World News
A new Emerald feature column by campus leader Tex Thomason will bring readers world-wide news coverage.

VOLUME XXXVII

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, EUGENE, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1935

NUMBER 31

STAGE of the WORLD

By Tex Thomason

Whether the editor came to me or whether I went to him is immaterial. I'm here. For a while, anyway.

The purpose of this column is many fold. Among its most idealistic intents is that of interpreting the news, and the events making that news, in the world outside the campus. Of course none of you will get hotter than a little red wagon about this endeavor and there is really no need to remind you that this is only a very feeble effort to emulate Edwin C. Hill and Frederick Wm. Wyle. But, like sulphur and molasses in the spring time, it is intended for your own good.

There is one boon this column hopes to grant to the catch-as-catch-can college student. It is that of being able to instantaneously start up a conversation with an unknown "sororite" through the expedient of an intelligent discussion of world and national events without the aid of what all confirmed swains used to use, "Let's go peel a banana," or "Shall we take a dip in the pool?"

Answers to the best of our ability will be given as to why Italy is on the make for Ethiopia, why peace is a really big-time racket, what the general election in England means in the pattern of world affairs, why Senator Borah is called "the fence-straddler magnificent," why China is singing the blues while Japan strums the guitar of imperialism, why Hitler poses kissing babies while Mussolini stands arms akimbo playing the meanie, and so on.

These are happenings in the world of today. Every educated person should know the whys and wherefores of them. Yet how many read only the comic section of the paper. It is read because it is interesting, but how much more interesting is the real life swirling and eddying all around us. If what people are doing can be informatively yet interestingly interpreted we believe it will be read. That, then, is our initial goal—to put before you the national and international affairs of the day in the vernacular of our times. Your understanding of them will follow.

Three New Patients Added to Infirmary

With three new occupants, the total number of patients in the infirmary was raised to nine. Those who entered yesterday were Edwin Waisanen, William Sanford, and John Brocher.

Those who have been in for several days are Mary Arnsperger, Pearl Johansen, June Tedford, Barbara Ketchum, Frances Johnston, and Frank Goodin. They are all reported to be improving.

Music Critic Spaeth Talks November 21

Piano Illustrations To Feature Talk of Radio's Famous 'Tune Detective'

By VIRGINIA ENDICOTT
Termed America's most popular speaker and writer on music, Sigmund Spaeth will bring a novel kind of lecture to this campus when he addresses a general assembly Thursday, November 21, in Gerlinger hall.

Dr. Spaeth will discuss the art of enjoying music, and will illustrate his subject plentifully at the piano. Those who enjoy music in its lighter phases will find entertainment in his informal style. Famous as Critic

Although best known as the "Tune Detective" of radio, Dr. Spaeth is famous as a music critic. He wrote for the New York Evening Mail, New York Times, and Boston Transcript, as well as for several leading magazines. He is now music editor of McCall's magazine.

In addition to his writings and radio program, Sigmund Spaeth has appeared in the screen in a number of short pictures of his own creation; some are still to be released by Vitaphone. He appeared early this season at the Radio City music hall, and currently in the revue, Sunday Nights at Nine, at the Barbizon-Plaza. Writes Thirteen Books

Of the thirteen books he has written, his latest is most popular, "The Art of Enjoying Music," just published by Whittlesey House, New York. His "Common Sense of Music," "Read 'Em and Weep," and "Barber Shop Ballads" are still popular with those who like the lighter touch of humor with sound information.

Dean Landsbury Chosen Critic

To Judge Piano Contest At Seattle Music Meet

While thousands of others are passing their plates for second helpings of Thanksgiving turkey, John J. Landsbury, dean of the University school of music, will push back his chair and dash for a train to Seattle, according to plans which he announced yesterday.

Dean Landsbury has been chosen judge of piano competition in the eleventh annual Seattle-King county music meet on Friday, November 29. Grade and high school musicians will compete morning, afternoon, and evening in the contest, which will take place in the auditorium of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce building.

The other principal judge will be Fred LaFond, widely-known Spokane violinist.

Library Honors Authors at Tea

Recognition of this year's "Reading for Fun" National Book week will be evidenced by the tea given in the alumni room of Gerlinger hall at 4 o'clock Tuesday, November 19, honoring campus authors.

Among those honored at the tea sponsored by the University library are Mrs. Alice Ernst, author of "High Country," Dr. Ernest Moll, and S. Stephenson Smith, whose "Command of Words" has just been published. Displays of all books by local writers will be exhibited. Students, faculty members and townspeople are invited to attend.

Old Publications Received at Library

Works of John Donne, D.D., and a memoir of his life by Henry Alfred, has been received at the University library. Donne was dean of St. Paul's church in London from 1621 to 1631. A partial set of Magazines, a German publication of Ludwig Hergig, published in 1883, has also arrived.

