

STAGE of the WORLD

By Tex Thomason

Line-up

Two restless continents blot the face of the globe today. They are Europe and Asia. It is probably best to classify the countries of these various continents according to whether they are satisfied or dissatisfied with their present status.

Among the malcontents are Germany, Italy, Hungary and Bulgaria in Europe, and of course Japan in Asia. These nations are restless because they wish to expand. Restless because they are ruled rather than ruling are Egypt, chafing under British domination, Syria, snarling at French rule, and China, struggling against Japanese invasion.

Germany seeks the inclusion in the Third Reich of all those areas in Europe inhabited by German-speaking peoples. Expansion in this direction would come at the cost of Austria, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, and Poland, a blow at any of which would imperil the USSR.

Italy has already blazed the trail on this quest for territory by going into Africa.

Hungary and Bulgaria are both dissatisfied because they want the return of their former powers.

Japan is going ahead in her own quiet, effective way to nibble pieces out of China, masticate them slowly, and then swallow while other nations look the other way.

Opposed

For the simple reason that they are satisfied the way they are, vast areas are opposed to change. Through various alliances and understandings which link them, Britain, France, Belgium, Poland, the Little Entente, and Greece (in Europe), and Turkey, Iraq, Iran, and Afghanistan (in Asia), are working for the stability of the present order.

Really

From the above you can readily see that it is in brief a struggle, as has been said before, between the haves and the have-nots. It will be decided only when the have-nots make successful raids on the haves, and when the haves slip enough out of the seat of the mighty to be unable to resist the maraudings of the have-nots. With all powers arming to the teeth, likelihood of either of these possibilities is remote, but with one war under way the possibility of a mad dog fight embroiling the world is not so remote.

Ballard Lists Tests of Love In Lecture

Time Best Way to Decide Between Attraction And Affection

After becoming interested in the psychological effects of love and marriage with the ending of his romantic high school love, Dr. J. Hudson Ballard, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Portland, has wondered ever since how two persons can be so intensely interested in each other with exclusion of the outside world.

In the last lecture in the love and marriage series held last night in Villard hall, Dr. Ballard advanced four tests for differentiating between infatuation and affection.

"The test of time is the best tester," said Dr. Ballard. "Other tests are absence, giving up physical contacts for a while, and making use of competition."

"If a person means more to you than a clasped arm or a kiss, you may believe that it is really affection," Dr. Ballard said.

Because marriage is based on affection, personality problems come up, one of which is compatibility. These questions of compatibility are physical attraction, equality in cultural or mental ability, temperamental compatibility, social and financial compatibility, and moral and religious attitudes.

"The mating of two persons of different temperaments resolves into a matter of intelligence. They can recognize there are other persons with different temperaments in life and are not bigoted or stubborn in trying to make other persons into their own temperament moulds. The marriage of two different temperaments is likely to be more interesting and have more color and variety."

"Romantic love," said Doctor Ballard, "is a combination of emotions." Do not expect the flame of love to burn forever with the same intensity. It would consume too much energy.

"Two ideas are false in my judgment. One is that marriages remain in heaven. That there is only one person cut out for you in the universe is psychologically very unsound and superficial. We've no reason to believe that there is fate or destiny or predestination. Any one of a dozen people would bring equal happiness."

"The second idea I consider false is to wait until the 'perfect' one arrives. In contemplating marriage, marry the real person and not an idealization of that person."

Asks Chance to 'Iron Out' Senate

Voicing the hope that she can "trot right along in pa's footsteps," Mrs. Thomas B. Schall, widow of Minnesota's blind senator, is shown at her ironer as her candidacy for the U. S. senate seat vacated by Schall's death was announced. Politics has been a large part of her life for 20 years, she explained, and declared that, as an old-style patriot, she would continue Schall's attacks on the administration. Her candidacy will carry on the senator's feud with Gov. Floyd B. Olson, also a senate candidate.

Portland Labor College to Hear Rudolf Ernst Monday

Morse to Settle Wage Dispute

Wayne L. Morse, law school dean, is leaving this afternoon for Portland where he will meet with the counsels of the employers and employees of the Western Transportation company in an attempt to settle a wage dispute between the two factions which he has been asked to arbitrate.

Dean Morse formerly considered conducting labor hearings in Portland to obtain the necessary information to award his decision. He said yesterday, however, that he believed the counsels of the two parties could supply him with sufficient facts to enable him to give his arbitration award.

This is the third labor dispute Dean Morse has been requested to arbitrate. The two former decisions, embodying his liberal viewpoint, proved very satisfactory to both employers and employees.

