from the senior class by a committee composed of Eric W. Allen, dean of the school of journalism; James H. Gilbert, dean of the school of business administration; and Virgil D. Earl, dean of men.

"Both of these students are of the highest intellectual rating and have done honor work in their subjects. A. J.," the committee's report to Dr. Boyer said.

Inasmuch as the appointees to these memberships will confer with the governor of the state, and any other officials he may designate, the appointment is considered to be an honor of high recognition.

"The Sifters" were notified of their appointments by Dr. Boyer yesterday by mail.

Pi Lambda Theta Holds First Meet

Pi Lambda Theta, national educational honorary for women, held its first meeting of the year October 16, at Gerlinger hall.

The program for the coming year was outlined at the meeting, and copies of it will be available to members in the near future.

November 23 was the tentative date set for the annual Founders' Day banquet, and it was announced that names for new members will be submitted at the next meeting.

Mail Being Held At Dean's Office

Mail is being held at the dean of women's office for Gertrude Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mayfield, Mrs. Florence Scearce and Mary Morse.

All Oregon Plays Host To 'Pop'; Huge Rally Ignites Enthusiasm

View of College Dance to Be Given Dads at Igloo By Skull, Dagger

Raspy horns of all pitches turned downtown Eugene into a bedlam yesterday evening as hundreds of students, many of whom drug along "pop," jazzed up the rally in preparation for the Idaho game today.

Noise will again predominate tonight as Skull and Dagger honorary throws a dance in the Igloo for the special benefit of the pal of all the students—dear old dad.

Pop to Witness Hop

Signs flew up all over the campus yesterday, urging everyone to "throw pop in the rumble seat and tear to the hop" and show him what college is. Buck McGowan's band will hold down the platform at the football-spirited affair. Tickets are selling fast at 75 cents a couple. Dad may get in free, and will not be shoved clear into the balcony, but will be given seats on the main floor.

Noel Benson, chairman for the informal, predicted yesterday that surprises will await all students who make it to the dance, novel ideas being carried out in decorations.

Ted Banks, Idaho mentor, intimated from the rally platform on Willamette and Broadway last night that Idaho was out to win. He was followed by "Prink" Callison who warned him that he would have to fight to do it. Hugh Rosson, graduate manager, also spoke again, urging united cooperation for the game. President Jim Blais was presented for a few words over the microphone, the pep program winding up by a sentence or two by Frank Michek, captain of today's lemon-yellow team.

Chairman Names Banquet Heads

Doris Mabie, chairman of the membership banquet for the YWCA to be held at Gerlinger hall, October 24 at 6 p. m., has announced chairman of committees who will work on the annual affair.

Committee heads are: serving, Mary Ellen Eberhart; cleanup, Lillian Warn; programs, Elaine Sorenson; tickets, Juanita Mills; setup, Hazel Lewis.

The banquet will bring to a close the membership drive of the YWCA which has been in progress for the past few weeks. Tickets for the dinner will be thirty-five cents.

Campus Calendar

All members of the University band are requested to be at the ROTC building not later than 1:30 this afternoon in full uniform.

Officers of the '38-'39 club will meet just before the "sing" at Westminster house Monday night.

Westminster fireside group will meet Monday evening at 8:15 at Westminster house, with an informal "sing" at 10.

Officers and committee chairmen of Westminster association will hold a business meeting Saturday evening at 7:30 at Westminster house.

Editing class — "Time" magazines have arrived and are on distribution at Journalism office.

All women who have not turned in their permanent addresses to the dean of women are asked to do so at once.

Earle Wellington, above, leads the visiting dads on the campus this year. He is president of the Oregon Dad's club.

French Medal Is Given to Campus Department Head

Roy P. Bowen, head of the Romance language department, was made an officer of the Academy and presented with the Silver Palms by the French consul-general of San Francisco, M. Ives Meric de Bellefon, at Gerlinger hall Thursday night.