Betrothed

Such is the fate of Bill Cottrell who portrays Prince William, the young nobleman whose engagement to the daughter of "The Queen's Husband" is the cause of many a humorous situation in the University theatre's play which opens Friday.

'Queen's Husband' To Run Two Weekends

Tickets are now on sale in the box office in the administration building for "The Queen's Husband," the University theatre's fast-moving comedy-satire of royal life starring Alice Hult and Prof. John Casteel. The first performance is scheduled for Friday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Seats are priced at thirty-five cents for general admission and fifty cents for reserved. Seats may be obtained by either calling at the box office in the administration building or telephoning 3900, local 216. The box office will be open today from 1 to 4 p. m. and Friday and Saturday from 10 a. m. until curtain time.

Under the new playing schedule "The Queen's Husband" will be presented twice this weekend, November 15 and 16, and will be repeated the following Friday and Saturday, November 22 and 23.

NYA Students Receive $17,215

Student relief amounting to $17,215 under the NYA has been paid 1148 students in 23 Oregon institutions of higher education for one month's work.

Of the total amount, Oregon State college received $4,335 for 289 students. At the University of Oregon, 280 students received $4,200 in aid. Willamette university got $930 for 62 students. At the University 11 graduate students received a total of $150, and at the college, $160 was given as aid to 10 graduate students.

Dahlberg Directs Speech Program

Under the direction of Prof. W. A. Dahlberg, of the speech division, who is also Lane county chairman of the Oregon Tuberculosis association, speech students are inaugurating a campaign of county speaking in order to get more support in the Christmas seal sale from outlying communities.

Kessler Cannon, student of speech, has already addressed three groups: the Lowell P.T.A. on November 5; the Coburg P.T.A. on November 6, and the Lorane high school P.T.A. on November 7. Orval Etter addressed the Roosevelt junior high school general assembly Wednesday, November 13.

Onthank to Address Mothers in Portland

Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel, will go to Portland Friday, where he will address the mothers of freshmen at a tea given them by the Portland Mothers' club. His topic will concern the two boys who are attending University this year on Portland Mothers' club scholarships.

Only 15 more Emeralds will be published this term. The last issue is on December 7, nine days before final exams. There will be no papers on the Friday and Saturday following Thanksgiving day, November 28.

De Villiers Here Monday

To Address Student Groups During Stay

Cornelius de Villiers, visiting professor under the auspices of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, will arrive on the University of Oregon campus November 18, where he will remain for one month.

Dr. de Villiers is dean of the faculty of science at Stellenbosch university in South Africa. He was educated in Africa and in Europe where he attended the University of Zurich, receiving there his doctor's degree.

While on the campus Dr. de Villiers will address the students in general assembly, as well as various groups, on international relations and on scientific matters. He will speak at the joint meeting of the University and OSC chapters of Sigma Xi, science honorary.

Dr. de Villiers will address the medical school in Portland, and also give a general speech in Portland on international relations and the peace movement.

As a visiting professor in this series, Dr. de Villiers served at the University of New Mexico September 23 to October 19 and at the University of California at Los Angeles October 21 to November 16.

S. S. Smith Asked For Style Rule By Prisoners

From an inmate of Michigan state prison comes a request to Professor S. Stephenson Smith for a copy of the style-rule which Professor Smith designed last year for use in English classes.

The rule is to be used in the class in rhetoric of the prison school where several students are seeking to realize their ambition of learning to write for publication. This convict-student, having read a description of the style-rule in a recent issue of the Christian Science Monitor, believes that it will be a definite guide for him and his classmates toward their goal of successful authorship.

This device was brought out by Professor Smith last spring. The cards which are put together in the form of a slide-rule contain the fundamentals of grammar, rhetoric, punctuation, and capitalization. The technical terms of old formal grammar are largely replaced by every day language.

This style-rule is being used at present in the freshman English composition classes at the University.

Martin May Veto Optional Fee Bill

Developments in Salem yesterday indicated the optional fee bill recently passed by the state legislature may be cancelled by the governor's veto. An opinion to this effect was written Wednesday by Ralph E. Moody, deputy attorney general.

Moody contended the legislature acted without authority, since a successful referendum on the proposal had been carried on last spring.

Should the governor heed Moody's opinion the fee question will go before the voters in the general election of November, 1936.

Amendment to Constitution Should Be Defeated

Last spring there emerged from the political fiasco a victorious political party, one of the platform planks of which was the creation of a position on the executive council for the independent student.

Now a petition has been presented providing an amendment to the constitution creating an "elective office on the executive council known as the independent executive position . . . who shall not be a member, pledge, or associate member of any living organization during his term in office."

