

A.A.U. Track Meet

Track athletes from all over the state will gather Saturday afternoon to compete for Olympic recognition. Read Bruce Currie's advance dope on the big event in today's paper.

The Highball

BY DOC

NOW that's the way to come back. The Doc' wanted some information, and he got it! It is hoped that those who ventured to feel somewhat the same way as Doc' at the track meet Saturday read the team's explanation in the open letter published in this column yesterday. It was lucid, to the point, and what's more, showed something which should run as high among the students as it evidently does among the track team, SPIRIT.

No one for the minute questioned Col. Bill Hayward's decisions as to what was best at the meet. There are mighty few track coaches in the nation as clever as Bill in doping out a meet. However, in many parts of the stands last Saturday Oregon boosters, when they saw their team getting the worst of it, exclaimed, "Why didn't they put Scharpf in the half mile?" "Why didn't they use Lloyd in the hurdles. They said last year he was pretty good in the hurdles." The students wanted Oregon to win that meet, almost as much as Hayward and his team wanted to win.

No one expected the unknown Killien to pass Oregon's Shoemaker in the 220. If they ever meet again, our money's still on Shoemaker by a comfortable margin, and on Bill Hayward for picking the best men.

IF it were possible to pick one man on the Webfoot ball club, who is most valuable to his team, the selection would probably fall to Don McFadden, followed closely by Andy Hurney.

Despite the fact that spotty support and some good stick-work by Washington and Idaho batters cost him two games, Don still leads the pack of regular hitters on the Oregon club with a .500 average. He is a dependable outfielder as well as a fine pitcher, and has easily the coolest head in the club. He doesn't get flustered anywhere on the diamond, hasn't during his entire service on the Webfoot team, at any rate. He can be counted on in the pinches. Don might not be able to make the big leagues as a pitcher, yet, because the professional batters would just eat up his curves. Don's fast one isn't fast enough yet, for big time. But, he has as good a chance as any of the 1936 Duck squad of going higher as a fielder, if he cared to work for it.

"Handy Andy" comes next in line on the squad as far as popular feelings in the stands count. His homers and line smashes when needed have undoubtedly been a leading factor in keeping the Webfoots right up there in the conference race.

IF Oregon can win two from Washington State and split with Washington on their northern jaunt they'll be in a fair way to taking their third consecutive pennant. WSC should have a tougher time with Washington than the Ducks will have with the Beavers on the way home.

Once a lecturer at the University of Nebraska, Karlis Umanis, above, is Europe's newest dictator, as the "Wadonis"—corresponding to German's "Fuehrer"—of Latvia. Returning to Latvia after it split from Russia in 1918, Umanis became its first premier. His new office combines the presidency and prime ministry.

Ford Mullen Leads Frosh Horsehidiers

Third Baseman Hits Ball For .483 Average; Bill Sayles Wins Two

Ford Mullen, stellar third sacker, leads the regulars on the Oregon freshman baseball squad in hitting with an average of .483 compiled in seven games, according to figures released yesterday. Mullen has 14 safe blows in 29 trips to the plate.

Lee Irwin, catcher, and Bill Sayles and John Coomler, pitchers and part-time outfielders are the only other first string men hitting better than .300.

The team average was boosted over 20 points as a result of the batting spree the Yearlings went on during the Salem encounter. The squad average now rests at .291.

Gale Smith, smooth-fielding first baseman, has not muffed a ball in 55 chances for a perfect 1,000 fielding average. Fouts has accepted 12 chances without making a bobble.

In pitching, Sayles leads the other Frosh moundsmen with two wins and no losses, while Coomler and Fouts each have won one and lost one. Gammon has been charged with one loss.

Batting averages of all freshman players follow:

Gamma, Sigma Win Ball Games

Gamma hall, defending champs in the inter-dorm softball league, defeated their leading contenders from Omega hall 11-8 in a five inning game last night, and Sigma hall won from Alpha hall 10-4.

