Dean Allen Writes Friends Of Warming Sunrhine, Fun Aboard Atlantic Steamer

The editing class of the journalism school has received a letter from its traveling dean, Eric W. Allen, who is now on an extended tour of Europe.

Excerpts from the letter: "This is the night of the captain's farewell dinner and the costume ball and I, filled to the gills with one, and playing hokey with the other, am just sitting down to create a slight diversion. . . . Europe is just ahead—tomorrow is the last day on board. America is far behind—we have scarcely heard the English language spoken for the last week. I have carefully concealed the fact that my own youth was misspent in exactly the way most of you are misspending yours—the result it that I scarcely know when a German adjective takes the weak or the strong ending, or when a sentence ought to end with a habe gehabt geworden sein. I have therefore been studying grammar mornings and reading Edgar Wallace detective stories in German evenings, and playing the German version of shuffle board and ping-pong in between.

"The first part of the trip was a pretty strenuous race against time across the country. The doctor held us to the last minute on account of Bill's (his son) flu and pneumonia and we had to drive 400 miles a day. At Pendleton Bill awoke with a fever and we tried to get our Eugene doctor on the long distance from there but failed. When we left Boise the snow was falling and the wind was blowing. In Wyoming it was five below zero. In Idaho, and again in Nebraska, the mud guards were repeatedly so filled with ice that the car would not turn corners.

"We made the trip, however, on time at a cost of only $40 worth of gas and two quarts of oil. We had nearly a day to spare in New York and saw many friends, among them the faculty of the Columbia school of journalism with whom Bill and I visited. "The warmest weather we have had has been right here in the middle of the Atlantic. I haven't used even the light overcoat I brought with me but have been sitting on deck daily in a comparatively light suit. That may not mean much to you if this letter reaches you on a fine Eugene spring day, but it meant much to us after our race across the bitterly cold mountains.

"One cannot help liking these Germans. They have not the gracious manners toward strangers that characterize my friends the Japanese, Chinese, and Mexicans. But they do what they say, and everything is punctual to the tick of the clock. Every man is definitely and carefully trained for his job and he takes his work very seriously no matter how humble it may be. This ship is exceedingly well equipped and is kept scrupulously clean. The cooking is grand, and the only difficulty is to keep from eating like a hog. They have a kind of gift for merry making, too, that takes the shine off anything I ever saw in McArthur court or any Eugene fraternity house. They love to sing (Please turn to page two)

Elder, Overgard In Yeomen Race

Jameson Speaker For PE Club Monday

S. H. Jameson, professor of sociology, will speak on "The Value of a Sociological Background to Physical Education Majors," at the meeting of the Physical Education club next Monday evening, April 27.

Sophs, Striving for Goodwill Of OSC, See Jail Walls

By WAYNE HERBERT Brimming with that dear old spirit of congeniality with the students at OSC down the river at Corvallis, four Oregon sophomores jumped into their Chevrolet Tuesday night and chased to Benton county to arrange a picnic between the two second-year classes.

Messengers of goodwill making the trip, which was to develop into an escapade, were: Elizabeth "I'm a Pi Phi" Turner, Bob "Chi Psi" Wilhelm, Lyle "I Used to Be President" Baker, and Ralph "Mary's Got My Pin" Cathey. Cruising into the city of the college, the four sought the powers of OSC's sophomore class to plot a picnic at some half-way point. They forgot all about Corvallis' stringent rules of traffic.

Also they didn't know about a cop called "Squirrelly" by the farmer lads and lassies. It seems that he is the scourge of campus drivers. Attempting to park, Wilhelm

Ten Men Pledged To Asklepiad, Pre-Med Honorary

Ten outstanding sophomore pre-medical students were pledged last Wednesday evening by Asklepiad pre-med honorary, it was confirmed yesterday by Robert Cathey, president.