President Blais and his political colleagues are to be complimented on their attempt to fulfill the campaign promise of last year. No doubt they are sincere in wishing that active participation in student government be more widely distributed among both affiliated and unaffiliated persons. But the proposed amendment as present is wrong in principle.

Do those students who are inclined to favor this amendment actually believe that it will provide increased opportunity for student activity? What is to prevent independents from being ignored from further consideration in "ticket" politics if they have been "adequately taken care of" by special legislation?

The Emerald believes that those students, (and this body includes those without fraternity and sorority walls) who at present are overlooked by the tight political system, really want active participation in student affairs. They do not want an isolated position on the executive council whose business is in the main appellate and without direct contact with the appointment of dance and function chairmanships. They want an equal hearing as possible candidates for office. They want JOBS that offer prestige and publicity and contact with other people. To place them in the executive council does not accomplish this.

The Emerald realizes that all University students are not given an equal chance in activities. It is a result of the political dominance of certain groups and a direct outgrowth of the method of exchanging favors among the politicians. This too is inevitable, who played the major roles in placing him in office. This situation try as he may the student body president cannot overlook those must and will be remedied.

However this proposed political "plum" is sour. And regardless of the good intentions of those behind it—IT SHOULD BE DEFEATED.

Change in Photo Schedule Made

Deadline for Oregon Portraits Is Dec. 15

With the studio photography for the 1936 Oregona well under way at the present time, Margaret Ann Morgan, sororities editor, announced yesterday a re-schedule of appointments for those organizations which have not had pictures taken.

Completion of the list includes: November 14, Alpha Phi; November 15, Kappa Alpha Theta; November 18, Omega hall; November 19, Gamma hall; November 20, Alpha Omicron Pi; November 21, Sigma Kappa; November 22, Phi Sigma Kappa; November 25, Orids; and November 26, Yeomen.

No individual pictures of students registered this term will be accepted for publication in the

Ted Karafotias Is Class Leader

Ted Karafotias, former student and star of many University productions, has been chosen president of the entering class at the Pasadena Community Playhouse, where he enrolled for the first time on October 18. He left the University the early part of this term.

Karafotias will be remembered for his Paraclete in the "Chief Thing," and as Stanton in "Dangerous Corner." A more recent role and one in which he was lauded for his display of talent was his interpretation of Shakespeare's Mercutio.

His election as head of his class came at a meeting of the entire student body which was attended by such notables as Eddie Guest and Bulgoskova, director of the Moscow Art theatre.

'Toastmasters' To Organize

A discussion group, tentatively named the Toastmaster club, will be organized November 21 at the Y hut. The club, to which both men and women of college age are welcome, is being planned by a committee composed of Glen Griffith, YMCA secretary; Betty Hughes, YWCA secretary; and Howard Lee.

At the meeting next Thursday, officers will be elected and organization plans made. In all probability a discussion will be held on the topic, "Relationships of Young Men and Women in Marriage and Home Preparation."

Any student interested in a discussion group is urged to attend the first meeting next Thursday at 7:30 at the Y hut.

ASUO Card Good At Portland Game

Seattle Game Ticket Sale Opens Monday

No tickets will be needed by students for the Oregon-University of Portland football game next Saturday, Tom Stoddard, assistant graduate manager, declared yesterday, as admittance will be by student body card. Tickets for the Oregon-Washington game will go on sale Monday morning at the graduate manager's office.

Word received here made known that no special student train will be dispatched from Eugene to Seattle, however a cut-rate will be in effect. Plans for a special University of Oregon caravan are now under way to take students en masse by automobile to view the Duck-Husky clash, Saturday, November 23.

Plans for the caravan, which will have a special state police escort, will be completed before the end of the week, student directors stated. Tickets for the Oregon-Washington game may be obtained any day next week for $1, tax included, to students having ASUO cards.

Perreten Speaks To Law Students

Law school students are receiving helpful suggestions in the use of law books and particularly their indexes and bibliographies this week in four lectures by Paul H. Perreten, representative of the West Publishing company of St. Paul, Minnesota. Mr. Perreten is a graduate of the University of Missouri law school and has practiced law four years at Oakland, California.

Similar lectures are being sponsored in all law schools throughout the United States, Mr. Perreten said yesterday.

Plans Formulated For 'Relations' Meet

Plans for a meeting in the near future of all students interested in the International Relations conference will be formulated at a meeting of the International Relations committee at three o'clock this afternoon in the Y hut.

The meeting will be for the purpose of contacting all University students who expect to attend.

Cities' League Mails Recent Bills Bulletin

The League of Oregon Cities, with offices located in Friendly hall, is mailing the final bulletin discussing the bills passed during the recent session of the legislature. Bulletins will be sent to 750 city officials of Oregon.

