

Bar Group to Be Explained

Lecture Set for Saturday Morning

The organization and purposes of the newly integrated Oregon state bar association will be presented to the law school student body and other interested persons at 10 o'clock Saturday morning by Robert F. Maguire, president of the association, it was announced yesterday.

The speaker, scheduled to lecture in the law school assembly room, is sponsored jointly by Phi Delta Phi, law honorary, and the law school student body, according to Robert Marks, president of Phi Delta Phi.

At the last meeting of the Oregon bar association the old organization was replaced by the newly incorporated Oregon State Bar, created under a statute passed this year. The greater advantages of the newly installed organization and its fuller purposes will be discussed in detail by Mr. Maguire. Everyone interested is invited to attend.

Tau Delta Delta Has Program

Tau Delta Delta, underclass honorary, held its regular meeting Tuesday evening at Westminster house. The following program, arranged by Rachael Koken, was presented at the close of the business session: a trio, Mollie Bob Small, violin, Madge Conaway, cello, Margery Scobert, piano, played a group of three numbers, "The Magic of the Night," by Cohnmann, "Elegy" by Massenet, and "Dark Eyes," a Russian Folk song. Marjorie Wolfenden sang "The Dashing White Sergeant," an old English song, accompanied by Mary Fields. Rachael Koken gave a report on "Caesar Franck," a new book by Vincent d'Indy and Jacqueline Wong played two piano solos, "Prelude," by MacDowell and "Waltz" by Brahms.

Webfoots and

Previous to last year's game, which Washington won, 16 to 6, the Webfoots had blanked the Puget Sound team for six consecutive years. Starting with a 28-0 victory in 1928, the Ducks piled up a six-year string of wins broken only by a scoreless tie in 1932.

Oregon Distinct Underdog

This year, however, Oregon will enter the classic struggle as a distinct underdog. Betting odds favor Washington at 2 to 1 and the Webfoots are conceded only the slightest outside chance of springing an upset.

The teams are hard to compare, for they play opposite types of football. Oregon's offense, depending upon power drives and "cruncher" plays, is as different from the deceptive, speedy attack of the Huskies as night is from day.

Huskies Invulnerable on Ground

Not once this fall has Washington yielded a touchdown through the medium of ground plays, so, if the Webfoots are to win, a new precedent must be established. Several scores have been made against the Huskies, but all have been the result of passes.

The Webfoots have a pass-heavy

Camping on Trail of Italians

Encampments of nearly 200,000 Ethiopian fighters mark the loosely drawn fighting front in the Ogaden, about 30 miles south of Harrar. Their arms stacked and pup tents pitched, regulars attached to Ras Nassibu's army are shown, in a picture from H. V. Drees, NEA Service Staff cameraman, encamped under fighting conditions. Note the camouflaged gun emplacement at left, with gun mounted for aircraft defense.

Modern Etiquette Permits Men to Be More Outright

Parson the intrusion, men, but our own campus' Bette "Emily Post" Church has requested that we make an appeal to you, for the sake of you, your date, and the occasion.

Do you ever feel a bit awkward about approaching a girl at rally dances and the like? Bette says that 20th century etiquette approves of tagging or asking for a dance even though you don't know the girl. So, if you've had any qualms in the past, rest at ease.

Furthermore, if you are favorably impressed, if the impression seems mutual and if she is without an escort, do not hesitate to ask to accompany the girl home. Who knows, she may turn out to be the "one and only!"

"The era of dirty cords, no ties, and unshined shoes is out." Such is the emphatic declaration made to persuade you men not to be ashamed of looking nice on the campus. Just because you are headed for a show or rally dance, don't neglect your appearance. There is a faint suspicion that if girls were to appear suddenly for an evening of fun in some slipshod skirt and ragged sweater, there would be a cloud of revolt in the air. "Need any more be said?" asked Bette.

Have you seen some winsome lass with whom you would like a date, and wondered what to do about it so that a favorable impression would be made? The solution is to scour about until you find a mutual friend, have him take you to her house for an introduction or manage to be introduced on the campus; then upon calling for a date and saying this is Dick Powell, ahem, or whoever you might be, you are more apt to receive a cordial reception, especially if you are Dick Powell.

Y Conference This Weekend

Portland Group Attend Industrial Meet Here

The YWCA Industrial group is making final arrangements for a number of Industrial group members from Portland who will attend a conference to be held on the campus this week-end.

The week-end discussion opens Saturday evening with a dinner at the Y bungalow which will be followed by a meeting at which trade unions and professional workers unions will be the main topic.

Sunday the conference convenes with a worship service at 8:30 which will be followed by discussions on unemployment and social security. John L. Casteel, assistant professor of English on the campus, will be the guest speaker at 11 o'clock on the topic, "What Is Education."

