Callison Counts on Oregon Line to Stop 'Chuck' Chesire

There are certain occurrences that transpire in this game of football that are calculated to take the wind out of the best of sails very suddenly. These occurrences are customarily known as the "breaks" of the game. Under the heading of "breaks" might come such events as fumbles, blocked kicks, dropped passes, and innumerable happenings of the same ilk, in which Lady Luck seems to be the patron saint.

Take for instance the California-Oregon game with the locals staging a determined, methodical advance on the Bear goal line. Every play was working to perfection, and the ball went forward to the vicinity of the Cal 20-yard line. The Oregon backs were in the midst of their shift. Before they were set, their center, injured and groggy, snapped the ball. It rolled well over the 40, untouched. There a disorganized Oregon team recovered it, but their drive was gone. That scoring threat was done for.

Late in the same game Larry Lutz, California tackle, lanced through a tired Oregon line to stop Stan Riordan's punt while it was still balanced on the end of his toe.

Those two slants on the California game exemplify the "break" proper.

Stan Riordan's first punt in that contest sailed far over safety-man Fowler's head. A murmur of surprise and admiration went rolling through the legions of Multnomah stadium. The boot pulled the Webfoots out of a tight place.

"A great kick. A lucky break for Oregon," was the consensus. . . . But the occupants of the stands were wrong. It was a great kick, but skill required through hours of practice gave the ball its impetus, rather than the foot of Lady Luck.

It was natural and excusable to mislabel Riordan's kicking just that once. Later performances show that the apparently phenomenal was merely the habitual with the big end.

He has punted 38 times, in four games, for a total yardage of 1591. It averages out 41.86 per boot, counting the blocked punt which must not have traveled over five yards.

Idaho suffered more than any other opponent from the ravages of that big Riordan boot. Eight times he swung on the oval, and eight times it rose and fell, spiralling, for various distances of from 35 to 70 yards. The afternoon's work averaged 49.33 yards per punt.

At the same time the purportedly premier punters of the Northwest, Logg and Coddard, were matching their wares, at Rogers field, in Pullman. Their 40 and 37 respective averages seem like child's play in comparison to Riordan's efforts.

When Stan leaves the game, Jerry Donnell, substitute fullback, is able to carry out the punting assignments nearly as well. Donnell kicks about the highest, tightest spirals that I have ever seen. . . . Nothing wrong with the length of them either; 39 yards a boot is his average.

It looked as if the Webfoot warriors were going to last the season out without having converted after touchdown. At least that's the way things appeared up till last Saturday. On that day Prink reached into the grab bag and came out with a real place-kicker in the form of Win Pepper, second string guard. . . . The lad really looked as if he knew what he was doing when he rushed in after each touchdown and sent the ball spinning square between the uprights in a most business like manner.

Harts Are Parents Of Baby Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Lance W. Hart are the parents of a baby born at the Pacific hospital Monday morning. The child has not been named as yet. Mr. Hart is assistant professor of drawing and painting on the art school faculty, and both he and Mrs. Hart are active in the Eugene Very Little Theatre group.

Stan Riordan, the Pacific Coast conference's premier punter and perhaps its number one all-around end, will captain Oregon's Webfoots in their highly important game with UCLA in Los Angeles Saturday.

With the Webfoots working feverishly for what is probably the most crucial game of the season, one that will make or break Oregon as a conference contender, choice of Riordan to head the team is entirely fitting. The 6-foot, 3-inch, 194-pound left end has proved himself by far the outstanding kicking artist on the coast and one of the best in the country, but booting the oval is by no means his only forte.

Riordan has starred defensively all autumn and in the Idaho fray surprised his admirers by turning in Oregon's best offensive performance. Against the Vandals, in addition to punting eight times for a phenomenal 49.4 yard average, he snagged three passes and raced 18 yards on end-around plays. Riordan, a one-year letterman, hails from Pasadena.

Announcement of Riordan's selection was made last night by Prink Callison, and at the same time the Duck tutor made known the traveling squad for the Bruin fracas. Thirty-two men will enter for the southern metropolis at one o'clock Thursday morning. "Stop Chesire," Cry of Ducks

Oregon's big task in the UCLA struggle will be to stop the galloping escapades of Mr. Chuck Chesire, the Bruins' prospective all-American fullback, who has been running wild all year. It was Mr. Chesire's unstoppable dashes which enabled Bill Spaulding's hearties to crush Utah State, 39 to 0, and come from behind to beat Oregon State, 20 to 7, and, as a crowning achievement, upset the mighty Indians of Stanford, 7 to 6.

Clearly it will be absolutely necessary for the Webfoots to keep the dynamic Chesire at least reasonably under control if they are to get anywhere against the Bruins. Callison is counting on his line, which from end to end rates on a par with any forward wall on the coast, to put a halt to the dashes of Mr. Chesire. The Webfoots should be able to hold him if any team can.

