SEAMLESS PIGSKIN LIABLE TO AFFECT RIORDAN'S KICKING

OREGON INTRAMURAL SYSTEM HONORED BY UTAH AGGIE INVITE

By TOM McCALL

The highest longest punts that can be produced in Pacific coast football will spiral their way through the ether of the University of Washington stadium, next Saturday, when Stan Riordan of the Webfoot ranks tangles with Elmer Logg, ace Husky booter. Riordan, with a 42½ yard average for the season, has shaded Logg's autumn's average by an even two yards per thump. Whether big Stanley has his six foot lead by this time next week is a true matter of conjecture. He's up against a tough proposition when he attempts to boot the seamless type of spheroid that Logg has been so successful with this year. The so-called seamless ball that Washington uses, is a little "chubbier" than the one that the Webfoots employ, and it has a live spot on the under side. For the last few practice sessions Riordan has been trying his luck with the Logg seamless special. The ball doesn't seem to be adapted to his long, narrow pedal extremity, with the result that there is a great loss of accuracy and loosening of spiral. Washington, as the home team, has the choice of using any legal ball it wants to. Naturally, the Huskies won't change, so it's up to Riordan to revamp his arch work in the next few days.

Slight compensation for the seamless potato is the broken rib received by Husky Jimmy Cain in the California encounter. Whether the clever halfback will be in shape for the Oregon encounter is questionable.

In the recent University of Portland game Jerry Donnell put on a fine exhibition of defensive and offensive fullbacking. He was spilling the Pilots in the slip of Multnomah field with hard tackles, and he punted ten nice high ones of 34 yards apiece. Under most methods of punt distance computation both he and Riordan would have much higher averages than they now do. The general practice on the coast is to measure length of a kick that has rolled over the goal line, by the distance from the line of scrimmage to the 20 yard line, where the end zone ball has been taken. In figuring the yardage of such boots, many eastern scribes measure from the line of scrimmage to the goal line, reasoning that the cut of bounds rule would also apply to the end zone. The use of such a system as the latter would give Riordan and Donnell an average of approximately 41 and 50 yards, respectively.

Oregon's efficient intramural system and its administrative methods have long been the envy of many a school in all sections of the West. The handling of some 400 young men in competition over a nine month period, has been going on for years without a slip up. What's more, the aforesaid competition has been as fierce and of as high a caliber as any even at much larger schools.

Those are a few of the reasons that Paul Washke, administrator of Webfoot intramural athletics, won't spend the coming summer in Eugene. Yesterday Washke accepted an invitation to spend the hot months at the Utah Agricultural college. The Aggies have been after him for some time. He's going there to outline Oregon's donut strategy in preparation for its inception on the Utah campus in the fall of 1936.

Ducks Show Spirit After Pilot Game

Oregon Squad Eager To Upset Washington; Goodin and Coddling Ready for Action

Vim, vigor and vitality characterized the workout of Oregon's Webfoots last night as they began preparation for their traditional battle with the University of Washington at Seattle Saturday.

For the first time in a week the first string was sent through a scrimmage session. Regulars and reserves took turns on defense against John Warren's frosh, who used Washington plays. Pepper and fire were apparent everywhere, with the players freely expressing determination to eat up the heavily-favored Huskies.

All Duck players came through Saturday's 6-to-0 victory over Portland university unscathed, and all will be in shape for the Seattle fray. Bud Goodin, now recovered from the brain concussion he suffered in the Oregon State game, and Budd Jones, who was kept out of the Pilot fight because of a minor injury are ready to go.

Even Clarence Coddling, out since the Utah game with a leg ailment, is now in tip-top condition. Colonel Bill Hayward, Oregon's veteran trainer, has fashioned a clever brace for the guard's leg, and Coddling may be able to relieve Tony Amato against the Huskies.

The reserves did most of the work against Portland, but it took a long march by the regulars in the third period to win for the Webfoots. Cruncher Frank Michke, Romey DePittard, and Jerry Donnell were Oregon's backfield stars, while in the line it was Lief Jacobsen and John Engstrom, both second-stringers, who stole the show.

