Future 'Vets' Organize Unit On UO Campus

McClung Opens Push for 'Bonus First' Group With Auxiliary

A group headed by R. Allen McClung started recruiting yesterday for an Oregon chapter of the Veterans of Future Wars.

'Home Fire' Organizing

Following in the footsteps of the men's group, McClung announced last night that an auxiliary Home Fire unit of women had been organized yesterday afternoon with Harriet Kistner as commander.

Local opinion regarding the move had Don Thomas, recognized leader of the compulsory ROTC, describing the movement as a waste of energy and one which "ridicules an organization which has its faults, but which should keep us out of future wars."

Paddock Not Joining

Charles Paddock, president of the Oregon Committee for Peace and Freedom and the Oregon chapter of the American Student union, showed sympathy for the group as an educational ridicule of the war methods, but refused to join because of its inconsistency with his avowed pacifist views.

Colonel Says Nothing

Col. E. V. D. Murphy of the Oregon ROTC barracks refused to issue a statement on the grounds that he was not familiar with the entire plan of the organization. The Emerald has already editorially regarded the VFW as a useless movement against war.

McClung said he thought that ridiculers of the organization were overlooking its humorous side, but that he had no further statements to make until he met with the VFW council.

Buttons for members being distributed bear the face and extended arm and torch of the statue of liberty, outlined in white on a royal blue background.

Everyone between the ages of 18 to 36 are eligible for membership. The organization resembles the setup for the U. S. army with a national commander over nine regional commanders.

"The veterans of past wars got their share. Why shouldn't the Veterans of Future Wars get theirs?" asks Lewis J. Gorin Jr., student of Princeton university, Veterans of Future Wars with himself as national commander.

Since that time the organization has grown to 130 posts including 102 vet organizations throughout the United States and 28 Veterans of Future Wars. Home Fire division for women, originally initiated at Vassar as the Future Gold Star Mothers.

I've sat on the doorstep of a county committeeman by the hour and waited while he made believe he wasn't at home.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Campus Calendar

The Easter breakfast sponsored by Wesley club will be held as scheduled at 7 a. m. Sunday, weather permitting. All are invited. Those planning to go will meet back of the music building.

The Easter service which was to be given at 6:30 Sunday morning by the Student Christian council has been called off because the women's physical education group will be unable to participate.

Robinson Gives Outstanding Performance in Guild Play; Cast Lends Superb Support

Acting Is Best of Recent Campus Productions; Audience Tardy

If most of the audience at Guild hall last night had been "Outward Bound" they would have missed the boat. Members of the audience dribbled in as if they were going to a picture show and not to what turned out to be the most ably acted production on the Guild hall stage in recent years.

Horace W. Robinson, as Tom Prior, the young wastrel, gave a brilliant performance. Drawing upon his extensive experience on the stage he painted a vivid picture of this character who was the first to find out that the passengers on the mystery ship were all dead.

Entire cast effective The delightful thing about the acting of the entire cast in Sutton Vane's strange play, "Outward Bound" was that contrary to the usual happening the less experienced members of the cast were not made to look amateurish by Mr. Robinson's performance but rather played up to him in a manner that clearly stamped their work in this play as the best they have done while in this school. No small amount of credits for this fact goes to Mrs. Ottilie Turnbull Seybolt, the director.

It was while he held the center of the stage that Mr. Robinson did his most effective bits. His fine tonal and facial shadings were closely followed by the audience and his stage business was clever and pertinent.

Mary Bennett Outstanding

Mary Bennett was Mrs. Midget last night. She made her role as the wistful Mrs. Midget the most sympathetic portrayal of the evening. Her cockney accent, which faltered almost unnoticeably once or twice, was otherwise consistent.

Every one of the Guild hall players gave a performance that was

Jury Gives Miss Hutchinson $500 in 'Golf Ball' Case

Hendershott Was Sued For $20,000

By LILYAN KRANTZ

Now if the dandelions in a treacherous gully on the golf course that 15th day of June, 1935, had not gone to seed and so become a vicious shield for a hiding golf ball, then Miss Ann Hutchinson, playing with a foursome on the course would not have been seeking so long. It follows that she would not have been hit on the head by the ball of Mr. Hermann P. Hendershott playing on the tee above the gully. Unfortunately, the dandelions had gone to seed. Moral: Tarry not, fair maiden.