Chesire isn't the only Uclan back worrying the Oregon board of strategy, for in Fred Funk and Ted Key the Westwood squad has a pair of ball toters who could star on anyone's football team. Gene Shields, Duck line coach, scouted the Bruins in their games with Oregon State and Stanford and brought back glowing accounts of their prowess.

Forward and lateral pass defense is the big order on the Webfoot practice schedule this week, with the offensive aerial game coming in for plenty of work also. Callison is determined to have the team present a stronger obstacle to the Uclans' overhead efforts than it has to those of recent opponents. Since the injury which benched Bud Goodin Oregon's own passing attack has been virtually nonexistent. But Dale Lasselle, Bracher, fullbacks.

General Field

Dick Bishop (above) reserve quarterback who may get a chance to help in planning the pelting of the Bruins of Westwood.

Romey DePittard and Bobby King are working constantly in an effort to improve their heaving proclivities and one of the trio may toss some surprises into the Uclan Saturday.

Last night Callison drilled the lads on perfection of plays for two hours and then took them into the stadium for a bruising scrimmage under the lights with John Warren's ponderous and proficient frosh crew.

Should the Webfoots upset the dopesters and register a touchdown or two against the Uclan, there will be little worry about adding the extra point. Winfred Pepper's two perfect conversions in the Idaho game confirmed the toe artistry he has shown in practice, and Callison no longer is troubled with place kicking deficiencies. Pepper is a 19-year old reserve guard from Fullerton Junior college.

Traveling Squad Listed

The following 32 players, accompanied by Coach Callison, Trainer Bill Hayward and Student Manager Boyd, are scheduled to make the Los Angeles journey: Ed Farrar, Vernon Moore, Denny Braid, Chan Berry, centers; Ross Carter, Tony Amato, Andy Hurney, Winfred Pepper, Joe Houston, guards; Del Bjork, Ken Skinner, John Engstrom, Pat Fury, Bill Foskett, Chuck Shimomura, tackles; Stan Riordan, Budd Jones, Al Wilson, Leif Jacobsen, Leonard Holland, ends; Johnny Reischman, Dick Bishop, Bud Simpson, quarterbacks; Dale Lasselle, Bob Bradock, Romey DePittard, Bobby King, Ray Lopez, Bill Patrick, halfbacks; Frank Michek, Jerry Donnell, Chuck Bracher, fullbacks.

On a 1000-Mile Canoe Voyage

Waiter Davis, 20, and Edward S. Connelley, 21, both of San Mateo, California, are enroute from Seattle on an adventurous 1000-mile voyage to Skagway, Alaska, via the inland passage. They carry food and equipment for a month in an outboard-rigged canoe.

All Campus Tournaments In Progress

Fall Events In Full Swing

Earl Boushey, supervisor of the "all-campus sports," stated yesterday that the various events are well under way, and a large entry list is already posted. There is still plenty of room for more men, however, in all the events.

The all-campus tournaments are held each fall term in tennis, golf, ping pong, and handball. These contests are run on a straight elimination basis, and points are awarded to individual winners, rather than to organizations. In this way, every man on the campus has an equal chance of winning, regardless of whether or not he is a fraternity man, or a member of some organization.

Anyone interested in any of these tournaments should see Mr. Boushey, or his graduate assistant, Marion Wietz, at the men's gym.

The following tournaments are in progress now: handball, singles and doubles; tennis, singles and doubles; ping pong, singles and doubles; and golf.

Frosh Team In Fine Shape

In preparation for the all-important game with the OSC rooks Friday night, Coach John Warren sent his frosh football team through its last tough workout of the week yesterday afternoon on Hayward field.

Although the freshmen have won their first two games handily, they are pointing heavily for the rooks and will undoubtedly open up with wide-open football. All players are in good shape and are ready to go.

The rooks will enter the game undefeated and will be rated favorites on paper because of the fact that they defeated the SON team by a 20 to 0 score while the best the frosh could do against the same team was to eke out a 13 to 12 win.

Friday's game will feature a battle between two potentially great backfields and two strong lines. The Oregon ball-carriers, led by Nickolsen, Anet, Blackman, La-Cau, Veronda, and Gammon, are far above the average while the Oregon State backfield is made up of several former high school stars including Ben Ell, Jay Mercer, John Alexander, and Joe Enzler. Ell and Alexander particularly, are outstanding. Both are fast and capable of breaking away at any minute of the game.

Hunter in Medford

Chancellor Frederick M. Hunter is in Medford today where he will address a meeting of the Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers. He will return to the campus Thursday.

Send the Emerald to your friends.

Cap tain

Outstanding Webfoot punter and wingman whom Coach Callison has chosen to head Oregon forces in the UCLA clash.

