

Ducks Meet Oiler Five In Pre-Season Final

Ducks to Polish up For Encounter With Idaho Next Monday

Portland Team, Twice Defeated, May Place Slides Under Collegiates

The University of Oregon's towering basketball team, victorious in 10 consecutive pre-season games, will tangle with the sharpshooters of Union Oil at McArthur court tonight. Opening tip-off is set for 8 o'clock.

Tonight's tussle is Oregon's final practice tuneup before the northern division championship race gets under way. The Webfoots will face the University of Idaho here Monday and Tuesday nights in opening conference tilts.

Oiler Crew Strong

Spectators who witness this evening's contest will see the third meeting of the year between Howard Hobson's crew of huskies and the all-nightly Oilers, who boast an aggregation of ex-college luminaries second to none in the Northwest. The Ducks came from behind to edge out narrow triumphs in two earlier engagements, 35 to 31 and 33 to 32.

This time Verne Harrington, Oiler coach, is planning to spill the Webfoots and anything may happen. The Portland outfit boasts the cream of the crop of Northern Division ex-greats.

Robertson to Return

Included in the Union Oil lineup will be three of the greatest stars in Pacific Coast conference history — Spook Robertson, Ra'ph Cairney, and George Hibbard.

Robertson, a Webfoot regular for three years prior to last season, is generally recognized as the number one long shot artist in the Northwest. Cairney, who captained the championship Washington Huskies of two seasons ago, is ranked with the leading stars of the nation. Unquestionably he is the best all-around guard in recent northern division annals. Hibbard captained Oregon State's champions last winter and in 1933 was a leading light on the Beaver Quintet which defeated Southern California in the inter-division playoff and captured the coast title.

Wagner, Inman to Play

Teamed with the incomparable Cairney at guard for the Oilers will be Harold Inman, former Washington high star and now one of independent basketball's best back court players. At center will be Chuck Wagner, ex-University of Washington pivot man.

Oregon Lineup Uncertain

Howard Hobson has not yet definitely determined on his starting Webfoot lineup. Chuck Patterson at forward, Ward Howell at center, and Sammy Liebowitz at guard are certain to be in there for the whistle's opening blast, but about the remaining two positions "Hobbie" isn't quite sure.

Rollie Rourke, whose play in recent games has been spectacular, or Chief McLean, who has been bothered by a bad knee, will open at guard with Liebowitz. Either Willard Jones or Budd Jones will be at the other forward post.

Kenneth Clair Plays at Lecture

The Eugene Adult Music Education Series, held in the school of music auditorium yesterday afternoon at 2 was well attended.

Dr. John Landsbury, dean of the school of music, presented the first of two illustrated lectures on the fugue. Kenneth Clair, pipe-organist and student of music at the University, played Fugue in G-Minor, Bach, as an example of the fugue at its best.

Next month, Dr. Landsbury will present another and final talk on the fugue. Anyone interested in attending these programs is welcome. Date of the next lecture will be announced later.

Ted Shawn Hits

Shawn stated that for many centuries after the dance began, which was early in the history of the world, that nine-tenths of the dancing was done by men. In general, where the dance has degenerated into cheap entertainment or tawdry amusement, it is because women have taken it over. There are notable exceptions to this, he emphasized. But wherever the national dance exists, wherever it has been of vital importance in the customs and mores of a country, the men have conducted it, he said. Of course, women have, at various times taken over all the legitimate styles of dancing, as well as most of the illegitimate, he smiled.

History Traced

Mr. Shawn traced the history of dancing through five major developments. 1. The primitive dances. These were magic dances, prayer dances, medicine dances. He said some of the primitive rhythms upon which these dances were built were more complicated than many heard today. In many cases they were far beyond our present comprehension.

Rhythm, said the dancer, is not the only basis for the dance and music, it is the basis for life, itself. 2. Religious dances, which grew out of the magic dances. 3. Labor motif in the dance. 4. Play. Athletic and folk dancing are included here. Ballroom dancing is a descendant of this form of dancing, and a black sheep at that, he hinted. 5. Dance as a pure art form, the latest development just as the symphony is the latest development of real music.

Trip to Correct Thinking

Mr. Shawn said that his life work was to try to beat down all the "insane and crazy prejudices against the dance" which have grown out of twisted thinking, by showing people forms of the dance which are suitable and fitting and right. He stated that he felt that most people, even though they came to his company's performances with their minds prejudiced, went away feeling the dance, if done properly, is a noble art.

He explained that the dancers have the first claim on the word "orchestra" as the original meaning of the word was "dancing place."