The pledges, who have been seen on the campus wearing a small bone as a sign of their admittance to the society are: Raymond Bogdonovitch, Henry Ash, James Perkins, Dick Hill, Thomas Fuson, Robert Gould, Max Carter, and Jack Newman.

Good scholarship and excellence in the pre-medical field are the qualifications necessary for the pledges chosen by Asklepiad. They will be formally initiated Friday, May 8.

Plans are being made by the society for a lecture on hypnotism. The date has been set as May 12. Tickets will go on sale in a short time.

Poetry Reading Finalists Picked

Bikman, Cannon, Pillette, Bromberg, Miss Bauer Are Chosen

George Bikman, Stanley Bromberg, Kessler Cannon, Marion Bauer, Milton Pillette, and John Luvaas were chosen for final competition in the annual W. F. Jewett poetry reading contest to be held April 29 in the men's lounge of Gerlinger hall.

Twelve students participated in the preliminary contest. Prizes of $20, $15, and $5 will be awarded to winners in the final.

Prize winners last year were: first place, Roberta Bennett, who read Tennyson's "Ulysses," Chesterton's "The Donkey," and Milly's "Oh, Oh, You Will Be Sorry for That Word"; second place, Alice Huit, with the selections, the 19th Psalm, Keats' "On First Looking Into Chapman's Homer," and Saret's "Wind in the Pine"; third place, Stanley Bromberg, with the speech of Gloucester from Richard III, Act I, Scene I, Keats' "Ode to the Grecian Urn," and Milton's sonnet, "On His Blindness."

Three-City Radio Program Coming

Inaugural broadcast of Oregon's first intra-state radio chain, the Oregon Network, is scheduled for Sunday from 9:15 to 11 p. m. over stations KSLM, Salem, KXL, Portland, and KORE, Eugene.

Art Holman's orchestra will start the inaugural program from station KORE with symphonic arrangements of popular numbers. The next feature on the program will come from Salem and the following one from Portland. Back around the circuit the program will swing for dedication speeches by mayors of Eugene, Salem, and Portland. Featured on the program is a short play, "Eve of Evelyn." The cast includes Ottilie Turnbull Seybolt, Yeoda Brown, William Cottrell, Guy Wernham, and Parks Hitchcock. The program will end with features originating in Salem and Portland.

Applications For Fete Jobs Are Requested

Continuity Writer and Announcer Sought by Chairman Lowry

Applications for the positions of continuity writer and announcer of the Canoe Fete, to be held May 9 of Junior Weekend, will now be accepted by Dave Lowry, chairman of the water festival.

One person may apply for both positions, but applications for either will be gladly received by the fete directorate. As soon as a sufficient number of students have asked for these positions, they will be tried out in some competitive manner to be arranged later by Lowry.

Special music arrangements are being discussed by Helen Jones, autress of the "Star Dust" theme, and Lowry, Miss Jones has also been assisting in the plans for individual house floats.

Construction of the stage for the fete has been progressing rapidly under the direction of Kermit Paulson. The framework of the platform, located across from the Anchorage bleachers, is almost completed. The throne of Junior Weekend Queen, the orchestra, and the announcers will be on the completed platform.

No changes in the songs to be used as the theme of individual floats have been made by the houses. The 10 floats will represent the songs originally scheduled for them at the first drawing.

Kenny Allen's 11-piece orchestra will play for the event. He is said to have a very good reputation in Portland, Lowry stated last night.

Queen of Weekend Will Be Elected Next Thursday

Marie Cavanaugh Wins $50 Award

Marie Cavanaugh, sophomore in journalism, won the first prize of $50 in the Edison Marshall short story contest for her story, "September Love." Prof. W. F. G. Thacher, who was in charge of the contest, announced yesterday.

Those awarded honorable mention were Virginia Scoville, junior in journalism, for her story, "A Fanfare to Judy Marsh," and Clark Spurlock, sophomore in social science, for his story, "Brady Was in It."