Cross-Country Men Practice

The three-year trophy put up by Bill Hayward for the team winning the cross-country intramural race will again be at stake this year. Last year it was won by the Kappa Sigs and they have had it in their possession for one year. If they win it again they will need to win only once more in order to insure permanent possession.

To the winner of this year's race will go a real live turkey for Thanksgiving dinner. Each house must have at least three entries in order to gain any points.

To the winning house 75 intramural points will be awarded. Thirty points will be given for each entry received.

6500 Fans Attend Vandal Contest

Over 300 Oregon Dads took advantage of the special section reserved for them at the Oregon-Idaho game last Saturday, figures released from the graduate office last night proved.

Total attendance at the game was variously estimated from 6500 to 7000 by Ralph Schomp, assistant graduate manager. In addition to the Dads of this number 900 were school children, some 500 were general admission, and 600 reserved seats were sold. The remainder of the spectators were holders of ASUO tickets and other persons connected with the University.

Best Plays '34, '35 Arrive at Librby

Readers "in-the-know" of good books will be pleased to learn that the popular "Spring Came on Forever," by Bess Streeter Aldrich is now available at the University library. The book deals with early pioneering in Nebraska.

Also, there is Best Plays of 1934-35 by Burns Mantle, including such stories as "The Old Maid," a Pulitzer prize winner. "Don Fernando," by W. Somerset Maugham is a reflective picture of Spain in the Golden Age. Another of Archibald MacLeish's plays in verse, "Panic," has recently arrived.

Col. J. Leader

(Continued from Page One) war and since then he has been in every major encounter experienced by the British forces.

At the present time Colonel Leader is engaged in wiping out a gang of racketeers in Canada. He will leave today at 1:00 p. m. for Salem to be presented to the state senate. He will then go to Vancouver via Portland and Seattle.

The first part of the assembly will be taken up with student body business that has been piling up since the beginning of the term and outlining activities for the fall term.

ROTC Building To Be Moved On Drill Grounds

Congressman McSwain Views University Work

The end of December will be moving time for the ROTC building, according to tentative plans. As the new physical education building is to occupy the present military site, the familiar gray building will be moved directly backward toward Hayward field into the north end of the drill grounds.

To date, no plans for a new armory have been formulated. The present building was erected during the World War by the federal government and is of the conventional frame barrack construction. In most cases armories of state colleges have been erected without aid from the army or federal government. However, if the need here is deemed urgent, University officials may petition for WPA or PWA funds to help in building a new military unit.

Congressman McSwain, chairman of the house military affairs committee, who stopped at the University Monday, states that it is unlikely that he can do anything about a new building for Oregon. If steps are to be taken, the University or the state will probably be the only ones qualified to act.

Skull, Dagger

Art Holman and his orchestra have been engaged for the dance and the trio is preparing special arrangements of hits tunes from "Top Hat."

Betas Show Rare Form in Winning Again

Fijis and Yeomen Also Come Through With Victories In Swim Meets

Today's Swim Meet
4:00 p. m.—Phi Gamma Delta vs. Yeomen.
Today's Water Polo Game
4:30 p. m.—Sigma Phi Epsilon vs. Kappa Sigma.

Beta Theta Pi became one of the intramural swimming meet finalists last night by virtue of a crashing victory over ATO, in one of the season's most exciting meets. In order to win 32 to 17, the Betas had to flash some unbelievable time to meet the fast-rushing ATO boys, who swam their hearts off, all to no avail.

Probably the most thrilling race of the evening was the 120 yard free style. In this race the Betas were pushed hard to win but superior swimming by Simpson practically won this event. It was close clear to the finish and Clark Thompson, ATO flash, who was swimming in this meet with a badly infected foot, nearly caught up with the anchor man with a superhuman burst of speed.

The Betas started winning the meet right from the start because they annexed first and second places in the 40 yard free style event in rather lackadaisical style. Hurd and Sexton, Betas, copped these two places.

In the breast stroke event, Thompson, ATO, received the surprise of his life when Hurd just did manage to get his nose ahead of him to the tape.

Thompson, however, won the next race, 40 yard breast stroke, rather handily over Sexton, who seemed to tire toward the end of the race.

In the other meet Phi Gamma Delta scored an easy triumph over the Chi Psi organization, 37 to 9. In this meet, the Fijis who did the damage against Chi Psi were Lichty, Maguire, Seufert, and Schofield. The Chi Psi boys who tried hard were Ramsey, Cole, Wells, and Brooks.

The other race of the evening between the Yeomen and Sigma Phi Epsilon was won by the independent boys via the forfeit route.

Tonight will mark the inception of water polo in this year's intramurals. At 4:30 p. m. Sigma Phi Epsilon will meet Kappa Sigma in the opener.
