Ducks Are Hosts To Pilot, Beaver Tracksters Today

Portland University is First Outside Guest in History of Relays; to Start at 2

The largest annual relay meet in Oregon with Oregon and Oregon state entertaining the University of Portland as the first outside guest in history, will be run off on Hayward field today, starting at 2 o'clock.

This will be the ninth meeting of the Webfoot and Orange track meets. Oregon has won four of the victories, Oregon State 3 and one has been a tie.

Not all the rain rains in the skies could save the life of the most distinctive name for a baseball field in the world—Anonymous. We're sorry to say that this is the last time "Anonymous field" will be rattled off our keyboard.

Herbert Crombie Howe field is an entirely fitting name for the orchard, however, and we're all behind it. And that includes the lads who count out the headlines.

Why do the little schools in the Northwest conference continually and consistently trounce their big northern division brothers in baseball?

Expressions of amazement are heard on all sides at the crushing defeats handed Oregon State and also Oregon by Willamette, Linfield, and other teams of their caliber this spring. Whitman beat Idaho seven times in a row and split with Washington State. And it happens every spring.

In football and basketball it's just take it, take it, take it for the little fellow against the big schools, but in baseball the big boys are forced to gulp down bitter doses of their own medicine.

Ducks Play Reed Today In Tennis

Oregon Varsity Court Squad to Attempt to Preserve Record

Oregon's varsity tennis team will seek its second victory of the season at 2:30 this afternoon when it meets the Reed varsity on the University courts.

Paul Washke, tennis coach, returned Thursday from a trip to the East, but showers have prevented him from seeing how his team looks after his almost two weeks absence.

Reed college has won the three matches it has played with but the loss of three sets, and no points. Twice they have blanked Pacific university and once Oregon normal.

Oregon downed Oregon normal with the loss of only one set in their only official match so far. In a practice match with the Leader tennis shop of Portland a combination of varsity and frosh players lost 6 to 3.

Probable starting lineup for Reed college places Wendell Maccolly in number one position, Captain Glen Soth as number two, Bob Fariss as number three, Isaac Katz as number four, and Jimmy Black as number five.

Economus Number One The lineup for Oregon is expected to be the same that faced Oregon normal. This puts John Economus as number one; Larry Crane, captain and number two; Norman Winslow, number three; Chuck Eaton, number four; and either Sam Bikman or Bill Hutchison as number five. If Oregon wins most of the singles, Worth Chaney and Bill Zimmerman will probably play first doubles.

Although comparative scores would indicate a close match, Oregon should be able to win. The first three players on the varsity are strong and should win at least two if not all three of their matches. Oregon can also put two strong doubles combinations on the courts if necessary.

In case of rain the matches will be started in the Igloo at an earlier hour.

A Brazilian tree, the Andira Laurifolia, has its trunk underground. What appear to be surface roots are really the branches of the tree.

President Boyer, pictured above, was all set to knock Chancellor Hunter's first pitch out of the lot in the opening day ball game scheduled yesterday, but April showers kept him on the bench.

Baseball Opener Rained Out; Play At Oregon State

Softball Squabble To Be Ironed Out

First steps to straighten out the intramural softball playoff, thrown into turmoil by the ineligibility of Pi Kappa Alpha, will be taken Monday afternoon when Omega hall and Theta Chi meet for the championship of league four. The game is set for 4 o'clock.

The Pi Kaps have already defeated Alpha Tau Omega in the round-robin playoff for the title, but that games will be thrown out and the ATO's will be forced to meet the winner of the Theta Chi-Omega fray.

The ATO's hold one legal victory over the Abba Dabbas, and the Betas hold the only other legitimate playoff triumph, also won at the expense of the Abba Dabbas. No further games will be played until after the ATO's meet the Theta Chi-Omega winner.

Frosh Divoteers Play Uni High

Tom Stoddard's University of Oregon freshman golf team will play the strong University high divot diggers over the Laurelwood course this afternoon.

The Ducklings defeated the preppers in a practice match earlier in the season. Doug Ramsey, Portland, leads the yearling golfers.

Ducklings Rest As Rain Pours

Oregon's freshman baseball squad rested yesterday to watch the opening varsity game of the year, which was rained out by vigorous spurts of water.

No further contests are planned for the Ducklings until the Rook-Frosh opener slated to be played here Saturday afternoon on Junior weekend, May 9. Several practice informal contests probably will be scheduled.

After the first of the little civil wars, the Ducklings travel to Corvallis May 15 for the second of the annual four-game series.

Pitching for the frosh will undoubtedly be the ex-Washington high chucker, "Chic" Sayles. Sayles' injured leg muscle has re-

Howe Field Is Officially Named by President Boyer; Games Will Be Played May 25

April showers bring May flowers and also May baseball games. Yesterday's Oregon-Oregon State opener on the newly christened Howe field was showered out and postponed until Monday, May 25. The Webfoots and Beavers are scheduled for another opening day try at Corvallis this afternoon, and if today's tilt is also muddied out it will be played Tuesday, May 26.

A gallant effort was made to provide a ball game for the opening day ceremonies to be ceremonious about, but when the sun broke through the clouds and hopes were raised, it was only a signal for an ensuing shower.