Jacobsen, sophomore from Jefferson high, was a surprise on both offense and defense and may get a chance against Washington. As a whole, the second string Webfoots looked none too strong in the Pilot tilt and this week Prink Callison plans to spend a fair share of time in an effort to buoy his reserve strength.

Washington Is Favorite On the basis of comparative scores against California, Oregon would seem to rate a slight edge over Washington, but showing of the Huskies in other games and general public opinion will doubtless make them definite pre-game favorites.

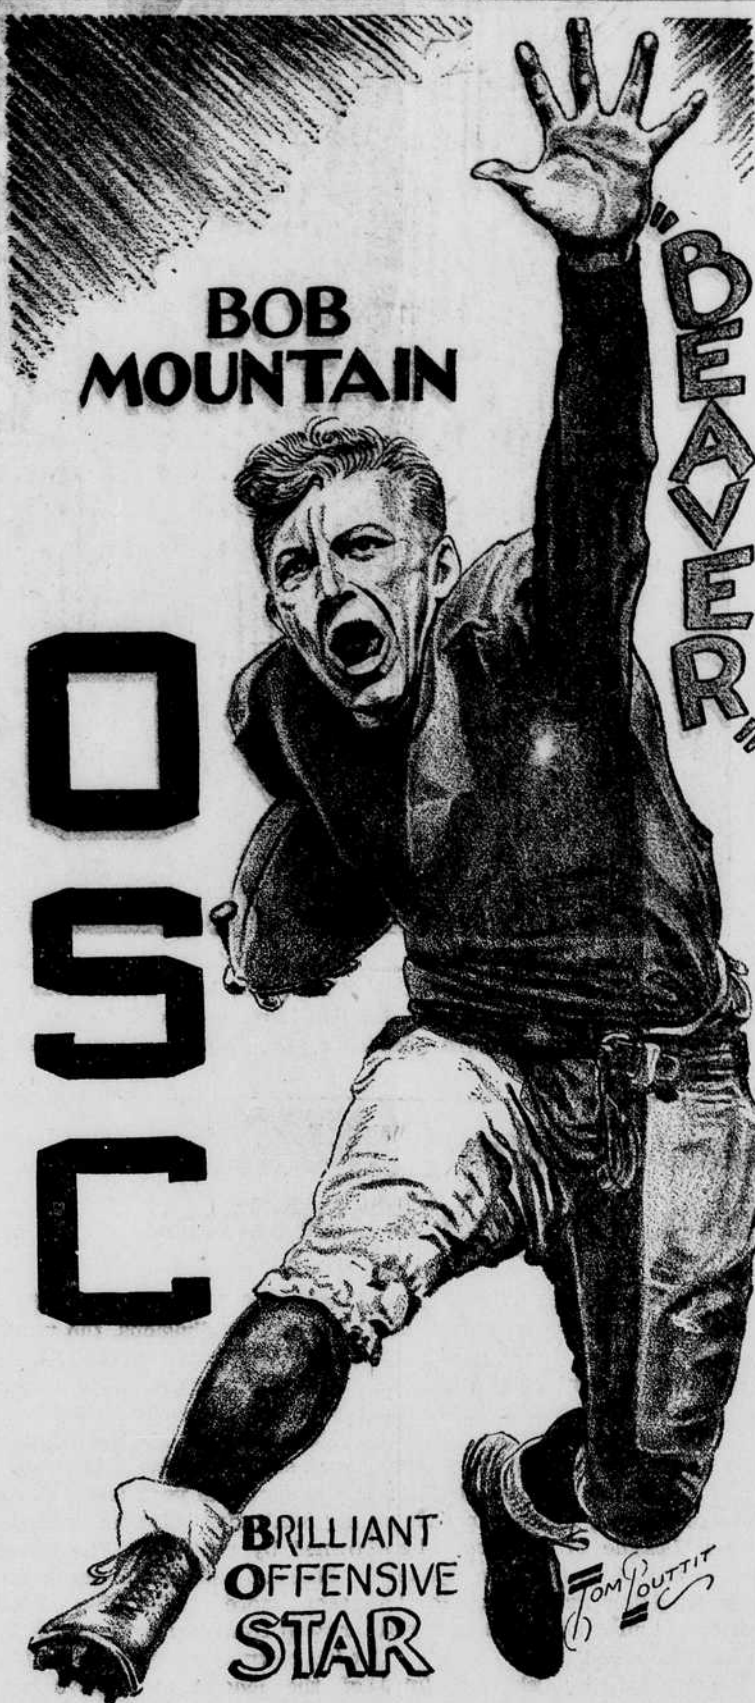

The Webfoots lost to California only 6 to 0, while the Huskies were shoved under by the Bears by a two-touchdown margin. Against Idaho, only other mutual opponent, Oregon won, 13 to 0, and Jimmy Phelan's charges thumped the Vandals, 14 to 0.

Shields Says Ducks Have Chance Gene Shields, line coach and chief of Oregon scouts, believes the Webfoots are likely to spring a surprise. "The Ducks stand a good chance of winning if the lads play up to standard and the line functions as well as it did against Oregon State," he said yesterday.

Shields, who has witnessed several of Washington's games has plenty of respect for Washington, however. "The Husky team is a match for any football team on the Pacific coast," he continued.

Huskies Strong All Around "In all-around strength Washington doesn't have to bow to any coast eleven," Shields said. "Her line is admittedly as strong as last year's and her 1934 sophomore star backs, Jimmy Cain, Elmer Logg, and Byron Haines, have developed into brilliant and consistent ball players with a season's experience under their belts.

Betas Lose First Donut Tilt of Year

Sig Eps, Phi Delt, ATO, and Phi Psis Register Victories In Volleyball Tilts

Beta Theta Pi went down to a stinging defeat for the first time this year in intramural athletics when their "B" team lost to Sigma Phi Epsilon in volleyball by 15-13 and 15-8 scores. In losing, the Betas put up one of the most herculean battles ever seen on the men's gym floor. It was only after the SPE boys had practically crushed their forward wall with "killer-shots" that the mill-race sextet decided to call it an evening.