Assuming the greatest professional dignity, the barrister-to-be of the trial practice class in third year law school enacted this first of the series of mock trials Thursday evening in the Lane county circuit court. Orlando J. Hollis, professor of law, was judge.

To reconstruct the case, Ann Hutchinson, winsome red-haired plaintiff, sued Hendershott for $20,000 damages. The jury granted her $500 damages for injuries and hospital expenses.

The quiet atmosphere was lent a most pertinent monetary touch

Oregon, OSC Profs, Students Join For PE Conclave

Women's physical education departments of the University of Oregon and Oregon State college are this week acting as hostess schools at a three-day conference of the western section of the National Association of Directors of Physical Education for Women, held on the Corvallis campus, April 7, 8, and 9. Miss Florence Alden of the University and Miss Laura McAllester of OSC, heads of the women's physical education departments, were in charge of program arrangements.

At the meeting of the western division held at Berkeley during the past year, Miss Alden acted as president of the association, and also served as secretary-treasurer of the national organization, which met last year at Oberlin College, Ohio.

Several Oregon professors and students are taking part in the three day program. In view of influences in a changing social order that are making a particular challenge to the field of recreation, the program committee enlisted Dr. Victor P. Morris, professor of economics, to discuss these trends.

Dr. John F. Bovard, dean and director of physical education for the Oregon system of higher education, discussed "Co-Educational Physical Education." For many years there has been a tendency

Social Chairmen of Men's Organizations To Discuss Rules

There will be a meeting of all social fraternities of men's halls and fraternity houses next Wednesday at 4 o'clock in 110 Johnson to discuss the various social rules of the University. All men social chairmen are asked to be present for the meeting which will be very short.

Green in, Four Out, 8 Take Infirmary Cure

Carroll Green was the only new patient to be admitted to the University infirmary yesterday to bring the total to eight students confined there. Four students were released.

Others included: Ila Rae Congleton, Frank Hitchcock, Doyle Pigg, Kirk Eldridge, Roderick Aya, Cromwell Mansell, and Kenyon Skinner.

An automobile traveling 45 miles an hour is extremely dangerous. Anyone wishing to go faster should get into the air for safety's sake.

Candidates Make Official Statements

Ten Fraternities Pledge Support to Finley; Hammond Opponent

Campus political organization, which appeared one-sided earlier this week, came into the open yesterday when leaders of both parties made official announcements concerning tickets which they will promote during the campaign fracas before election, April 23.

Following a political caucus held Thursday night at the Phi Delta house, Craig Finley, junior in psychology, announced his intention of running for the office of student body president.

The meeting at which Finley entered the campus political turmoil was attended by representatives of a majority of men's living organizations. Representatives of Phi Gamma Delta, Alpha Tau Omega, Delta Tau Delta, Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Chi, Phi Sigma Kappa, Theta Chi, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Phi Kappa Psi, Chi Psi, and Beta Theta Pi were present. They pledged their houses as 100 per cent behind Finley and the Finley ticket.

Finley's ticket is certain to include Jim Hurd, champion swimmer, as vice-president, Lillian Warn as secretary, Marjory Kissling, senior woman, Don Johnson, junior finance man, and Henry Minger, senior man.

"As far as my platform is concerned," Finley stated, "I cannot say anything until after definite action has been taken by the executive council on proposed changes in ASUO set-up. I am, however, very much pleased with the support which has been given me so far, and I feel certain that should I be elected, the loyalty of so large a group will do much to eliminate petty bickering between opposing political factions."

Don Thomas, recognized as the leader of the group backing Fred Hammond for student body president last night declared, "Our boys are sitting tight, and we will have things lined-up in a few days. We have been organizing right along; no changes have been made in the support. I believe we will be able to make a definite statement of our candidates by next Tuesday."

