

Peace Studies Said Gaining

Christian Council To Meet Monday

Foremost among student Christian groups this term is a study of war and peace—a reflection, according to members of the Student Christian council, of the world-wide unrest which has spread from war-fevered Europe to America.

Nearly every Christian group in the city is making a study of practical peace plans the main program this term.

Demonstration Planned

They plan to culminate the discussions on Armistice day with Sunday night dedication services and some sort of demonstration on Monday, November 11, the anniversary of World war peace.

The Christian council will meet in special session Monday to lay definite plans for appropriate observance of Armistice.

Coalition Seen

This year will probably see a coalition of nearly every organization in the city actively interested in promoting peace. A central committee will promote a demonstration which may well exceed in size and effect that staged by 1100 students last spring.

Interest-creating activity leading up to Armistice day will include visits by Maurice Ballenger and Sherwood Eddy.

Ballenger Speaks Tuesday

Mr. Ballenger, for 15 years a professor in the university at Lucknow, India, will speak Tuesday evening on "Christian Youth and World Brotherhood."

Mr. Eddy, world traveler and long a progressive proponent of peace, will visit the campus November 7.

YWCA Publicists Named for Fall

Phyllis Adams, chairman of the publicity for the campus YWCA, has announced committees which will do newspaper work for fall term. Miss Adams said that the purpose of the various groups will be to utilize publicity to unite the YWCA groups and to show the campus, faculty and townpeople what the organization is accomplishing.

Publicity committees are: Betty Shoemaker, Marian Beth Wolfenden and Helen Calkins, reporters; Roberta Marshall and Lucy Downing, posters; and Barbara Roome, announcements.

Norway and Russia

"The brilliance of Leningrad is due to Catherine the Second (Catherine the Great). She finished the great palace of Petrohof. Petrohof is the great royal residence built by Peter the Great. It is as magnificent as Versailles but does not show such good taste. One room is brilliantly decorated with amber walls and ceilings. "Opposite to public opinion, these palaces are maintained exactly as they were during the reign of the Czars. The little palace where the royal family was before they were taken away by revolutionists was not marred by the marauders. The Czar's desk is exactly as he left it."

Travel in Russia was very comfortable, Bowen stated. The people were kind and courteous and as far as he could see they were happy and contented. Everyone was in working clothes but there were no signs of dire poverty or rags. Bowen points out that he did not go to Russia to study its social conditions. Most people, he observed, left Russia with the same prejudices he came in with, each one confirming what he was looking for. As far as Dr. Bowen's own observations were concerned he came to the conclusion that most things he had read about Russia were false.

Italy Lands Troops in Libya

This is why Great Britain, London reports state, refuses to withdraw her huge fleet from the Mediterranean, pending discussion of French proposals for peace between Italy and Ethiopia. The transport Cesare is shown docking at Tripoli with thousands of Italian troops, part of 17,000 rushed from Rome to the Libyan desert on the border of British-controlled Egypt.

Closer Contact Object of Change In English K

A laboratory technique has been adapted to the teaching of English K this year. The purpose is to bring closer contact between all the students and the instructor so that language errors may be more rapidly eliminated from the work of those who made low ratings on the English placement test.

All the students meet in one section instead of several as in previous years, for such instruction as may be given in lecture form or in mass testing. This saves much useless repetition of the same teaching material by the instructor.

Small laboratory sections of eight to fifteen students then meet so that individuals may work on drills directly under supervision. Tables are provided for the small sections so that it is possible to have some informality and to permit the supervisor to move about easily among the students as they work.

The tests used with the large groups are designed to find out exactly what points the students do not know so that the laboratory instruction may be most effective in correcting difficulties at once. "It is more practical to try to teach a student something which he does not know than to teach him something you think he may not know," said Professor L. Kenneth Shumaker, who is in charge of the English bureau in which the new technique is being applied. The instructor entertains great hopes for better results from the changes made in this year's instruction in English K.

Rooks Hand

rooks were making one. Plainly tiring under the fire, the rooks were twice forced into their own territory, only to hold the charges of Jean LaCau, frosh fullback when he repeatedly fumbled low passes from the frosh center.

Even the bullet passes of Tom Blackman failed to find their mark as Oregon resorted to a passing attack late in the second half. Time and again the ball smacked the hands and bodies of receivers only to bound clear.

Alexander Scores for Rooks
Five minutes after the start of the second half the rooks scored their touchdown.

With the ball in possession of the frosh on their own 29-yard line, fourth down, Blackman, attempting to kick, juggled the ball and was smothered on the 18. It was the rooks' ball on downs. Ben Ell hit left guard for two yards to the frosh 16, where he was stopped by LaCou, and on the next play Ell drove at right guard for six more to the 10, where Blackman dropped him.

Alexander skipped through a hole at center to the 6, where LaCou nailed him. It was a first down for the rooks. On the next play Alexander skirted his left end for a touchdown. Ell's place kick.