Phi Psi Team Cracks Fijis After battling through a hectic first game and emerging victorious, Phi Psi won the second game with comparative ease. Each team played furiously throughout the first game but the Phi Psi team managed to have just enough push to win by a 17-15 score after the Fijis had come from behind to tie the score at 15-15 all.

In the second game, Phi Psi breezed through with very little effort and won by the lopsided score of 15-5.

ATO Beats Phi Sigma Kappa Because Phi Sigma Kappa did not have five other players of equal caliber with their star, Frank Hitchcock, they lost by overwhelming scores of 15-8 and 15-7. The only other player who performed brilliantly for the Phi Sigs was Ed Anderson.

The ATO team, in winning, showed brilliant spurts of class. At times, however, their attack bogged down and their defense appeared weak. For ATO, Ben Grout performed well.

Wintemute Stars for PDT Led by lanky "Slim" Wintemute, Phi Delta Theta came through in brilliant style to beat Sigma Alpha Epsilon by easy scores of 15-8 and 15-2. Wintemute, who expects to shine for the frosh hoop outfit, is probably the flashiest spiker of any team to perform in this year's intramurals.

To other contests on last night's schedule were through the forfeit route with the winning teams being Delta Tau Delta and Sigma Hall.

Two Indiana campus sweethearts of the 90's have found a last resting place near a historic old sun dial on the grounds of the Greenacrest institution. Their ashes were scattered in that place by their son.

Phi Psis Trim Ancient Rivals

Led by Jean "Frenchy" Lacau, the Phi Psi green and red clad warriors of the gridiron defeated their traditional rival, Chi Psi, 38 to 0, last Sunday on Hayward field. The scoring started early in the second quarter when a pass from Pray to Lacau placed the ball on they fought the highly rated California line to a standstill and kept the Bears a safe distance from scoring territory during the whole game. Proof of their defensive ability is also displayed in the fact that the Bears were forced to take to the air and scored twice from passes and not from running plays.

