

CANOE FETE TONIGHT CLIMAXES WEEKEND

Award Cups Given At Junior Prom

Royal Barge of Queen Peggy I To Lead Floats

Crowd of 3500 Students, Guests Expected to Line Millrace Banks

STARTS AT 8:15

Entries Represent Songs: 'Stardust' Idea Will Be Used Throughout

Under a galaxy of stars in a clear sky, the score of floats in the 1936 "Stardust" Canoe Fete will slip down the mill stream before an expected crowd of 3,500 students and their guests tonight.

Martha McCall, Del Bjork Win Koyl, Gerlinger

New AWS Head, Football Captain Outstanding Man and Woman

GPA CUPS GIVEN

Queen and Princesses Lead Grand March at Junior Dance

Martha McCall and Del Bjork were called from the hundreds of dancing students at the Junior Prom last night and presented the Gerlinger and Koyl cups, respectively, for being judged the most outstanding junior woman and man.

Outstanding

Pictured above are Martha McCall, top, and Del Bjork, bottom, who were awarded the Gerlinger and Koyl cups, respectively, at the Junior Prom last night.

Traditional Luncheon Opens Weekend With Coronation, Choice of Junior Leaders

Inaugurated by the crowning of Queen Peggy Carper, Oregon's gay Junior Weekend got under way yesterday noon at the traditional campus luncheon, with its accompanying impressive ceremony of pledging of Mortar Board and Friars members.

With hundreds of students and mothers crowding around the luncheon tables, the University band played the royal march as Junior Class President Jack McGirr and Scabbard and Blade members escorted Queen Peggy and her princesses to the throne.

Leaders Are Chosen

Immediately following this the black-robed Mortar Board and Friars members started to wend their way through the crowds to pick the outstanding junior women and men. Those chosen, in order of selection, were:

FRIARS

- 1. Frank Nash
2. Don Thomas
3. Clair Johnson
4. Fred Hammond
5. Jim Hurd
6. Fred Colvig

MORTAR BOARD

- 1. Mrs. C. Valentine Boyer
2. Helen Bartrum
3. Margiee Morse
4. Virginia Endicott
5. Martha McCall
6. Mildred Blackburne
7. Elaine Comish

Selections are based on scholarship, leadership, activities, and service.

Also during the ceremonies, members of Skull and Dagger distributed free copies of "Scrupes," new campus humor magazine, to students and guests.

Men Are Dunked

Intermingled with these other activities, Order of the "O" men had their day as they dunked campus leaders, white-shoe and necktie wearers, men talking to women, and even women in the nearby water fountain.

Following the luncheon all adjourned to the faculty tennis courts to listen to the music of Kenny Allen's orchestra and watch and participate in the dancing. The prize dance this year was won by whirling Ruth Orrick and partner, Phoebus Klonoff.

The committee in charge of the luncheon was headed by Margiee Morse and composed of Ralf Finseth, assistant chairman; Lillian Warn, serving; Ken Phillips, grounds; Avery Combs, finance; Bob Olbksen, service and clean up; Marie Rasmussen, secretary.

Members Listed

Members of Mortar board chosen last year were: Peggy Chessman, Ebba Wicks, Virginia Younie, Dorothy Bergstrom, Ann-Reed Burns, Mary McCracken, Margaret Ann Smith, Henriette Horak, and Elaine Sorensen.

Friars members chosen last spring were: Robert Lucas, Cosgrove LaBarre, William Schloth, James Blais, Budd Jones, and Edmund Labbe. Chosen last fall were: Willard Jones, Bob Thomas, Robert Allen, Thomas McCall, William Hall, and Roland Rourke.

Slugsy Gunn Evens Score With Canoe Feters

"I got a problem. I may even add. I got sum problem." Slugsy Gunn, the luscious lass defeated recently in the lass roundup for queen of Junior Weekend, sadly chewed her cud as she sat on the reporter's knee and leaned her head against his back.

"What's up?" asked the reporter, scenting news.

"American Canned, Standard Oil, and General Electric," mumbled Slugsy meditatively.