The Silver Palms was awarded to Dr. Bowen in recognition of his devotion to French culture, and for the work he has done to further an understanding of the French language and culture on this campus.

M. de Bellefon gave an amusing speech on "Les Voyages de Pierre Loti." The speaker was guest of honor at an informal reception given by Pi Delta Phi, French honorary.

The Silver Palms award is considered by those acquainted with the significance of the award as a high honor to Dr. Bowen, his department and the University, as well as a just recognition of the Romance language department chief's work on the campus.

Col. Leader Interviewed On International Affairs

By HENRIETTE HORAK Dreamers dream dreams of travel and life in far off lands—of the color and drama, and sometimes secrecy, danger, and intrigue which accompany British army life and "secret agent" work, but Col. John Leader has lived such dreams. To him the world is an easy international alphabet of nations. He is at home with China, Arabia, Mongolia, India, and intimate with other world powers.

The University of Oregon claims this charming paragon of wisdom, as a former faculty member, for in 1917, Col. Leader came here from the British war office to help organize an Oregon student body, which at that time was filled with a military "bug," that our government was not prepared to handle.

On his first visit to the campus after an absence of 12 years, rugged English caned and monocled Col. Leader, who gives the appearance of being built of hand-wrought steel, finds the campus increased in beauty—"especially your coeds," he remarked in an interview at his hotel yesterday.

Of the countries of the world, and the present national and international chaotic situation, Col. Leader had much to say. What of Ethiopia, Mussolini,

King Football on Throne Ruling Vast Gathering Of University Dads

Dignified dads began streaming onto the campus yesterday and by game time this afternoon, several hundred are expected to be guests of honor of Oregon. "It's father who pays," ran the old adage but the tables are being turned this weekend, the students exerting every effort to make dad's short stay at the University one he will not soon forget. Frank Bondurant, chairman of the committee in charge, said yesterday.

Football tickets sold briskly yesterday, officials held, the majority being purchased by students for their fathers who are to sit in a special reserved section at the game. Students are to be entitled to sit with their fathers provided they have a student body card. Others must pay regular admission.

The hilarious rally shook dad from his rocking chair last night, serving to get him off to a rousing start on his two day collegiate career.

The executive breakfast this morning was the first scheduled event on the round of activities. At 10 o'clock the dads will congregate in mass meeting in Johnson hall, followed by luncheon with their sons or daughters. Elections of new officers will be on the boards for the mass meeting, it has been announced by Earl Wellington, president.

Sunday the dads will be guests at various living organizations as well as at the churches.

MANY TO SPEAK At the banquet starting at 6:15 tonight, Dr. Frederick M. Hunter, chancellor of higher education, is (Please turn to page three)

Chessman Will Visit Tomorrow

Merle R. Chessman, editor of the Astorian-Budget, president of the Oregon Editorial association, and president of the University of Oregon Alumni association, will be on the campus today to attend the annual Dads' day celebration and to look after official duties here in connection with the alumni and editorial associations.

Col. Leader Interviewed On International Affairs

Italy, and the League of Nations? "Ethiopia is not a nation, but a muddle of warring tribes," Col. Leader explained; "tribes which have been conquered by cultured Haile Selassie. As for Italy, she must expand; no nation can be stopped in its march for expansion. Italy has as much right to the country she is bound to conquer as does Haile Selassie.

"The League of Nations is nothing but a sophisticated joke, and it's attempted sanctions against Italy are even a bigger joke, for Italy can get her necessities of war elsewhere. The league has no armed force, and without it she can do nothing. Besides, the League of Nations is synonymous with the British empire, practically."

If Italy is checked in her attempt in Ethiopia? "Look for a 'red' revolt in France, and in England, Col. Leader predicted. "Also look that your walls of America be strong, or else—!"

Future imperialistic expansion of nations? "As long as the world continues, it is inevitable. In years to come," Col. Leader remarked. "I venture to predict that the Americas, from Alaska to Patagonia will be under your stars and stripes; Europe will probably be (Please turn to page four)