Several Hundred Turn Out Gasoline was burned for hours on the field in an attempt to put it in playing shape, but there wasn't a chance. Several hundred fans, half of which were ROTC boys returned from a parade in the rain, gathered to see President Boyer dedicate the field.

The Oregon players dressed and tossed a few balls around, but more rain fell and the diamond was again turned into a mud pie. Fans were handed rain checks, and opening day "firsts" and Chancellors Hunter's pitching were postponed until the next scheduled Oregon State game here a week from Thursday.

McFadden to Start If the teams are able to play at Corvallis today, Don McFadden for Oregon and Dean Johnston for Oregon State will again be the starting pitchers. Word from Stas Gill is that the Beaver diamond is in bad shape and it is likely that playing will be impossible.

Washington State college will meet the Webfoots here next Wednesday and Thursday.

Oregon and Oregon State were not the only baseball teams rained out yesterday. The Washington State-Idaho game, scheduled for Moscow, was also wiped off the boards by April showers.

sponded well to treatment and the sizzle-ball thrower will begin working out regularly again next week.

Mermen Swim Friday at OSC

Five Oregon Men to Enter AAU Meet in Corvallis Tank May 1

Oregon's undefeated swimmers, Pacific coast champions, will have one more fling at outside competition before the long dry spell between now and next season.

Five members of Mike Hoyman's class crew will enter the state A.A.U. meet at Corvallis next Friday night. Mermen who will churn water for Coach Hoyman against the top-notch amateurs of the state are Jim Hurd, unbeaten coast sprint champion; Jim Reed, national and coast record holder in numerous events; Chuck Reed, breaststroke luminary; Leonard Scroggins, sprints, and Bert Myers, diving king of the northern division.

Five freshman swimmers and five University high lads will also be entered at Corvallis. The Duckling entrants are Jack Levy, distance events; Ed Robertson, backstroke; DeVer Kerby, breaststroke, and Howard Morgan and Jim Smith, sprints.

Jim Reed is the only member of Hoyman's varsity squad who will not be back for more competition next year. Forest Kerby, backstroke champ in 1935, finished his collegiate career at the end of winter term and swimming in early meets.

Veterans who will be on hand again next season are Harold Sexton, distance events; Bob Chilton

'Finn' Lindgren, Hayward's Standby, on Last Lap

By HUBARD KUOKKA The grand old man of the track team is Arne Lindgren. He is the "last leaf" of the 1931 frosh track team, appendicitis having kept him out of school a year. Is he versatile? If Bill Hayward lacks a man for any event he just says, "Let 'Finn' do it."

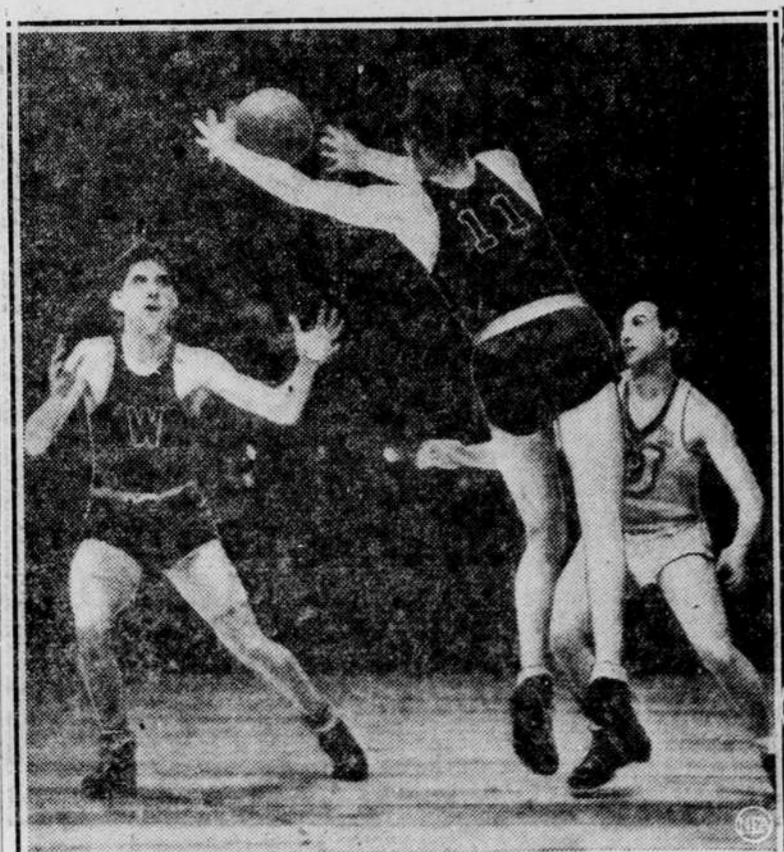

This 23 year old Finn from Astoria hopes to win his third stripe this year. He is six feet, one and one-half inches tall, and weighs 175 pounds. He is majoring in physical education.

Lindgren was Northwest broad-jumping champ in his sophomore year. He jumped 23 feet, 5 inches in the Northwest meet at Eugene. Last year in the Oregon-Oregon State dual meet he set a record, jumping 23 feet, 6 inches.

The broadjump isn't his only event. He has been running the sprint, quarter mile, high hurdles, and throwing the javelin. The pole vault will be another job for him to handle this year.