"Well, it didn't smell exactly like news anyhow," said the interviewer, acknowledging his error.

"How would you like to die?" spoke Slugsy out of nowhere.

The reporter shied violently, disturbing four other couples on the bench.

"Of old age," he replied, with trepidation.

Slugsy came back from nowhere, and sneered prettily.

"I'm gonna commit me a suicide," she boasted, taking out her teeth and showing them to the reporter.

"But I need your help."

"Glad to," assented Strongheart, pulling a pocket knife from his pocket.

"Where shall I begin?" Slugsy ignored him.

"Suicide's such a puzzle," she meditated.

"How would you suggest I do it?" "Hanging?" ventured the reporter.

"Now, that leaves things all up in the air. But it reminds me. Would you please throw that cigar away?"

"Gas?"

"At 19 cents a gallon? Don't be ridic."

"Glass?"

"Just an old cut-up, ain't youse?"

"Drowning?"

"Why pick a time like this to start drinking water?"

"Arsenic?"

"Would Nick know any more about it than you?"

"Well, how would you like to jump in front of a bullet?" said the reporter in exasperation.

"Now, there's an idea!" cried Slugsy, her eyes lighting up.

"Five candle power," estimated the reporter.

"Of course, I can shoot myself. People would be saying it was all a pun, and I will not have any puns haunting me."

So Slugsy and her assistant meandered down to the railway tracks across from the Anchorage, and the reporter adjusted Slugsy nicely across the rails.

"This'll make a swell story, kid," comforted the pressman.

"Slugsy's Suicide in Three Parts." They'll probably elect you post-humous queen and play 'Hearts and Flowers' during the Canoe Fete."

Pretty soon they heard a train booming along, whistling "Mighty Oregon" in honor of Junior Weekend.

It kept a-comin' on and on, and kept a gettin' closer and closer, and the reporter sat back smoking his pipe and watching Slugsy philosophically.

But just as the train was a few feet away, Slugsy jumped up.

"Lookie here," protested the reporter.

"That ain't fair."

Slugsy sniffed disdainfully.

"Didja see it, hah?"

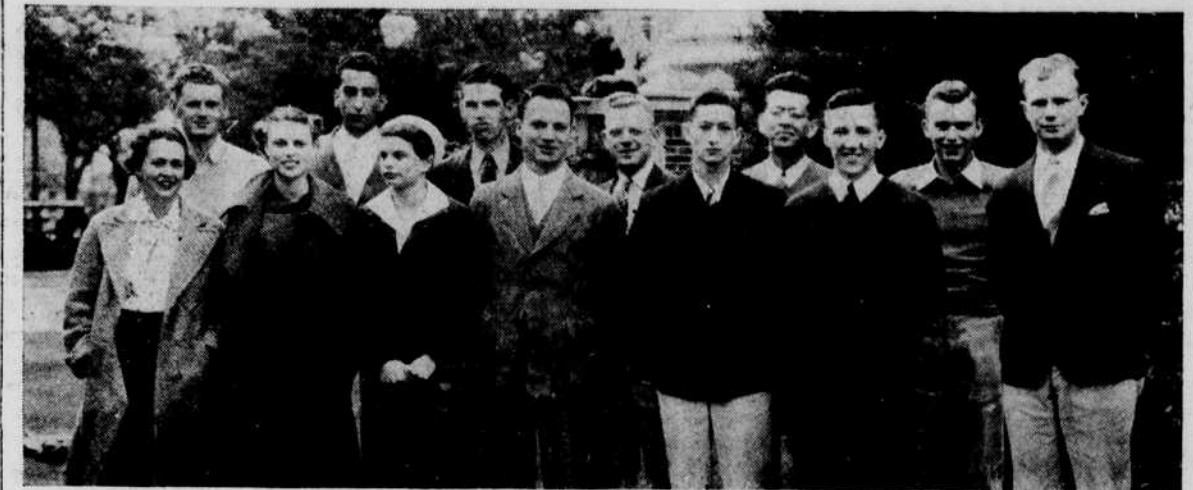

"Yes, but..."

"Freight train, wasn't it? I ain't gonna be run over by no measly freight. I'm going to wait for a Pullman."

