

Annual Kwama Get Wise party for co-eds is followed tonight by a rally dance for all at the Green Parrot Palms. Girls attend both, men the latter.

Homecoming activities step into full swing this week. Sign committee heads announced in today's Emerald.

Get Wise Party Will Be Tonight

Kwamas Entertain New Campus Women From 7:00 to 8:30 At Gerlinger Hall Gym

The "Get Wise" party given by Kwama, sophomore woman's service honorary, will be held tonight from 7 until 8:30 in the gym of Gerlinger hall in honor of new women on the campus.

The time will not interfere with the rally dance which is also scheduled for tonight beginning at 7:30. Freshman women are asked not to have dates until after the "Get Wise" party, Hazel P. Scherwing, dean of women, said.

For entertainment skits have been planned by campus groups reviewing activities open to all women students and those activities especially interesting to freshman women. This party is given in collaboration with the AWS activity plan formulated at the conference held early this term.

Groups having skits include Philomelete, AWS, YWCA, and WAA. The nature of these skits is not to be known until presentation, however.

Directorate Named The directorate appointed by Gayle Buchanan, president of Kwama includes: Isobelle Miller, program; Erma Huston, and Genevieve McNiece, refreshments; Gretchen Smith, decorations; Hal-lie Dudley, music; and Betty Rosa, publicity.

All women on the campus have been invited and a special invitation has been sent to freshman women and new women transferred here from other schools.

Fresh counsellors will again appear in their official positions escorting their freshman women to the affair as an annual function included in their list of activities. Buck McGowan will play for dancing during the evening. Refreshments will also be served.

Recent Books Put on Rent Shelf

Three new plays and an outstanding novel swell the number of volumes in the rental section of the University library. Miss Rise, circulation librarian, reports the arrival of "Accent on Youth," which, as the critics say, has style, and "White Man" by Samson Raphaelson, whose viewpoints are "urbane and witty," and "Sailors of Cattaro," full of power of truth and daring, by Friedrich Wolf. Also, "Three Men on a Horse," a three-act comedy by John Cecil Home and George Abbott, is among the rentals. The novel is Sigrid Undset's "The Longest Years," the most personal and revealing piece of work of the author so far. It gives an intimate insight of the personality of one of the greatest living writers.

"The Dancer's Quest," by Elizabeth Seldon is also new. "Trailing Cortez Through Mexico," by Harry T. Franck, the "prince of vagabonds," will be placed on the seven-day shelf.

Band Gets Down to Work; Cigarettes, Pipes Banned

The University band has got down to work in earnest. Ask anybody! The girls have come again and the concert season is getting under way. Heavy rehearsals are being conducted by John Stehn and there's no horse-play tolerated; absolutely none!

The boys, as usual, were enjoying their last minute cigarettes when John called for order. He didn't get it quickly enough so he called again (and could have been heard clear to the mill-race). Supposing he meant it, the lads piped down to hear any pearls he might care to cast.

"No more cigarettes—or pipes! We now have ladies in the band and they don't like it!" Then rehearsal started. All the heavy numbers in which our A-1 band excels and the gentlemen of

Green Lids May Appear

Council Plans Hats As Honor Badges

Green lids worn as a badge of honor instead of as a sign of punishment, may make their appearance on the campus in the near future, if plans of the frosh council materialize.

The council, which met yesterday at three o'clock in the Y hut decided to start a new tradition by having freshmen wear the green lids as a sign that they are freshmen and proud of it, just as upper classmen wear the time-honored cords.

Hats Make Class Spirit It was pointed out at the meeting that green hats will allow the frosh to recognize each other and to become acquainted as well as giving a chance for better class spirit. Members of the council will contact their fellow freshmen during this week in an effort to get the sentiment of the class on the subject. If it is found that the majority of the frosh favor wearing lids, a supply will be purchased by the council and sold.

Council members also decided at the meeting yesterday to offer their services to members of the vigilante committee which has been organized in an effort to keep order during the homecoming game with Oregon State. The committee consists of freshmen and is headed by Bud Burnett.

Larger Attendance Favored A vote in favor of attendance at lectures and assemblies was taken by the group and members will endeavor to get a larger attendance at these meetings.

Dudley Miller, vice-president of the council, was appointed personnel officer to have charge of notifying members of meetings.

Ballenger Discusses World Fellowship, Youth

Prime essentials for world fellowship are knowledge of each other and the kind of "soul force" typified by Ghandi's non-resistance to violence philosophy. Professor Maurice Ballenger told a group gathered in the Alumni room of Gerlinger hall last night.

The speaker, a teacher in India for 15 years and recently returned from trips through Italy, France, Palestine, and England, declared that everywhere the youth of the country were building a new world. He deplored the fact that this world which they seek to create is a selfish one and is not based on world fellowship which, he said, is necessary before the Extension Adds Courses

'Living Writers' Course Offered

Two new courses have recently been added to the extension division of the University of Oregon, which already offers over 100 correspondence courses. Professor S. Stephenson Smith of the English department has prepared a course in "Living Writers," and Professor Victor P. Morris of the economics department offers the course, "Economics of the Recovery Program."

According to Miss Mozelle Hair of the extension division these courses are planned especially for teachers' study groups but are also open to individuals. These two new courses are the first to be designed especially for study groups.

Arranged in three sections of 16 assignments each, the "Living Writers" course will center on a study of literary types as exemplified in the work of English writers of the last thirty years. It will also include a study of social ideas expressed in recent drama and novels and a study of the psychological novel.

Professor Morris' course will deal with problems confronting the world during the last five years. It will attempt an interpretation of the moves made during the period to bring about recovery of economic conditions.

Two hours credit may be obtained from the economic course and three from the literature course.

Decision 'No' On Connelly

Group Says Grant Not Within Authority

In a second and final decision the faculty committee on military education yesterday refused to exempt Gordon M. Connelly, sophomore in journalism, from ROTC drill.

The "test" case proved definitely that the only two bases for exemption by the committee are conscientious objection and heavy work schedules. Connelly's attempt to open a third channel through which objectors to drill could find exemption was thwarted after the faculty committee had considered his case for over an hour and a quarter.

The committee's official statement, explaining the refusal, said:

"Mr. Connelly's second petition presented no new facts in support of his claim for exemption. To grant Mr. Connelly's request would amount to making military training optional, which is not within this committee's authority."

"The problem of compulsory military training in this University can never be settled until it is settled right, Connelly declared last night, reiterating his intention to continue to demand exemption. He said he would petition the faculty to recommend either optional military training, or an exemption in his case to the state board of higher education.

Opening the hearing yesterday, the committee was asked to admit S. Eugene Allen, student, to sit in on the session. After a 10 minute discussion the committee refused him admittance, deciding that since (Please turn to page three)

Former Pi Alpha Delta Chapter to Reorganize

Reorganization of the Williams chapter of Pi Alpha Delta, legal honorary dormant in the University since world war days, was confirmed yesterday by members of the student committee who have been working since summer for the revival of the fraternity. Cited as a forward step in the history of the Oregon law school, reorganization of the local chapter has gained the support and sanction of law school and University faculty members. Competition between the newly reorganized Pi Alpha Delta and Phi Delta Phi, the other legal honorary here, will create a more aggressive atmosphere around student body and scholastic activities, faculty members believe.

Those instrumental in reviving the organization who will be initiated Friday, November 1, are: Duncan McKay, Alton Hakanson, Donald Burke, Edward L. McKeon, Phillip Hayter, Richard Kriesien, Keith Wilson, Hale Thompson, Herman Hendershot, Ray Mize,