Nineteen manuscripts were entered in the contest, which is the twentieth of its kind sponsored by Edison Marshall, former student in the University, and now one of the foremost writers of fiction in the United States. Miss Cavanaugh, who lives in Oregon City, is a member of Mr. Thacher's class in short story writing.

Judge in Contest Were Mrs. Clara Fitch, Secretary to the Dean of the Graduate School; Kenneth Shumaker, Supervisor of the English Bureau; and Victor Kauffman, Former Student in the University who is now a professional writer.

Winner of the contest last year was Ruth McClain, then a senior in English.

Tiny White Collie Pup Theta Chi Pet

Added variety to the host of canine mascots of sororities and fraternities, Theta Chi has adopted a bouncing 5-weeks-old white collie pup for its official dog. The newcomer is not yet capable of negotiating its way around the campus because of his extreme youth and inexperience. It has not yet even a name. The pup is rapidly winning the attention which was given the fraternity's police dog, "Kiemmel" which was killed by an automobile near the College Side a year ago last fall.

Science Talk By R. W. Chaney Is Wednesday

Ralph W. Chaney, professor of paleontology at the University of California and nationally-known authority on that subject, will speak at a general assembly in Gerlinger next Wednesday at 11 a. m., according to announcement from Dean Onthank's office.

Topic of his address will be "A Scientist's Adventures in Mongolia and Central America." Speaker is Traveler Born in Chicago in 1890, Dr. Chaney has done field work on Cenozoic paleobotany in Central and South America and has visited Mongolia, China, the Philippine Islands, Manchukuo, Chosen, and Japan on other expeditions studying fossils and flora. On several of these expeditions he has accompanied Roy Chapman Andrews, world-famous explorer, who spoke at Oregon several years ago.

Although Professor Chaney has never spoken before the University student body he is no stranger to Eugene and its vicinity, having been here to gather material for a book on the flora of Goshen, a small town 10 miles east of here. Chaney Arrives Tuesday Dr. Chaney will arrive on the campus Tuesday in order that he may attend the banquet of Sigma Xi, science honorary, at which he is scheduled to speak. His subject will be "Ancient Forests of Oregon."

For his speech at Gerlinger, Professor Chaney will be introduced by President C. Valentine Boyer.

PE Faculty Attend Mt. Hood Meeting

Miss Harriet W. Thompson and E. R. Knollin, professors of physical education, are in charge of discussion groups at the spring meeting of the Oregon State Physical Education association.

The meeting is being held at Mazama lodge at Government Camp, Mt. Hood, today and tomorrow. Other faculty members attending the meeting are Earl E. Boushey, Miss Florence D. Alden, Miss Warrine Eastburn, Mrs. Faye Knox, and Miss Janet Woodruff.

Eight Patients Left In Infirmary Friday

Eight students were confined in the University infirmary last night according to reports of the University health officials.

Jane Chapler was the only new patient to be admitted and the other seven include: William Robinson, Woodrow Robinson, Clyde Walker, Doyle Pigg, Richard Reum, Floyd Conner, and Jack Gavin.

Lady Primrose Gets $1265 at Lawyers' Moo' Trial

Lady Primrose was avenged to the tune of $1265 Thursday night at the moo' trial of the third year law students when Otto Vonderheit, dairy farmer, was awarded damages from Alton Hakanson who descended into his herd with a parachute, stampeding his 35 cows into a barbed wire fence.

Winner of the 1934 Oregon Jersey show, Lady Primrose was the pride and joy of Farmer Vonderheit's herd, his only livelihood. When Hakanson, whom the plaintiff charged with negligence, was forced to bail out of his plane, his parachute frightened the cows, who saw him descending and ran into the fence. They were cut and damaged, two so badly that they had to be killed.