Elaine Comish and Eileen Donaldson are co-chairmen for the affair which is the first effort to bring about a closer relationship between members of the Portland Industrial group and the local students. Mrs. Frances Sellick, secretary of the Portland group will accompany the delegates to the conference.

Italy's Ethiopian

If the war spreads to Europe, the nations will be divided into the two camps of the "haves" and the "have-nots," with France and Great Britain opposing Italy and Germany, prophesied Dr. de Villiers. Italy and Germany may pool their military resources, but "a lot of water must flow under the bridge before this will come about," he declared.

Mussolini Craves Land

The central fact in the affair is that Italy must have room to expand, according to Dr. de Villiers. "France and England cannot be expected to give any of their colonial territory to Italy. There is no room for Italy to expand in Europe. But Italy must have land, and what is she going to do if she doesn't take Ethiopia?" he asked.

The South African scientist recently concluded six months of research at the Anatomical Institute of Turin in Italy, where he had the opportunity of making a close observation of the situation within the fascist nation. "Italy is much stronger than people outside generally believe. Her air force is one of the most powerful in the world. The country is highly militarized and marvelously organized under the fascist regime," he said.

English Hate Fascism

England's determined stand against Italy is dictated by the insistence of the labor party for the stamping out of fascism, declared Dr. de Villiers. If England's position becomes one of armed hostility; the scientist believes that the dominant United party in South Africa will attempt to swing the commonwealth to the aid of the mother country. Such a move would be opposed by the Nationalist party, which advocates complete severance from England as the only way to maintain peace. "Of course I am a Nationalist. Why should I deny it?" he asked.

Conditions in Ethiopia are abominable; there are hundreds of slaves, and justice is most primitive, according to Dr. de Villiers.

Press Conference Set for January 24

Ruhl, Medford Editor, To Lead Discussions

The 18th annual Oregon Press conference, sponsored by the University school of journalism will meet here January 24 and 25, according to Dean Eric W. Allen, journalism head, who is in charge of arrangements. Newspapers from all parts of the state will be represented.

Presiding at the sessions will be Robert W. Ruhl, editor of the Medford Mail-Tribune. Ruhl last year was winner of the William Pulitzer prize given for conspicuous newspaper service.

In conjunction with the conference will be held the annual meetings of the Oregon Editorial Association, and the Oregon Advertising Managers association.

'In Old Kentucky' Rainmaker Lucky

Etienne Girardot plays the comic role of a rainmaker in Will Rogers' "In Old Kentucky," starting Saturday at the McDonald theatre. The funny part of the role is that every time Girardot went through the business of conjuring rain it poured in normally dry Hollywood. The company finally began to think that there was something behind the rain-making business.

And, contrary to reports, the country is ideal for white colonization, especially in the higher regions. Italy is not going into the war blindly, without knowledge of Ethiopian resources. Mussolini undoubtedly knows the value of the country, concluded the scientist.

Oregon Band Off for Seattle

Boys Plan Hullabaloo For Washington Game

The University of Oregon band takes the 4:25 train this afternoon, bound for Seattle, which they reach at 7 Saturday morning. The horn-tooters expect to make a two-hour eating stopover in Portland from 8:30 to 10:30.

Several special numbers are being rehearsed for the week-end. Saturday morning the band will ballyhoo through Seattle. The massed bands of the University of Oregon and the University of Washington will play the flag raising ceremony to open the game and sometime during the week-end the two bands are expected to play "El Capitan," by Sousa, in unison.

The band sleeper section will leave Seattle at midnight Saturday, arriving in Eugene noon Sunday.

One of the little items of interest for the trip to which the bandmen are looking forward with puzzled anticipation is the "Air Conditioned Tourist Sleeper," which has been promised. If the last two words of its title had been left off, the boys wouldn't be suspicious, but as it is—they are.

Co-op Avails New Books to Students

Rental Libe Has Variety Of Late Publications

In keeping with national book week, the University Co-op, through the rental library, offers to students a number of new books ranging from travels to short stories.

"The Middle Aged Man on the Flying Trapeze" by James Therber, a series of character sketches, proves to be as humorous as the illustrations that accompany it. "Green Hills of Africa" by Ernest Hemingway is a cleverly written travel book dealing with the author's jaunt on a hunting trip into the far country. Henry Franck's "Trailing Cortez Through Mexico" contains a number of fine photographs which give life to the new writing.

Other good books are "Romantic Rebels" by Frances Wrinnan; Carl Raswan's "Black Tents of Arabia," Thos. Wolfe's collection of short stories entitled "From Death to Morning," and "Europa" by Robert Briffault.