But Slugsy didn't. A minute later, three venerable mountaineers, with gray-colored frowning beards, walked up and said:

(Please turn to page two)

Directors of Junior Weekend Events

In charge of Junior Weekend festivities are the following: From left to right, Betty Coon, Ed Morrow, LaNelle Mathews, Walter Eschebeck, Margiee Morse, Fred Hammond, Dan Clark, Harry Campbell, Victor Rosenfeld, Jack McGirr, Dave Morris, Henry Minger, Dave Lowry.

Variety For Moms

Mothers Feast In Men's Dorm Tonight at 5:30

Banquet to Seat Nearly 500 Moms, Sons, and Daughters

Mothers of University students will be feted during the next two days with festive Junior Weekend activities starting at 8:30 a. m. today.

Opening a long series of events especially for the entertainment of visiting mothers, the executive committee breakfast for all mothers will be held at John Straub Memorial hall at 8:30 a. m.

Second event for mothers only is the mass meeting in the Guild theatre of Johnson hall at 1:30 p. m. Officers for the coming year will be elected.

Noted Author Speaker

Climaxing the event-filled schedule will be the Mother's day banquet in John Straub Memorial hall beginning at 5:30 p. m. Mabel Holmes Parsons, noted Oregon author, will be the principal speaker for the evening.

Five hundred places will be set for mothers and their sons and daughters.

All day Sunday the entire campus will pay tribute to mothers. Special services have been arranged in all Eugene churches. Services will be followed by special Mother's day dinners in all men's and women's living organizations.

Breakfast Sunday Morning

The Oregon Mother's executive committee will breakfast at 8:30 Sunday morning to make plans for 1937 activities.

A tea and special reception for mothers who arrived early was held yesterday in Gerlinger hall.

Don Anderson On All-Star Team

The name of Don Anderson, Alpha Tau Omega pitcher, was omitted from the Emerald all-star intramural softball team yesterday.

Anderson, who pitched the ATOs into second place for the season, shares all-star hurling honors with Bill Jones, Delta Upsilon.

Sears, Roebuck Representative to Be At YMCA Hut Today

C. B. Caldwell, representative for Sears, Roebuck company, will be in the employment office in the Y but this morning to interview seniors interested in merchandising.

He is one of several men who will be here for interviews before the end of school.

Program SATURDAY, MAY 9

8:30 a. m.—Executive committee breakfast for mothers, Straub hall.

9:30 a. m.—Frosh-soph tug of war.

10:30-12:00 — Water carnival, millrace.

1:30 p. m. — Mother's mass meeting, Guild theatre.

2:00 p. m.—Track meet, Hayward field.

3:00-5:00 p. m.—Special exhibit at Oriental Art Museum.

8:30 p. m.—Baseball game, U of O vs. U of W.

5:30 p. m.—Mother's day banquet, John Straub hall.

8:15 p. m.—Canoe Fete, millrace.

SUNDAY, MAY 10

8:30 a. m.—Mothers executive committee breakfast, Straub hall.

11:00 a. m.—Special services in all Eugene churches.

1:00 p. m. — Special Mother's day dinner in all living organizations.

Roduner Vocal Recital to Be At 8 Monday

Kenneth Roduner, tenor, is to be presented in concert by the school of music Monday evening in the music auditorium at 8 o'clock.

Roduner, a graduate assistant at the music school, was active in local music circles during his undergraduate days, but has not given a campus recital for three years.

While in New York he was soloist for St. Mary, The Virgin, Episcopal church, and had the privilege of singing with the Schola Cantorum, who do all choral work for the New York Philharmonic orchestra under the leadership of Toscanini.

Cummings, Terry Place Wager on Race 'War'

Husky Leland Terry of Theta Chi, soph chairman of the tug-of-war, and Freshman Flash Bill Cummings, Phi Delta's yearling chairman, in the heat of class rivalry yesterday made a wager on the outcome of the battle Saturday morning.

"The frosh'll not have a prayer," screamed Terry.