Classes Have 47% Increase

New Interest Shown In Home Economics

That there is a much greater interest in home economics courses than ever before is shown by the fact that the enrollment in the home economics department has increased 47 per cent over last year. At the present time there are 266 students enrolled in these classes. It was necessary to create extra sections in the clothing selection, clothing construction, and foods classes to meet the increased demand.

Miss Alice M. Reid, who taught last year in San Jose State Teachers' College in California has taken over the classes formerly taught by Miss Mary Elizabeth Starr who is now teaching at the University of Washington.

The increased enrollment has made necessary an addition to the staff. Mrs. Emma Jean Peterson, who attended Oregon State college and Cornell university will have charge of the classes in home management, child development, and will assist with the clothing construction courses. Mrs. Peterson has taught in Oregon high schools, and was an instructor in household management while at Cornell.

EX-STUDENT AT YALE

Donald H. Saunderson, who received his master's degree at Oregon State last June, is a graduate assistant in the department of chemistry at Yale university, where he is working for his Ph.D. Enroute to New Haven he visited Wallace Campbell, '32, M.S. '34, in New York City.

The game was slowed up by numerous penalties, the rooks suffering losses of 65 yards while the frosh took it on the chin for five. Starting lineups of the game were:

Rooks	Frosh
Coons	LE..... Hinman
Conn	LT..... Morris
Cagle	LG..... Giovanini
McCalley	C..... Taylor
Whitney	RG..... Stevens
Sterling	RT..... Peters
Wendlick	RE..... Yerby
Enzler	Q..... Anet
Alexander	LH..... Buroker
Mercer	RH..... Blackman
Ell	F..... LaCau

Scoring for rooks: Touchdown, Alexander. Point after touchdown, Ell (place kick).

Substitutions for frosh: Nicholson, Veronda, Heinberg, Gammon, Hopper, Chrisman, Niemi; rooks: Orr, Holcomb, Toats, Fugit.

Officials: Doug Lowell, Portland; Abe Cohn, Seattle, umpire; Jack Patrick, San Francisco, field judge; Jerry Buckley, head linesman.

Tall Roping

New York seems to have given Chick Byers, of Texas, world's trick and fancy roping champion, a chance to get his teeth into some real lassoing. Apparently Cowboy Byers is about to rope the Empire State building. But it's only an illusion; Al Smith's towering structure is some 15 blocks away.

With a 9 point lead tucked safely away in the bonnets of the young Beavers, they settled down to a defensive game, showing but occasional bursts of drive. In the meantime, the Oregon frosh pecked at the rook goal—Jimmy Nicholson, sensational young frosh half back doing heavy duty work with the ball carrying.

Two New Trends Seen In Modern Interior Design

"There are two trends of modern interior decoration," said Miss Brownell Frasier, an instructor in interior design at the art school, who has recently studied in Los Angeles with Paul T. Frankl, one of the foremost modern designers. "One trend of decoration is the international modern or functional design furniture which is straight line work. This is the sort of thing in which Paul Frankl is interested. The other type of interior decoration is the classic modern, which includes all French and English 18th century furniture."

Miss Frasier paused while she answered the telephone in her bright, sunny office and continued, "Today the vogue is to use smaller scale furniture in modern forms, making the room seem much larger."

"The vogue for white is now passe and the color trend has turned toward pastel shades for walls and backgrounds. Pastel yellow, dusty pink, chalky blue and chalky coral are outstanding in present color schemes."

"In 1924 the French republic asked the United States to place an exhibit in their decorative arts exhibition. The United States had to reply that this country had no industrial designers who were qualified to participate.

"Between 1924 and 1934 there has developed in the United States a group of outstanding designers in New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles. This group has developed as a result of foreign influence of men from Vienna and France. Our furniture, textiles, clothes, and art have all been definitely influenced by other countries."

Miss Frasier smiled genially and said, "It is interesting to note that the movies have had a great influence over American culture. Before 1924 our 'coutumiers' bought clothes from France. Joan Crawford was the woman who started creating her own styles, and now Hollywood is setting the example for Paris fashions."

Before the war France was the dictator in all art France lead with the Beaux Art school, interior decorating, clothes, and music, Miss Frasier said.

"Just since the war have we come into our own. Paul Frankl came to this country 25 years ago from Vienna. We can thank him for educating the American public. The beauty of Frankl's modern furniture is that it is functional and simple. He has an entire floor in Radio City supplied with his furniture."

"History has shown that there are always reverses, and now 18th century furniture is coming back, although it has never actually gone out."

Lutheran Students To Have Seminar

The Lutheran Student association of Oregon is backing a religious seminar under the direction of Rev. William Schoeler, Litt. D. The first meeting of the group will be held in the YMCA hut next Sunday afternoon at 5:00.

The topic for discussion will be "Jesus' World and the World Today." Following the seminar refreshments will be served and an informal program will be offered.