Mr. Shawn has been giving public performances continuously since 1911 with the exception of two years when he served as a lieutenant in the infantry during the war. The company left Thursday morning for Klamath Falls. They will go on south to Los Angeles, giving performances on the way, and then go back East on tour.

Football Over But Duck Stars Still Shine On

Riordan, Carter Still In Togs; Kicker Goes Pro After Close of College Grid Career

Football togs are packed away among the mothballs and Hayward field's historic sod lies under a lake of January rain, but the University of Oregon's greatest gridiron pair, Ros Carter and Stan Riordan, are keeping America's autumn sport alive for Webfoot followers.

Carter, who received frequent mention as an all-coast guard, further distinguished himself in the annual East-West all-star game at Kezar stadium in San Francisco on New Year's day. The veteran from Lakeview started in the West's lineup, played almost the entire game, and was hailed by California critics as one of the outstanding linemen in the game.

Carter Recovers Fumble

Carter, who captained the Webfoots in four contests last fall, was a tower of strength in the Western forward wall on both offense and defense. He recovered a fumble deep in Eastern territory early in the second half.

Oregon's other all-coast star, Riordan, was not invited to represent the West, but has turned professional. He was scheduled to start for the Westwood Cubs in a game with the Los Angeles Maroons for the national American Legion championship this week.

Spring Practice Next

With the exception of the activities of Carter and Riordan, Webfoot football is all over until spring practice. The team won six games in a difficult nine-game schedule, losing only to California, UCLA, and St. Mary's.

Next fall, under the new Pacific Coast conference schedule arrangement, Prink Callison's team will play seven conference tilts, including one with Stanford's champion Indians.

Basketball and Wrestling To Occupy Donut Athletes

Two sports, basketball and wrestling, will occupy the attention of intramural athletes during the winter term.

Entry blanks have been sent to each living organization on the campus in order to facilitate easy registration of the athletes, and managers of each competing house were to have returned these no later than Wednesday, at five o'clock. From early indications based on the blanks returned, the majority of the teams will be on hand to start competition in basketball when the season opens Monday, January 13.

Also on the program during the coming term will be wrestling, which usually develops widespread interest among the students due to the sensational competition among its contestants. Athletes participating in this sport started training for the coming season early last term in order to be in condition for the contests.

Intramural basketball again this term will be comprised of an "A" league and a "B" league. Participants of the "B" league may graduate into "A" league if they show enough promise but no "A" league player may ever play in the "B" league. This ruling has been made in order that the teams will be more evenly matched.

'Lawsy Must Eat'—But Not Too Much

"Well, I ate too much candy," said Charles G. Howard, law professor, when he was asked how he spent his Christmas vacation. In maintaining his point that it was "too" much he forwarded the argument that it made him sick.

Yeomen Hoopers Will Practice for Donut Competition

Independent men interested in playing with Yeomen A or B basketball teams are asked to meet at the men's gym Friday afternoon at 4:40, according to Brittain Ash, athletic manager.

Ash announces competitive tryouts for all men turning out, and warns that men wishing to play must be on hand for the first workout. Heavy turnouts are expected by the independents, who in previous years have stood high in intramural hoop ratings. The Yeomen, trailing in donut standings, will bid for the top in both basketball and wrestling.

(He was reading a book entitled "Lawsy Must Eat," when the Emerald reporter entered the sanctity of his office.)

Pi Lambda Theta Grants Scholarship

Both the local and Portland chapters of Pi Lambda Theta, national women's education honorary, are sponsoring a scholarship for junior and graduate women interested in or majoring in education. Requisites are an average grade in scholarship, and certain character traits considered indispensable by Pi Lambda Theta.

Application blanks are now available either in the general office of the education building, or in Dean Scherwing's office.

Pre-Season Duck Record Impressive

Hobson Quint Piles Up 10 Consecutive Victories in Vacation

Oregon's hard-working basketball giants have squared off against pre-season opposition 14 times this winter, and 12 times they have come through with flying colors.

Pre-season hoop results are more often than not taken with a grain of salt and rightfully should be, but the record of the Webfoots on their recent barnstorming tour to San Francisco and waypoints cannot fail to impress almost any observer. Right now the colossal cagers who perform for Howard Hobson have a winning record of ten.

Six games were won on the California trip. Three of these triumphs were at the expense of Southern Oregon normal, and other victories were won over Young Men's Institute of San Francisco, Utah Aggies, and Chico State. Before and after the southern journey the Ducks have found time to spill Multnomah club three times and Union Oil twice.

In 14 games, Oregon's basket-keepers have piled up 615 points, an average of 43.9 per contest, against 458, a 32.7 average, for opponents.
