Juniors Face Probable Vote On Office Issue

Eligibility of Grace Peck Awaiting Decision of ASUO Judiciary

Three opinions, two of them negative and the other a recommendation, were handed out yesterday afternoon by the ASUO judiciary committee upon as many issues concerning the filling of two vacant offices of the junior class:

1. The secretary of the junior class does not succeed to the presidency upon the vacating of office of president and vice president. This eliminates the possibility of Secretary Grace Peck becoming president.
2. The executive council does not have the power to pass a by-law to provide for the succession of class officers in case of vacancy.
3. A recommendation was made that, in order to save time, the vice-president of the ASUO should proceed without delay to call a special meeting of the class.

The only development which would obviate the holding of a special election would be the favorable passage of a petition to the scholarship committee of the associated student by Carmen Curry, ineligible vice-president of the class, whereby she would be made eligible to hold office. Such a petition was being formulated yesterday, it was learned, although James H. Gilbert, chairman of the scholarship group, said that he had not yet received such a petition.

Must Go to Dean
The petition would have to be approved by the dean of women, Mrs. Hazel P. Schwering, before it could go to the scholarship committee, Dean Gilbert said. Mrs. Schwering was in Portland last night, and the assistant dean, Mrs. Alice Macduff, could not be reached to ascertain whether the petition had been submitted to her.
Two possibilities were seen last night upon the probable attitude which the scholarship committee would take, in event of the receipt of the ineligible vice-president's petition: first, it will maintain that, like the other officers of the

Work Resumed After Cold Period

Work on the new library was resumed yesterday after a three-day layoff because of the weather. Workmen chipped away the remaining ice in preparation for pouring cement on the third floor walls and columns.

First floor columns and walls of the new infirmary will probably be ready for pouring tomorrow, according to construction officials.

The basement of the new physical education building is still being excavated. Digging on the eastern section has been completed.

Although delayed by the water and ice, work on the tunnel construction is gradually being pushed forward towards Fourteenth street.

Dean Morse Orders Arrest of Speeder

Asks Police Chief for Aid in Tracing Reckless Driver Past Law School; Violator Will Be Prosecuted

Seeing need of action on the part of the citizens of the state in eliminating traffic hazards, and being narrowly missed by a speeding motorist yesterday, Dean Wayne L. Morse of the law school has ordered the arrest of the driver of an automobile with Oregon license 202,107.

Speed Over 50 Miles Per Hour
The driver of the car sped by the law school at 3:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon at an estimated rate of between 50 and 60 miles per hour, whipping by the dean, who was crossing the street, and passing another car. At least four persons were said to have seen the incident.

Chief of Police Carl Bergman was asked by Dean Morse to trace the owner of the car so as to make it possible to apprehend the driver, supposedly a University student. Chief Bergman telegraphed the license department at Salem later in the afternoon.

Morse Announces Intention
It was said by the near victim that he would, upon learning the identity of the driver, swear out a warrant for his or her arrest.

"I feel that we have done sufficient talking about dangerous traffic conditions on Thirteenth street," Dean Morse said. "The appalling loss of life due to reckless driving apparently cannot be stopped until individual citizens make up their minds to cooperate with the officers of the law in enforcing the law."

"It is in such a spirit that I propose to make an example of whomsoever the party was who endangered life under circumstances which should have led any reasonable man to realize the probable consequences of such a reckless act."

Varsity 'O' Ball Set for March 27

Tickets for the Varsity "O" ball, which was postponed following the University's ban on all social events because of prevalent sickness and danger of spreading disease, will be good when the dance is held early next term, Harry McCall, president of the Orde of the "O," announced last night.

The new date for the ball is March 27, the first Friday after spring term starts. McCall expressed his regrets that those who have purchased tickets will not be able to use them until then but said the postponement could not be helped in view of the University ruling.

Biggs Thrills UO Music-Lovers With Concert

Over 300 University music lovers crowded the music auditorium last night to hear the brilliant and powerful organ concert by E. Power Biggs, English-American organist.

The program last night represented a summary of different periods of organ composition beginning with 18th century masters, Bach and Handel included, nineteenth century romanticists, such as Liszt, and ending with the modern French compositions of the twentieth century.

