'Back to Oregon' Pledge of New Soph '38 Club

They're very much on the campus now, these Kwama and Skull and Dagger men and women, but as provision against the vagaries of time, the members of the sophomore service honoraries banded together in the '38 club last night and vowed to return to Oregon once each year.

On one Saturday, the club members are pledged to gather at high noon at the Anchorage—or any successor inn on the millrace site—Saturday of Junior Weekend.

The action to form the club came at a banquet in the Anchorage last night when the organizations combined for their last formal functions.

Each member signed the pledge to return every year during the weekend and to attend the banquet. In case anyone is unable to attend, he or she is to send a telegram or letter to those attending the meeting telling what he is doing and where he is.

Following the banquet, and in response to demands for an address, Isabelle Miller, Oregon's Emily Post, shocked the group with the brief statement that "I've been so busy gulping my food that I haven't had time to see if everything is in order."

Lyle Baker and Ralph Cathey, who will wander in Europe next year, gave a brief sketch of their proposed travels.

Robert John Wilhelm, speaker of the evening, was introduced by Woodrow Truax, Emerald radio editor.

Convicts Are Human, Says Dr. Geohegan

Educational Program at McNeil Island Prison Outlined

"The prisoner is a human being." Using this statement as a keynote, Dr. J. Herbert Geohegan, educational supervisor of McNeil Island federal penitentiary, explained in Gerlinger hall Tuesday the aims and accomplishments of the "New Deal for the Prisoner" now in effect at the Washington prison.

The idea at McNeil Island is to keep in mind that the prisoner must go back into the world, Dr. Geohegan said. To make him less anti-social than when he came in is part of the "large order" assigned to Dr. Geohegan and the staff of psychiatrists and educators who plan the courses and program to give the prisoner.

Everything from grammar school work to college courses is offered. Almost all of the work is carried on through private tutors, the convicts themselves instructing each other. The success of this work is shown, Dr. Geohegan said, by the fact that 70 per cent of the men are taking educational work.

Part of the McNeil system is the isolation of newcomers from the rest of the convicts. They do not have contact with the men for 30 days. In that time they are interviewed, investigated, and studied to learn what can be done to put them back into a normal life.

Dr. Geohegan stressed the point that prisoners were not greatly different from other people. Many of them, according to him, are criminals only because of accidents or unlucky or unfortunate incidents. Many of us are not in prison only because we have been lucky, he intimated.

Prison environment in the past has been very bad for the young criminal, the educator said. The young convict often has learned how to "blow a pete," (crack a safe), or counterfeit a bill, while in prison. These conditions must be changed, Dr. Geohegan believes, and at McNeil Island constructive efforts in that direction are being made.

More Jobs Open This Summer

Students Needing Position Can See Miss Smith at YMCA Hut

Summer jobs for students are being turned in from all parts of the Northwest and in large numbers, according to Miss Janet Smith, who is in charge of the employment bureau of the University of Oregon. Students are to apply for these positions through the office which is located in the YMCA hut on the campus.

"Good times and the satisfactory service given by the University students last summer are the reasons for the plentiful jobs," Miss Smith said. The positions are chiefly in resorts and lodges as waitresses, bell-hops, and clerks.

Miss Smith has been working on a plan, yet indefinite, to send a group of girls and a chaperone to eastern Oregon, where the new irrigation project has built up a large industry in raising and canning peas. The girls will be paid higher wages than usual, it is believed, because of the scattered population in that district.

Positions for next fall are expected to be more plentiful, too. Students wishing to apply for them are asked to write to Miss Smith during the vacation.

Seabeck Rally Will Be Tonight

A Seabeck rally to acquaint girls with the fun and benefits derived from meeting other students of the Northwest in a two weeks summer outing on the shores of Puget Sound, will be held tonight in the YWCA bungalow from 9 until 10:15 o'clock.

Eileen Donaldson, who has just returned from the national YWCA convention in Colorado Springs, has charge of the fun. Mary Nelson will speak on Seabeck benefits, and Margaret (Tommy) Reed will lead the group in familiar songs. Helen LaFollette is general Seabeck chairman.

All house presidents have been contacted so that announcements will reach living organization members at noon today. A large turnout is expected. Refreshments will be served.

Campus Coeds, Schoolgirls View Knit Fashions

Nearly 150 girls gathered in Gerlinger yesterday afternoon to watch 21 campus coeds model the latest fashions in knit wear. The knit show, followed by a tea served by Thespians and Kwama, was also held to honor high school seniors, prospective University freshmen for the coming year.

With a background of music played by Lois Ann Whipple, Mrs. Manerud introduced the various models who paraded in formal as well as sportswear attire. Most of the garments were knit by the coeds themselves or their mothers, and were of many styles and colors.

One of the most outstanding was that worn by Lois Strong. It included an attractive white knit coat over a turquoise two piece suit with raglan sleeves finished in moss stitch. The ensemble of Nann Brownlie—a white luster wool with a red plaid top, was much admired by the spectators, as was Elaine Bedell's mystic red suit in a small nub weave.

A beautiful white dinner dress with long full sleeves was modeled by Eva Gadwa. Previously she appeared in a similar dress.

NEA Meet Expected To Attract Students

It is expected that the meeting of the National Education association in Portland this summer will attract a greatly increased number of students from other states to the University summer sessions this year.

The Portland session will be dismissed during the entire week of June 29 for the reason that the Lincoln high school building will be needed for the sessions of the NEA. Classes on the campus will be dismissed for three days to enable students to attend the sessions of the NEA. The time missed will be made up on Saturdays.

Campaign Planned

"We plan to make an active (Continued from page three)

As in teachers' employment service, a $3 fee for permanent registration will be charged. Records of other high salesmen were: Kay Coney, 22; Eldon Fix, 21; and Denny Braid 20. Kay Eisman, Kay Skalet, Al Henke and Milo Lacy all sold more than 10 tickets.

Schultz was very well pleased with the success of the traditional day. He reported a net profit of approximately $15. Thanks of the junior class and the committee were also extended by the chairman to all students who contributed to the success of the shine day.

The winning float "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," was anchored across the millrace and the picture is not too good, although all details are plainly outlined. Mediocre prints of "Lovely Lady," and "Song of Love" are available. Students desiring photos may secure them by calling at the University news bureau in Friendly hall or by calling Wayne Harbert at 1920. The 5x7 1/2 prints are being sold for 25 cents each.

An excellent picture of the main stage was taken.

Several attempts have been made to remove the undignified word from the campus tongue, but Oregon hangs on to her traditions. When Grace Edgington was dean of women, she originated a contest to invent a word which would replace "pigging." One lucky student snagged the $5 prize with "Juning" (get it? June-ing), but we can't remember having seen or heard the word since.

There's a word on every campus, it seems. Oregon State "fusses," and our "Pigger's Guide" becomes their "Fusser's Guide." One California school gets dignified and calls it "queening." But Oregon's not proud, and as long as there's a building left on the campus, there will be "piggers" to sit on its steps.