The announcement which came from Thomas last night appeared to end campus gossip that opposition to the Finley party was dormant, since the house splits last week. Hammond politics, small in number, have been acting quietly awaiting definite action from the opposite faction, but it is believed that they will swing into full force early next week in preparation of the nominating assembly Thursday.

Lee Is President Of Toastmasters

Howard Lee was elected president at a meeting of the Toastmaster club Wednesday night in the Y hut. Don Yeager was chosen vice-president, and Lew Evans secretary-treasurer.

The club will continue its regular policy of informal discussions, but will branch out into larger fields, Lee said in speaking of next year's plans.

Better campus contacts, and the ability of developing leadership and ease in expressing oneself in front of a group will be aims of the club, said the new president.

The policy of open meetings will be continued in hope that an all campus membership may be obtained. The Toastmaster club meets regularly Thursday evenings at 8 in the Y hut.

Dorothy Hagge, '37, Visits on Campus

Dorothy Hagge, former student in the University of the class of '37, is visiting on the campus from her home in Marshfield. Miss Hagge is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta, and was prominent in student activities before she withdrew from school the early part of winter term.

Wesley Club Installs Officers

Rites to Be Held Sunday; Photo of Officers Will Follow Ceremony

Candlelight installation services for new Wesley club officers will be held Sunday at 6:30 p. m. in the Methodist Episcopal church.

The new officers are: president, Victor Goff; vice-president, Mary Field; secretary, Mary Rickabaugh; treasurer, Wilbur Greenup; social chairmen, Naomi Tobie, Bailey Barnett; deputations, Howard Ohmart; dramatics, Wilfred Roadman; art, Gladys Saunders; social action, Charles Paddock; morning forum, Glenn Ridley; personnel, Francisco Tubban, Brittain Mac, Dorothy Rowland, Caroline MacNoul; firesides, Mary Seely; programs, Orval Etter, Grace Martin; publicity, Leonard Greenup; food, Hazel Lyle.

All old and new officers will meet on the front steps of the church for a picture immediately following the morning services. Everyone is asked to appear as the picture will be on a poster to be circulated throughout Oregon.

Forensic Season To Be Completed

University Speakers Will Visit Forest Grove and Newberg Monday

Three University speakers will visit Forest Grove and Newberg Monday for the last debates of the forensic season here, announced Prof. John L. Casteel, director of speech, yesterday.

Kessler Cannon, Howard Kessler and John Luvaas will discuss the question: "Can the United States Remain Neutral?" before a chamber of commerce luncheon at Newberg, and later in the day will address a woman's organization at Forest Grove.

The squad will leave for the north Monday morning, and will travel by automobile. Professor Casteel will accompany the debaters.

On Wednesday of next week, in the Del Rey cafe, will be held the forensic banquet, to which all speech students, as well as debaters, are invited. This event will close the debating for the year at Oregon. Members of the squads will present informal talks, relating their experiences on the thousands of miles traveled by the two men's and one women's teams during the past four months.

The complete Mother's day directorate has been named by Co-chairmen Grace Peck and Lucille McBride.

Gifts for them, Mrs. Cliveden-Banks and Ann, played by Helen Campbell and Portia Booth, respectively, were the most complete characterizations given by Mr. Roberts's supporting cast. The parts showed careful thought and minute preparation.

Robin Clinches Evidence That Spring Is Here

Concrete evidence that spring has brought "sweet winds and fair" to the Oregon campus may be seen by the activities of a robin which apparently is considering taking up housekeeping in a tree near the administration building.

Last year a robin—evidently the same bird or a near relative—demonstrated mass production and distribution without waste by raising and feeding five youngsters in a tree near the west wall of Johnson

This year's bird evidently has other sites in mind since it has visited its old haunts only once or twice. Each time it appears it has a worried, care-worn look on its motherly face as if it were being badgered by real estate agents. However, the season is yet in the early stages and it is hoped that the robin may reconsider and return to its old haunts to fetch up and educate the young 'uns.