Mr. Biggs showed vast understanding of the instrument. Although all the compositions were heavy, except the chorale, he showed keen distribution of power. Of the artist's ability John Stark Evans, University organist and professor of music, declared, "Perfectly wonderful work. One of the best of the youngest organists, and he is amply proving it tonight."

Villard Donates Two Books

Oswald Garrison Villard, former editor of The Nation, recently donated two books on modern European affairs to the University of Oregon. The titles of the books are: "The Foreign Policy of the Powers," by Jules Cambon and others; and "The Political Handbook of the World," a publication of the Council of Foreign Relations.

M. H. Douglass, librarian, said that Mr. Villard had promised to make future presentations to the University library.

Symphony To Perform Here Sunday

Willem van Hoogstraten Will Conduct Portland Group's Concert

One of the world's most famous conductors, Willem van Hoogstraten, will wield the baton in McArthur court next Sunday when the Portland Symphony orchestra presents its fourth concert on the University campus.

Van Hoogstraten has won world recognition as an orchestra conductor during the past two decades, and has been honored as guest conductor by some of the leading musical organizations of this country and Europe. Dr. van Hoogstraten has been one of the few conductors chosen to lead the great New York and Philadelphia symphony concerts. For many years he has devoted from one to four weeks every summer to this work.

Conducts at San Diego
He has also been guest conductor for the Hollywood bowl "Symphony Under the Stars." In all these cities he was acclaimed the most popular director of the season. Last summer he took his entire Portland group to the San Diego fair, where he added to his already nation-wide fame through national radio broadcasts.

Many friends will be present to greet the famous conductor on his arrival at the campus. He has made many lasting acquaintances on his three previous visits to the campus. He was awarded the degree of doctor of music by the University for his outstanding achievements in that field.

The conductor holds honorary memberships in Phi Mu Alpha, honorary music fraternity, and Phi Sigma Kappa, social fraternity. Both were awarded on the campus.

On recent trips to Europe Dr. van Hoogstraten has directed some of the leading symphonic groups and has studied there in many well-known schools.

Slight Damage Done to Shrubs

Some damage has been done to the shrubs, but not as much as might have been expected from the icy conditions, it was revealed yesterday by the head gardener.

"A few of the flowering varieties have been set back, and it will be necessary to cut them back considerably," he said. "But on the whole they will come out of it all right."

Many calls came in about icy sidewalks and steps, and advice was given as to how to combat this condition. Men are working on the roofs of several buildings clearing the ice away from the downspouts in order to release the free water that has gathered there.

Fajardo's Injuries Found Not Serious

Alfredo Fajardo, senior in journalism, is quickly recovering in the Pacific hospital from his fall yesterday. An examination proved that he received no injuries. He will leave the hospital in a few days.

AWS Political Rumbblings Begin to Roar

Committee Will Not Tell Official Slate Before Wednesday, Though

With the associated women students nominating assembly slated for next Wednesday, political rumbblings among University coeds have started to take form. Elections of AWS officers for next year will take place on the Tuesday following the Wednesday nominating meeting.

Margaret Ann Smith, present AWS prexy, when called last night said the nominating committee had already made its selections but that the constitution for the group forbade any announcement of candidates until the general assembly.

Based on activity, service, and scholastic records, however, likely candidates for the presidential nomination would be selected from Elaine Comish, Martha McCall, or Virginia Endicott, campus political leaders said last night. Other girls mentioned as possible choices for the leading position or for the vice-presidency included Helen Bartrum, Starla Parvin, Margilee Morse, Frances Watzek, and Phyllis Adams.

Misses McCall and Endicott when called last night had nothing to say, and the Emerald was unable to reach Miss Comish.

Others Named
The secretary, treasurer, and reporter for the AWS is usually chosen from the sophomore class members and here it appears that Gayle Buchanan, Gladys Battleson, Elizabeth Ann DeBusk, Vivian Emery, Hallie Dudley, Marjorie Gearhart, Toni Lucas, and Laurene Brockshink are regarded as outstanding candidates.