Third Installment On Student Fees Must Be Paid Today

Today is the final day for payment of the third installment of student fees. Students who do not pay today are subject to a fine of 25 cents a day until they pay. Anyone who is still delinquent in payment next week will be liable to suspension from the University.

Fees may be paid at the cashier's office in Johnson hall from 8 a. m. until 12 noon, and 1 p. m. until 3 p. m.

Infirmary Bid Waits Final OK

Hammond Company Low With $153,267

Oregon's new infirmary came a step closer to actual construction yesterday with the announcement that the Ross B. Hammond company, Portland contractor, had filed the lowest bid, $153,267. Awarding of the contract will be delayed for two or three days pending the decision of the state board of higher education.

An alternate bid providing for elimination of the third floor of the proposed building was also submitted by the Hammond company at a figure of $107,626. The same company has the contract for the new library which is now being constructed.

Construction on the infirmary, which will be located at the corner of Thirteenth and Onyx, is expected to start soon, since all PWA project work must get under way before December 15.

The building committee of the state board is again advertising for bids for the Oregon State infirmary as the lowest previous bid was $18,000 above the $93,000 allotted. These bids will be called some time in early December. C. R. Wayman of Portland was second low bidder on the University infirmary contract with an estimate of $156,056. Stein Brothers of Eugene were third at $157,000.

Extension Work Becomes Habit In Watkins Family

When three generations of a family take courses from the extension division of the University of Oregon, it seems that the extension work must be either excellent or have grown into a habit.

According to Miss Mozelle Hill of the extension division, Mary Watkins of Arago, Oregon, who recently enrolled in an English composition course, is the third generation of the Watkins family to take correspondence work from the University of Oregon.

Mrs. Maryalice Hill Watkins, mother of Mary Watkins, took a short story writing course in 1928 and 1929. Mrs. Watkins was graduated from the University of Oregon in 1907 and received her B.A. degree.

Becoming interested in her daughter's work, Mrs. Myrtle Price Hill of La Grande, Oregon, enrolled in a versification course which she finished in 1933. Mrs. Hill had taken two years at Pacific college in Newberg, Oregon.

Following her grandmother's footsteps, Mary Watkins enrolled for a course from the extension division after she graduated from high school in 1935. Miss Watkins plans to attend the University of Oregon next year.

Dean and Assistant To Speak Out of Town

Alice B. Macduff, assistant dean of women, is leaving today for Grants Pass, where she will speak before the Business and Professional Women's club of that city. She will return Friday.

Dean Scherwing will address a meeting of the Women's club and the girls' league of Pendleton today, and will go to Portland Friday to attend the tea given by the Portland Mothers' club for freshmen mothers. She will return to the campus Saturday.

Quiet Marks Political Field Before Voting

Question Arises Concerning Exact Definition of Term 'Living Organization'

Proposed amendments to the ASUO constitution creating the position of independent representative on the executive council will be put before the students on the ballot Friday when they go to the polls to select a junior finance officer, it was officially ascertained last night.

ASUO President James Blais announced last night that the names on the petition read before an association meeting Friday had been verified and that more than the required hundred students had signed it.

Blais Defines Term
Should the amendments, introduced by student initiative, be passed, one student not affiliated as "a member, pledge, or associate member of any living organization during his term of office" will be added to the council.

"In interpreting the wording of the petition, I would define a living organization as either a fraternity or a sorority," Blais stated last night. "I believe that the petition was designed to bring certain representation to all those students who live in the hall and the co-op," the president stated in an attempt to explain the somewhat ambiguous wording of the petition.

Dorms Claim Membership
Students living in the dormitories, however, when called last night, expressed the opinion that they were members of living organizations.

Political Activity Slow
Political activity was markedly quiet yesterday. Neither the group backing Frank Nash nor the faction behind Kermit Paulsen had indicated that they would attempt to organize and force the campaign.

Fear of a split in the present set-up before the usually hard fought spring election was advanced as the factor behind the sluggish state of campus politics.

Voting will start with the opening of the polls early Friday morning. A list of ASUO members is now being prepared in order to determine who shall have the right to vote.

F. P. Catoy Writes Philippine Thesis

Fausto P. Catoy, Filipino, working for his master's degree in education, has completed a thesis which he has been working on for about four years. It is entitled "The Development of Education in the Philippine Islands." Dean James R. Jewell, of the school of education, hopes to have it printed by the bureau of education at Washington.

Dean Jewell says, "It will be an authoritative mine of information in the future," and declares that there is no publication in Washington, D. C., at the present time that can equal it.

He will take his master's examination around Christmas time, and plans to return to the islands around March 1, when he will be made an official in the Philippine school system.