Glee Setting Rated High By Notables

Decorations Hailed as 'Colorful,' 'Prettiest Ever Held'

Campus luminaries interviewed last night were unanimous in their approbation of the decorations for the gala Frosh Glee tonight in McArthur court.

"The pretties Frosh Glee ever held at the University," Ralph Schomp, assistant graduate manager, acclaimed.

"Very colorful," Helen Jones, winner of the canoe fete theme contest, said.

When Dan Flood's orchestra swings into the opening melody of the evening, huge McArthur court will have been transformed into a scene of Japan in the spring. A soft blue light will outline a colorful Japanese dragon and penetrate the hundreds of streamers and Japanese lanterns hanging over the dancers.

Murals depicting different scenes in a Japanese life will line the walls. Snow-covered Fujiyama will rise behind the orchestra stand.

Easter Togs Will Be Seen Clad in new Easter toggery campus eds and coeds will gather in the Igloo at 9 o'clock to dance amidst the appropriate spring mood. Long dresses will be in order and many males are expected to be garbed in white linen suits.

Featured as intermission entertainment will be the spring pledging ceremonies of Skull and Dagger, awaited with much interest over the entire campus. Ralph Cathey, Bill Dalton, and Lyle Baker have provided for a new impressive ceremony.

Plans for the Frosh Glee were made by Harry Clifford, assisted by Jack Lochridge. On the committee were Jay Langston, orchestra, Felker Morris, decorations; Sherry Brown, entertainment; Zane Kemler, programs; Forrest Landeen, clean-up; Lloyd Tupling, publicity; George Campbell, finance, and Frances Olsen, patrons and patronesses.

Randolph Pooley Dies Thursday

Randolph Pooley, ex-'37, died of acute heart trouble Thursday night in Palm Springs, California. He had attended the University of Oregon during 1934 and 1935 and was enrolled as a sophomore in the school of journalism. He was an affiliate of Chi Psi lodge.

Illness forced Pooley to discontinue his courses here last spring term and since that time he has been employed in Hood River, Oregon.

Surviving Pooley are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Pooley of Hood River, and a sister, Barbara, a student at Scripps College, California.

16 Best Dates to be Auctioned Off At AWS Carnival

Forget about getting that old tuxedo pressed. You won't need to sew that button on your vest, for you don't have to look your best next Saturday night when the AWS Carnival, "bigger and noisier than ever," comes to the campus. A pocketful of nickels, a pair of old shoes, and a carefree spirit are all that's needed to enjoy the evening.

Boys, haven't you always wanted to go stag to one of the large campus affairs? Here is your chance for the carnival is a no-date event. Perhaps you have always wanted a date with one of the sixteen best dates on the campus. If you are one of the sixteen highest bidders when Tom McCall auctions off the lunch boxes and the girls during the intermission, the girl is yours for the supper hour.

Roulette wheels, shooting ranges, fortune telling, beano, and races will be featured concessions in the booths run by the various living organizations. Cups will be awarded for the most attractive stand and for the one making the most money.

Mrs. Alice B. Macduff, Dr. and Mrs. Schwing, Ralph Schomp, and Mr. E. C. A. Lesch will judge the booths.

Jitney dancing will be another feature of the evening. Buck McGowan and his orchestra will play from 9:00 to 12:00. The floor will be waxed and polished so it will be smooth for dancing. Molly White, in charge of the dancing, announced.

The directorate for the carnival is headed by Elizabeth Turner. Girls helping her are Josephine McGilchrist, Frances Johnson, Jean Stevenson, Isabelle Miller, Kay Coleman, Gladys Battleson, Jane Lagasche, Molly White, Betty Riesch, Phyllis Adams, Vivian Emery, Marjorie Kissling, and Elizabeth DeBusk.

Dance Symposium Will End Today

35 on Hand for Two-Day Session; Five Colleges Are Represented

Opening the dance symposium sponsored by Master Dance, members of the honorary and guests held an open hour of dancing in Gerlinger hall last evening. A special feature of the hour was the techniques demonstrating percussion studies led by students from the different schools attending.

About 35 representatives from Linfield college, Oregon State college, Washington State college, and the University of Washington are attending the symposium, which will close today.