Westminster Will Elect Officers Sunday

Westminster association will elect officers for 1936-1937 at the forum meeting Sunday evening at 6:30. Frank Evensen will discuss plans for the spring conferences to be held on the McKenzie May 2 and 3. Edna Carlsen will conduct the worship service. Tea will be served at 6. Miss Lois Lutz, Lane county home demonstration agent, will be the speaker at Westminster morning group Sunday at 9:45. Her talk will be the third in a series on "Community Service." Laura Bryant will have charge of the worship.

Baseball Diamond Officially Named H. C. Howe Field

Long awaited questioning as to the future name of Oregon's new "Anonymous" baseball field ended yesterday with official christening of the grounds as "Howe Field" in honor of Prof. H. C. Howe, who is Oregon faculty representative in the Pacific Coast conference.

"Write Home," Asks Committee Mother's Day Group Will Contact Houses Today For Cooperation

With "Write - a - Letter -- to - Mother" as their password, a group of students will visit every living organization on the campus sometime today to personally ask every student to cooperate in extending invitations to "moms" to visit on the campus Junior Weekend, May 8, 9, and 10.

The personnel of the speech and pamphlet - distributing group is Mary McCracken, Toni Lucas, Hat Kistner, Evelyn Porter, John McCleod, William Chambrea, James Morrison, and Bill Marsh. Virginia Endicott, chairman of the banquet the evening of May 9, has announced that chicken will be featured on the menu. "Last fall the dads who came down for Homecoming and Dad's day were treated with chicken so we thought that we couldn't slight the mothers with anything less than the popular fowl of the dinner table," she said.

Others on the Mother's day diet rectorate with Miss Endicott and Marsh are Co-chairmen Lucile McBride and Grace Peck, Wayne Harbert, Margery Kissing, and Marjorie Smith.

Dorothy Nyland Leaves for East

Miss Nyland, for several years director of Methodist student activities at the University of Oregon, went to Cleveland, Ohio, for a general conference of Methodist church leaders which is held every four years. While there she will confer with missionary authorities in regard to establishing Wesley foundation units in Japan, where she expects to go within the next six months. She is expected to return to the University of Oregon before the end of the term.

Miss Hughes, who recently resigned as executive secretary of the University YWCA, will go to Swarthmore college, where she will take courses in peace work.

Prexy Boyer Performs Christening as Rain Chrenching Grounds on Opening Day

It's His Field Now

Oregon's varsity baseball field will hereafter bear the name of Professor Howard Crombie Howe, a pioneer in athletics here. Rain yesterday ruined all opening festivities, but the dedication of the field was performed by President Boyer between showers and before several hundred faithful fans, who held hopes of seeing a game until the last minute.

As he dedicated the field Boyer said, "Professor Howe has endeared himself to the students of the University of Oregon, both past and present, through his vigilant protection of their rights in the athletic world. His loyalty and his sincerity in his contacts with the athletics of this University have moved those in charge of the naming of this beautiful field to forever consecrate his name.

"Therefore, by the power in me vested as president of the University of Oregon, on behalf of the students both past and present, on behalf of the faculty and the state at large, I hereby dedicate this field and bestow upon it the name of Herbert Crombie Howe field."

Bovard, Washke Return to Campus

John F. Bovard, dean of the physical education school, and Paul R. Washke, director of men's gym, returned Wednesday from St. Louis, Missouri, where they have been attending the annual conference of the American Physical Education association.

Dean Bovard is a member of the governing board and of the legislative council. Mr. Washke was elected chairman of the intramural group of the APEA. Mr. Washke reports having seen two former Oregon faculty members, Dr. Delbert Oberbauer, now with Ohio State university, and Dr. Harry Scott, with Rice Institute. Both men were directors of the men's gym at the University. Many interesting speeches were given, said Dr. Bovard. Of particular interest and importance in regard to its effect on the University was the speech given by President Linderman, who spoke on standards for PE schools. This subject has been studied for several years with little success, said President Linderman. In order to get an idea of what are the best subjects in PE, questionnaires will be sent to the prominent schools. From the curricula of these schools standards in physical education will be made.