Campus talk would have Miss Buchanan opposing Miss Battleson for secretary and Miss DeBusk and Miss Emery opposing candidates for treasurer, but again no official confirmation could be obtained. With sergeant at arms chosen from the freshman class Martha Felsheim and Ann Nelson have been mentioned as most likely candidates with Ingrid Liljequist, Lucy Ann Houghton, and Mariam Fouch standing out politically in a rather large group of prominent girls in this class.

Alumni Groups To Raise Funds

M. H. Douglass, librarian, said the Portland alumni groups have organized to investigate ways and means of raising funds for furniture and books to be used in the new library browsing room.

At the meeting held Wednesday in Portland committees were appointed from men's and women's fraternity groups to work out details for raising funds. Between $10,000 and $15,000 is expected to be collected.

No definite plans were made for raising the money, but a series of teas was suggested by the committee of women. They will investigate the possibility of having such functions within the next two weeks. At this time the alumni committee will meet again and get definitely underway in their work, Mr. Douglass said.

Morse Is Named On Law Group

Governor Appoints Dean Member of Committee On Legal Reform

Dean Wayne L. Morse of the law school was appointed Wednesday by Governor Charles H. Martin to membership on the committee to propose legal procedure reform in Oregon.

The appointment of the committee is in compliance with the 1935 legislative act which provides for the continuance of a standing committee for judicial reform. Its first meeting will be held in Portland, February 29. Justice George Rossman is chairman of the group.

Proposals for legislative reform which will be placed before the committee on legal procedure are the establishment of a drafting bureau for the preparation of legislative measures, elimination of much clerical help, strict deadlines for introduction of bills, and a limitation of floor privileges, that is, refusing to allow any except accredited persons on the senate or house floors.

New Facts Aired On Hall Robbery

Paul Grace, ex-Stanford student, who was tried and acquitted on a robbery charge in circuit court here last fall, may be cleared beyond any doubt if James A. Farley, who is under arrest in Los Angeles, is telling a true story. Farley was arrested in the California city a few days ago and told police there that he had stolen some diamond rings and two fur coats in Eugene. He said also that he had been chased across the campus by students after he had committed the theft.

Grace was tried here for robbing the E. H. Hall residence. The details of Farley's statement coincide with those of the robbery at the Hall home, local officers said.

Phi Sigs Present Rushing Plan; Constitution Acceptance Motion Fails to Pass

By LE ROY MATTINGLY

The University's commonwealth scholarship fund maintained by contributions from private firms and individuals of the state for proselyting and paying part of the expenses of athletes must be supplemented by provisions from other sources if Oregon's athletic teams are to remain in the Pacific coast conference, President James Blais said yesterday in a plea for assistance made to the Inter-fraternity council.

In suggesting to the council a plan under which each fraternity would pledge and provide room and board for one athlete, Blais said that the plea was the last resort in the effort to maintain Oregon athletics on a par with larger schools on the coast.

Big Schedule Forces Move
The increased number of big games on the football schedule for next year, making necessary an addition of 15 to 20 athletes to the usual quota, forced N. Thomas Stoddard, assistant graduate manager and supervisor of the scholarship fund, to request the appeal to the fraternities, Blais said.

The practice of houses sharing in the expenses of athletics in this manner is wide-spread, the ASUO president stated. Possibilities for voluntary contributions to the scholarship fund have been thoroughly exhausted by Stoddard in a state-wide canvass, Blais declared. "We will be playing Linfield and Willamette unless aid develops from some source," he told the fraternity presidents.

System Used at OSC
Houses would select their own man under the plan, Blais said. Washington State and OSC now use this system, he stated.

At present, but two athletes receive anything in addition to room and board, the president revealed. Basketball players who are receiving assistance through the commonwealth fund number 19, according to Blais.

Rushing Plan Offered
Drastic revision of rushing rules was suggested to the council by Bill Corman, Phi Sigma Kappa president, in a detailed plan.

Under the Phi Sigma Kappa plan, sealed bid would be presented by house presidents to the dean of men's office at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. These would be distributed to rushees in McArthur court between the hours of 2 and 4. Rushing would stop Saturday at 12 o'clock.

Each rushee would be required