John L. Landsbury, dean of the school of music, Nowland Zane, associate professor of art, and Mrs. Faye Knox, instructor in the dance, will give a demonstration showing rhythm in music, space arts, and dancing at 9 o'clock this morning.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon Miss Betty L. Thompson of Oregon State college will lead a discussion group on "Modern Trends in Dance Composition." Miss Norma Anderson of Washington State college will lead the discussion of "The Program in College Dance Activities," at 3:30. Maxine Goetsch, president of Master Dance, will give a summary of the entire symposium.

Former UO Man's Story Printed

Writer Received MA Here In 1934; Was Active in Literary Work

Walter Evans Kidd, who received his M.A. here in 1934 and visited the campus during the week, has a story, "Plow in the Sunset," in the current number of the Frontier-Midland. Recently, also, he placed a group of poems with Poetry Magazine, the general title being "Autumn Furrows."

During his undergraduate years, Mr. Kidd, a member of Delta Upsilon, Phi Beta Kappa, and Ye Tabbard Inn, received several literary prizes, including the Edison Marshall story award and the George Sterling lyric prize. He also edited the verse column in the Emerald with a zest and progressiveness that stimulated a hot discussion not only on the campus but also in the state at large. At that time, his writings had appeared in American Mercury, Poetry, Voices, Palms, Nation, Commonwealth, Munsey, and other national magazines.

"Plow in the Sunset," he revealed, is but one of a series of projected stories to interpret the pioneer movement to Oregon, under his pen name, Conrad Pendleton. In addition, he is revising

Seniors May File Job Applications

Miss Janet Smith of the University employment office said last night that she was receiving applications from many employers asking for recommendations for permanent jobs.

These jobs are for students who are graduating in June. Anyone interested should see Miss Smith at her office in the Y hut during the first part of the week. People who are dependable and willing to work will be offered jobs which offer chances for promotion, though the pay is not large at first.

Miss Smith also said that a number of positions were being given students on the campus and that people had been very kind about this. She added, however, that students could use still more jobs.

Easter Breakfast Planned by Fijis

Foremost in campus Easter social affairs will be the annual Easter breakfast of Phi Gamma Delta to be held at the Osburn hotel at 9 o'clock. Many Portland members of the fraternity are expected for the breakfast, and guests of honor will be Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Schwing, Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed, and Major and Mrs. W. A. Wappenstein.

Jack Campbell is in charge of arrangements. Assisting him are Bill Hutchison, Ted Olsen, Fred Beck, Frank Binns, and Charles French. Music for the affair will be furnished by a trio composed of Elaine Moore, pianist, Martha Moore, violinist, and Mary Booth, cellist.

Three Apply For Oregon, Emerald Jobs

Clark, Johnson, Colvig In Race; 4 Want to Be Business Manager

Four major University publications positions were applied for by 10 students yesterday when they filed petitions with the publications committee. Midnight last night was the deadline for petitions.

Dan Clark II, Clair Johnson, and Fred Colvig petitioned for the position of Emerald editor. Competing for business manager of the Emerald are Reinhart Knudsen, Walter Verstrom, Howard Overback, and William Jones.

For the editorship of the Oregon, Mary Graham and Don Casciato filed petitions. Ed Morrow was the only petitioner for the position of Oregon business manager.

According to Ralph Schomp, assistant graduate manager, the publications committee will probably meet Monday to hear the petitions read. As stated in the ASUO constitution, this committee must recommend one person for each position to the executive council not later than the third week in April, which ends on April 18.

All Apply in 1935

Dan Clark II is sports editor of the Emerald, Clair Johnson is the present managing editor. Both are juniors in journalism. Colvig, a senior in journalism, is associate editor of the Emerald. All three of the petitioners also applied last year for the position of Emerald editor.

Mary Graham and Caselato are on the 1936 Oregon staff and are juniors in journalism. Morrow, prominent Oregon worker, is a sophomore in business administration. Jones and Overback are both sophomores in journalism. Knudsen is a junior in journalism, and Verstrom is a sophomore in business administration.