"By gosh, if the sophs pull us into the water, I'll back you on my back clear up the hill to the Theta Chi house," Cummings offered.

"You're on," agreed Terry. "And if the frosh win I'll pack you on my shoulders and not stop until you're deposited on the doorstep of Phi Delta Theta!"

Either way, somebody's going for a ride!

The site of the tug-of-war has been moved back to its position of last year, below the Anchorage.

Water Stunts Start at 9:30 This Morning

Frosh-Soph Tug-of-War Opens Aqua Carnival On Millrace

Students will cavort on the old millrace when freshmen and sophomores open the annual Junior Weekend water carnival with a fiery tug-of-war today.

Every type of water athletics will be presented by University students.

Freshmen will line the north side of the millrace with sophs taking their stand on the opposite side.

The battle-royal of the year will take place on the same historic spot below the Anchorage where first and second-year students for decades past have stood to uphold their honor.

Limit Abandoned

The 50-man limit, arbitrarily arranged by frosh and soph leaders, was dropped yesterday and all eligible men will be allowed to enter.

High spot of the water carnival will be the log-rolling contest between Mary McCracken and Jean Stevenson, ace coed swimmers, and Bill Reese and Bruce McIntosh.

Misses McCracken and Stevenson originally were to put on the exhibition alone; but a challenge to Oregon males brought a ready acceptance from the two defenders.

To Show Diving Form

Bert Myers, Northwest diving champion, and Bob Chilton, stellar running-mate, will put on a group of specialty dives from the high board at the Anchorage. Members of Oregon's coast championship swimming team will compete in a series of races. Coed swimmers will also exhibit their speed strokes in special women's events.

Amphibian Show To Mimic Classes

"A Floating University" will be the idea represented in the Amphibian water pageant to be given in Gerlinger swimming pool next Wednesday and Thursday evenings at 8 and 8:30 o'clock.

Features of the evening will be the geometry, history, and military classes in which examinations will be expressed as swimming races.

There will be a promenade of the swimmers as at a ball.

Admission is 25 cents. Tickets may be purchased from any Amphibian or from any member of the varsity swimming club.

All Frosh Meet at 7:45 This Morning At Corner by Side

All freshmen, numeral men as well as others, are to be at the corner by the College Side this morning at 7:45. It was announced last night by Bill Cummings, chairman of the frosh.

The men will go out to paint the "O" on Skinner's Butte under the supervision of Skull and Dagger and Order of the "O."

Phi Betes Will Honor Officer With Dinner

Oregon Alpha chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honorary, will be host to Dr. William A. Shimer, secretary of united chapters of Phi Beta Kappa, at a dinner to be given Monday evening at the Anchorage.

Dr. Shimer is making a nationwide tour, visiting chapters and members of the honorary. He will be in Eugene Monday afternoon and evening, leaving for Sacramento, California, shortly after midnight.

At the dinner Dr. Shimer will speak on the "Philosophy of Culture," and will also explain some of the aims and projects of the honorary.

Mrs. R. T. Miller, who graduated from the University in 1932, is an assistant secretary to Mr. Shimer.

Westminster House To Honor Mothers

Westminster students will honor mothers at the morning service at 9:45 Sunday. In addition to the discussion and worship, there will be special music and readings. All students are invited to attend with their mothers.

Oren Preerksen will lead a discussion of current problems at the forum at 6:30 Sunday evening. Beverley Caverhill will have charge of the worship service.

Mikesh, Not Michek Married Last Week

In order to clear up misunderstanding concerning untrue rumors of his marriage, Frank Mikesh announced last night that he definitely was still a single man and had no marital intentions.

The incorrect stories had spread following publication in Portland papers of his marriage, when in actuality it was the marriage of Frank Mikesh, who lives in Scappoose, the same town as the Oregon athlete.

Log Rollers and Swimmers Meet at Anchorage at 10:00

All prospective entrants in the log rolling and swimming contests at the carnival today are requested to be in front of the Anchorage at 10:00 a. m.

There will be no entrance requirement except that members of the swimming teams will be ineligible. All races are to be for 75 yards.

Silver loving cups are to be awarded to men and women winners of the events.