Wednesday, March 11, "Aida" with Bianca Saroya, Lyuba Senderowna, Aroldo Lindi and Mostyn Thomas. Incidental dances by the San Carlo Grand Opera ballet headed by Lydia Arlova and Lucien Prideaux. Thursday matinee, March 12, "Martha" (in English) with Lucille Meusel and Rolf Gerard, to be followed by thirty minutes of ballet divertissements. Thursday evening, "Lohengrin" (in German) with Goeta Ljungberg, guest artist from the Metropolitan Opera company. Friday evening, March 13, "Cavalleria Rusticana" (in one act) and "Pagliacci" (in two acts); there will be interpolated dances by the San Carlo Opera corps de ballet, music composed by Carlo Peroni, who conducts all the operas for the San Carlo Grand Opera company. Saturday afternoon, March 14, "Tannhauser" with Goeta Ljungberg; Saturday evening, "Rigoletto"; Sunday evening, March 15, "Il Trovatore" with Belle Vreta.

Send the Emerald to your friends. Subscription rates $2.50 a year.

Professor Rudolf H. Ernst will go to Portland Monday to address the Central labor council on the subject of adult education. His talk will concern the labor college which has been recently organized in Portland.

The labor college, which is offering courses for the first time this winter term, is financed by the federal government, being part of the New Deal workers' education program. The extension division of the Oregon State system of higher education is cooperating.

The majority of people who attend are either eighth grade graduates or have not completed high school courses, so the subjects offered, though planned for adult education, do not give college credit.

The most popular courses are those in public speaking, there being a total of 150 in speech classes, according to Arthur S. Taylor, state director of workers' education, who was a visitor on the campus yesterday. He said that the courses in English usage and composition are also well-filled.

The industries from which the workers enrolled in these classes come vary widely. Workers from clerks and domestic helpers to factory and foundry employees are represented. There is no tuition charge to the students. Attendance is regular and has kept up remarkably well thus far, according to Mr. Taylor.

Twelve subjects are now being taught by a faculty of nine members. Courses are offered in the fields of English, including speech, writing and literature, history, geography, homemaking, labor problems, psychology, science, sociology, and economics.

Classes are held in several places in Portland, and also are being organized at Bonneville, Oregon City, Salem, St. Johns, and Gresham.

The laborers' greatest interest, according to Miss Mozelle Hair of the extension division, is in the courses of broad educational value, similar to the ones offered in our school curricula as essential education in the broader meaning of the term.

Olympics Guests To Be Nominated

Germany Invites Country To Send 30 PE Students; Bovard to Name 2

Each nation competing in the 1936 Olympic games has been invited to send 30 physical education majors to Germany to be guests of that nation at an International Sports Education congress to be held in Berlin from July 24 to August 17.

John F. Bovard, dean of the school of physical education, has been informed of this invitation by Professor S. C. Staley, University of Illinois, secretary of American committee of PE tours to the Olympics.

Professor Bovard has been instructed by Professor Staley to choose two Oregon students, a first and second nominee, for possible election to the United States delegation of 30.

The delegation will be chosen by the Olympics committee which will meet to consider nominees some time during the convention of the American Physical Education association, April 15 to 18.

Professor Bovard has been told that nominees of schools having high standards in physical education will be shown a preference. Oregon is one of these schools, said Professor Staley in his letter.

General requirements for delegates to the congress are that they be American citizens, between the ages of 20 and 26 at the time of assembly in New York City, and a junior, senior, or graduate student in physical education spring term of this year.

Students interested to date are Dale Lasselle, Maurice Ward, Raymond Hendrickson, Paul Rix, John Caulier, Marion Weitz, Fred Sears, and Bob Parke.

Credit Courses Will Start in Portland

Comprehensive courses in retail credit granting and collection will open in Portland soon under the guidance of M. L. Owen, controller of Charles F. Berg, Inc., and chairman of the educational committee of the Retail Credit Association of Portland, announcement was received here. The school will open early in March.

The course will cover all essential factors in the handling of 30-day and contract accounts, from the time of application for an account until the last debt has been liquidated. Leading credit executives of Portland retail establishments who have had from 15 to 20 years' experience will teach the course.

Alpha Delta Sigma To Meet With Staters

Alpha Delta Sigma, advertising honorary, voted at its meeting yesterday noon at the College Side to accept the invitation of the H. T. Vance chapter of the honorary at Oregon State college, to attend a banquet celebrating their tenth anniversary, February 27. The H. T. Vance chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma was installed in 1926 at Corvallis by the W. F. G. Thacher chapter of this University.

Ban on Social Events Held Wise Measure

Flu Epidemic Is Checked Temporarily; 3 New Cases Reported

The ban on all social functions for this week-end, placed by Dr. Fred N. Miller, director of the University health service, due to the epidemic of flu, still continues and will do so until further notice.