Fallen Leaves From the Past

Six Years Ago
 November 19, 1929. Freshman Coach Prink Callison's frosh grid team, after losing earlier in the year 7-6, came back strong to defeat the Oregon State Rooks 31-19. Bill Morgan, Bernie Hughes and Jack Rushlow starred for the frosh.

Three Years Ago
 November 19, 1932. The Emerald readers just chose their all-coast football team today, listing Captain Bill Morgan, tackle, as the only Oregon player on the mythical eleven. Mike Mikulak was placed as second string full-back, ranking next to Southern Cal's great Homer Griffith.

One Year Ago
 November 20, 1934. The Oregon football team returned today from another disastrous invasion of Los Angeles, where it lost to Southern California, 33-0.

Theta Sigma Phi Open Meeting at 8

An open meeting for all women interested in journalism with Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary, as sponsors, will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the Alpha Chi Omega sorority. Mrs. Eric W. Allen will speak to the group on the "Literary and Newspaper Aspects of Mexico." Mrs. Allen visited in Mexico during the past summer.

Henriette Horak, president, will preside at the meeting. Ruth Stora, Laura Margaret Smith, and Phyllis Adams are in charge of the plans for the meeting. All women, whether they are enrolled in the school or not, are invited. Refreshments will be served.

Miss Kerns Will Speak in Portland

Miss Maude I. Kerns, associate professor of normal art in the school of architecture and allied art, will lecture tomorrow in the Portland art museum on "Frescoes."

Miss Kerns will address the Wednesday morning art class, which is the oldest organization for serious study of art in the city of Portland.

The Wednesday morning art class has studied Chinese art extensively and has based its study on the road taken by Sir Aurel Stein through the Orient.

Former Student Actors Connected With Theatre

A recent check-up in the drama division revealed that many former University theatre players are still actively connected with the theatre, in one capacity or another, in various schools throughout the country.

Ted Karafotias, veteran campus actor who was to have played Bud Winsted's part of Phipps in the forthcoming University production of "The Queen's Husband," has enrolled in the Pasadena community playhouse where he joins Bill Thienes, former campus actor, who is also at the California school.

Elenore Gullion, who was very active here in campus drama last year, is acting at the Cleveland playhouse this season after having won a dramatic scholarship this summer to study at the Cornish school in Seattle.

Other students continuing their dramatic work include Harvey Welsh who is at the famous Hedgerow theatre in Philadelphia, Al Culverwell who is studying at Cornish, and Wallie Boyle who has been acting in both Pasadena and New York.

At least three former University theatre players are directing high school drama in Oregon schools. These are Dorothy Parks who is teaching at Port Orford, Maryline New at Clatskanie and Donald Confrey at Gresham.

Pi Lambda Theta To Have Banquet

Pi Lambda Theta, national women's education honorary, will hold its Founders' day banquet at the Osburn hotel November 23, with Marie Tinker, president, acting as toastmistress.

Dr. Victor P. Morris, professor of economics will be the featured speaker.

Guests of honor are Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Jewell, Dr. and Mrs. F. L. Stetson, Dr. and Mrs. B. W. DeBusk, Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Huffaker, Dr. and Mrs. Nelson L. Bossing, Dr. and Mrs. R. U. Moore, Dr. and Mrs. H. R. Gould, and Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Leighton.

Committees for the affair are as follows: music, Theresa Kelly; social committee, Betty Harcombe, chairman, Ella Carrick, Elaine Sorensen, True Morris, and Mary McCracken.

YWCA Discussion Groups Organized

Plans for freshman YWCA discussion groups during winter term were started at a meeting at the YW bungalow last Sunday.

Committees are now being organized to plan this program for next term. Some of the suggested groups include the study of personality growth, in which biographical material will be used as illustrative matter; the study of race relationship as it affects each individual; vocational study; an attempt to understand our economic order by finding out what some recent graduates of the University are meeting as they try to find jobs and adjust themselves to the business world.