The Gamma-Omega game, scheduled for 5 innings on account of the approaching darkness, was won for the Gammas by Ben Marty's second home run of the game. With the bases full in the fifth frame he singled to Kato in left field, but the ball slipped through Kato's legs and Marty chased the boys in for the four tallies.

Fornden and Bell of Omega each made two homers in the game. Emer Williams pitched for the winners.

Don Casciato, tossing for Omega, struck out 12 men in the five innings. His game was lost by errors. In the Alpha-Sigma game, Winslow, Little, Lathrop, Engels, and Robbins made the 10 runs off Bill Close, chucking for Alpha. Close, however, scored from one and three base hits, and his teammates, Welch and Chrones, each scored one run.

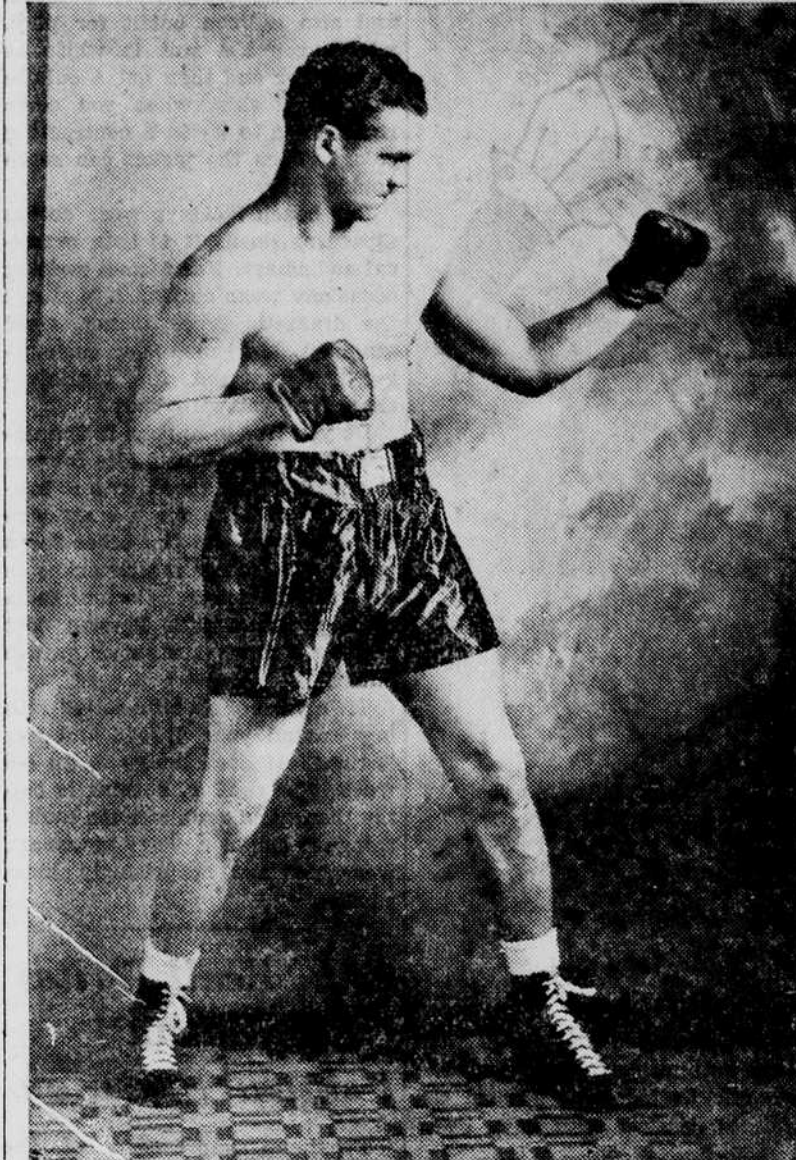

Herman Folland pitched for the winners. Counting last night's game, both teams have now won twice and lost twice.

Frosh Trackmen To Meet Rooks

Ducklings Enter AAU Meet; Many Injuries Hamper Practice

The frosh track season is rapidly approaching its climax. Next Friday the first year men will compete in the AAU meet on Hayward field, and a week later they will be hosts to their great rivals, the Oregon State Rooks, in the annual dual meet.