Although bringing disappointment to some, students are accepting the ban as a precautionary measure and are not recalcitrant. "I realize that there has been some objection to our action, but on the whole I appreciate the attitude of most students," Dr. Miller said. "Take the case of a young man who came to me this morning. 'I'm glad you called it off, doctor,' he said to me. 'If you hadn't, I'd probably have gone to that dance this week-end, and I'm sicker than the deuce.' We took his temperature. He was running a fever, and we put him in the hospital."

"Then there was Harry McCall, president of the Order of the 'O,' who telephoned me this morning to ask if it was true that the dance had been forbidden. I told him it was true, and he thanked me without the least complaint."

The epidemic seems to have slowed down slightly with only three new patients being admitted to the infirmary and the Pacific hospital. Preparations are being made to open the infirmary annex, 14th and Onyx, if the epidemic continues to spread, according to health officials.

The only new patient in the University infirmary is Lucy Houghton. The other 11 patients are: Margaret Harbaugh, Jean Larson, Walter Engele, Dewey Paine, George Williams, Roger Pendell, Robert Barnes, Robert Teepe, Cyrus Cook, Rupe Park, and Edell Bryant.

The 13 University students at the Pacific hospital are: Frank Beers, Ralph Cathey, Wesley Gunderian, Jack Hazlitt, Daniel Jordan, Jay Langston, Bernard Nelson, Richard Roberts, Harrison Winston, Kenneth Wood, William Cummings, Donald Tower, and Alfredo Fajardo.

The pneumonia patient is slightly improved, Dr. Miller said. The suspected case of infantile paralysis is not and probably will never be diagnosed as a case of the dreaded disease, because of the little knowledge of it. The afflicted person is improving and will probably recover with no permanent effect.

Epps Advocates Police Schools

Portland Captain in Favor Of Educational System For Law Enforcers

A central school for peace enforcement officers to be followed by regional schools in other sections of the state was proposed Wednesday evening by W. C. Epps, captain of the Portland police bureau in a radio address over station KOAC. The League of Oregon Cities has appropriated $1,000 to aid in establishing the school plan, Herman Kehrl, director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, announced.

Mr. Epps' address, on "The Regional Police School," in which he described the motive and the operation of such an institution, was sponsored by the bureau of municipal research of the University of Oregon, which will also cooperate in establishing the police program.

According to present plans, a central school session will first be held, probably in Portland. Leading law enforcement officers, including Charles P. Pray, superintendent of state police; Harry C. Niles, chief of Portland police, Captain Epps and others, have volunteered their cooperation. Men from all sections of the state are expected to attend the first session, and then hold similar schools for officers in their districts when they return home.

Similar schools to those planned for this state have already been organized in Virginia, New York, Washington, D. C., and other places.

Working knowledge of the constitutional rights of citizens, an extensive knowledge of the criminal sections of the Oregon laws and frequently violated federal statutes, recognition and preservation of evidence, court room procedure and proper manner of giving testimony and instruction in first aid methods were subjects suggested for the school by Captain Epps in his address.

Portland Grand Opera Season Will Begin March 10

Portland is to have a gala season of grand opera—eight performances, including two matinees—beginning with the evening performance on Tuesday, March 10, and concluding Sunday evening, March 15. Matinees are scheduled for Thursday and Saturday afternoons.

The San Carlo Grand Opera company has completed arrangements to appear at the beautiful Paramount theater in Portland, which means that the San Carlo celebrities will lift their voices in song under the most perfect conditions that can be found anywhere. Perfect acoustics, comfortable seats with full vision of the entire stage, and the unusual beauty of the theatre auditorium and foyer will provide exceptionally fine setting for the presentation of grand opera.

Fortune Gallo, famed impresario who has made grand opera available for everyone, will bring his brilliant group of artists, headed by the popular musical director Carlo Peroni, to Portland on its transcontinental tour that opened in September in Montreal to the largest audiences ever assembled in that opera loving Canadian metropolis. Since then the San Carlo Grand Opera company has been playing before capacity houses in every city on its itinerary.

William B. McCurdy, well known Portland impresario, who is northwest representative for the San Carlo Opera Company, has announced that the northwest tour will be under management of the Hamrick-Evergreen Theaters, to be heard in their deluxe houses in Portland, Seattle, and Spokane.

Special attention will be given to out-of-town mail orders which should be sent to the Paramount Theater in Portland. Make checks payable to the Paramount theatre for the amount of the tickets ordered and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for the return of the tickets. Prices, including tax, are 55 cents, $1.10, and $1.65. The season's repertoire is as follows: Tuesday evening, March 10, "Madame Butterfly" with Hizi Koyke singing the name role;