Injuries to two of the best men have weakened the team considerably. Jim Schriver, sprints and 440-yard man, has again pulled a muscle in practice, and Jack Berry, Coach Nowland's versatile sprinter and jumper is still nursing a similar injury. Although there is a possibility that Berry will compete next Friday, Schriver without a doubt will lay off during the weekend.

Encouraging is the report that Ben Marty, who has been resting an injured leg for over a week jumped around the six foot mark in his first workout.

Sprinters Stan Carlson, Bruce Currie, and Floyd Vaughn have been working with Eddie Burkitt and Jack Wagstaff in the quarter mile in preparation for the Rook meet. The field in the sprints is very weak this year.

Loyal Cody and Don Smith are diligently practicing the half mile and the mile is well taken care of by Don Barker and Crawford Lyle. Pat Foley, javelin thrower, is nursing a sore arm. It is uncertain whether or not he will compete in Friday's AAU meet.

University Man Fights Grudge Battle Friday

Elton Owen, 165-pound wrestling and boxing champion of the University, is all set to meet Joe Bradshaw, Eugene boxing coach, in a real grudge battle which has been brewing for two years. The battle will be five rounds, and held at the Eugene armory Friday night as the feature of an amateur card, for the benefit of the National Guard mess fund.

The Owen-Bradshaw feud started two years ago and has been brewing ever since. Six weeks ago Owen brought the matter to a head by issuing an open challenge to Bradshaw to battle it out before the public or in the gym. Bradshaw forced Owen to meet an imported amateur boxer, declaring he would meet him if Owen defeated this man. Owen surprised everyone two weeks ago by knocking out the boxer, after dropping him three times.

Bradshaw has fought for the Multnomah club team in Portland, and is regarded as a clever, rugged boxer. Owen, on the other hand, is fighting his fourth bout in the ring but has done considerable boxing in the gym. His battle with Alan Wilson, football player, in the finals of the intramural boxing championships two years ago, is still remembered by those who witnessed it.

over the boys will have earned a long rest. Many of the first year athletes have been in training since the cold days of January.

UO Meets Reed In Tennis Today

Depleted Squad Is Favored To Take Return Match At Portland

Minus the services of one and possibly two of its first three players, the varsity tennis team goes to Portland to play Reed college today.

Norman Winslow, the only player with a clean singles record will be unable to make the trip, and Captain Larry Crane, sometimes number one player may have to stay in Eugene.

When these teams met in Eugene, Oregon was the victor by a 7 to 0 score, but many of the matches were close. With the ranks depleted for this match, the score promises to be much closer, but Oregon should squeeze out a win.

A probable lineup for Oregon would place John Economus as number one; Jack Crawford, after his brilliant game against Hockley, as number two; Chuck Eaton as number three; Worth Chaney as number four; and Bill Zimmerman as number five. If Bill Hutchison makes the trip he may play at number five position.

Washington State Drubs Ducks 10-3; Teams Play Today

Cougars Hit McFadden Freely While Oregon Earners Only Eight Safe Blows

Washington State took a firmer grip on first place in the northern division baseball race by drubbing Oregon's Webfoots at Pullman yesterday, 10 to 3. The loss dropped Howard Hobson's team to the .500 mark, two and one-half games behind the Cougars and a game behind the second-place Washington Huskies.

George Nethercutt slammed one for the circuit for Washington State. Bishop and Kranc of the Cougars clicked out four blows in four up to lead all batters.

Bob Millard will be Hobson's mound choice for today in the series finale. Opposing him will probably be Mel Marlowe, the cocky southpaw who blanked the Ducks here.

After the Washington State series the Oregon team will move to Moscow for games with Idaho Friday and Saturday.

Score: R. H. E.
Oregon.....3 8 3
Washington State.....10 15 5
Batteries: McFadden and McLean; Kinnaman and Fields.
