Frosh Assembly Set for Gala Week

Freshman class spirit will be whipped into pandemonium at a special assembly set for the evening of September 24 in the music building auditorium.

To the tunes of a newly organized pep band, "big shots" of the University will be brought to the stage one at a time for a few words of greeting to the frosh. Included will be athletic coaches, editors of the Emerald and Oregonian, student officers, members of Skull and Dagger and Kwama honoraries.

Peppy yell kings will see that nothing goes undone to make this meeting of the class of 1940 a memorable one. Yells and songs of the lemon and yellow will be paraded before the new students in demonstrations of hilarity which will really burst into being at the first home football game later in the fall.

Columns Of Stone Flank Johnson Hall

It is up the steps of this building that the expected record class of freshmen will file during rush week to avail themselves of the services of the administrative offices within. All freshmen have been asked to go to this building immediately upon arriving on the campus to register with the dean of women or men his Eugene address.

1206 Jobs Found During Last Year

Students Needing Work May Benefit by Seeing Employment Secretary

A total of 1206 jobs for 1206 students were supplied University students last year by Miss Janet Smith, employment secretary. It has been revealed on the campus. Last year 381 students were 100 per cent self supporting and 825 were self supporting in degrees ranging from 75 to 15 per cent.

Many worthwhile students who otherwise would not be able to attend school have been aided the last two years by the federal government through the FERA and the NYA. Through Miss Smith's service, students are assigned jobs in the departments of the University in any type of work which otherwise would not be maintained through regular outside employment. The hourly rate is 35 cents and the amount of work assigned is fixed by the need of the applicant.

Break-Down Of $15 Student Fee Voted As Record Fall Term Activities Take Form

Student activity fees at the University of Oregon will remain at $15 for the coming 1936-37 school year, it was decided at a joint meeting of the University athletic and educational activities boards held this week on the campus.

Decision of the boards to retain the same fee was made in spite of the fact that this year's extra-curricular program will be the fullest and most varied ever offered.

The only change voted by the boards was a new break-down of fee payment. Under the plan adopted by the boards students may buy student body cards for $7 fall term, $5 winter term, and only $3 spring term.

This new break-down, which was made after long discussion and consultation with numerous student leaders, is in proportion to the actual cash benefits offered students by the athletic and educational activities departments. Previously the fee was a uniform $5 per term.

Other Attractions Listed in 1936-37 Series Given by University

An imposing array of internationally famous concert and lecture attractions, headed by Roland Hayes, the Don Cossack Russian male chorus and Admiral Richard E. Byrd, will be presented as the 1936-37 music-lecture series of the University.

Hayes, universally regarded as one of the world's greatest negro singers, will open the series on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 5. The famous tenor has appeared twice before in Eugene, each time drawing record crowds to McArthur court.

Also filling a popular-request return engagement, the colorful Don Cossacks, led by diminutive Serge Jaroff, will be heard on Sunday, October 25. More than 4000 students and townspeople jammed McArthur court to hear the spirited songs of the Russians two years ago.

First Week Slated To Assist Freshmen In UO Registration

Oregon's students, thousands strong, will begin their yearly invasion of the University campus in Eugene the weekend of September 19-20. Some will be returning after terms of study, anxious, after a long summer, to renew their collegiate careers.

But hundreds more, perhaps a thousand, will be freshmen, willing, but unaware of the course to follow to properly enroll themselves in the University. Although minus the green lid which used to be thrust upon the pates of bewildered beginners by domineering upperclassmen, the 1936 model frosh will be as confused as was his predecessor of years back. To these incoming students

Freshman Week has been dedicated. It opens Monday September 21 and will continue until Saturday, September 26.

Must Register Address
"What'll I do next?" will be the cry of the majority of the freshmen.

Immediately upon reaching the campus, each beginning student will be asked to register his or her Eugene address with the dean of men or women in the administration building which is the imposing structure flanked with white columns in the center of the campus.

Psychological, physical, and English examinations are given to all freshmen during the first week, the purpose being to ascertain the approximate intelligence and ability of the entrant. The "when" and "where" of these various examinations is provided each student by mail before he reaches the campus. This schedule for Freshman Week should be closely followed, faculty members declare.

Eugene Students First
Eugene students must take their physical exam on Saturday, September 19, but all other freshmen need not report on the campus until the following Monday. Physical exams are being conducted in McArthur court for men, as the new building will not be completed. Women will report to Geringer hall on University avenue.

Psychological examinations will be given at different times throughout the first part of the week in Condon hall, which is near the College Side Inn. Freshman Week schedules should be studied to ascertain the exact time to report. English quizzes will be held during the week in Villard hall on the older part of the campus near Eleventh street. Make-up examinations will cost $2 each.

Photographs will be taken of all freshmen when they report at the new infirmary on Eleventh and Agate for their physical exam check later in the week.

Monday evening at 8 o'clock a University assembly will be held in the music auditorium on the south end of the campus.

"Be On Time" Ask Officials
Advisory conferences will be held throughout the week at 22 minute intervals in Condon hall. The exact time is indicated on the program, and officials call attention to the importance of being on time to keep the program free from congestion. At this conference, each individual student will be sent to a faculty member who will assist him in preparing a schedule for fall term after the (Please turn to page three)

Program Will Continue
The program of emergency loans has been of great help to students, since it enabled many of them to pay registration fees and then repay the loan fund during the term from funds earned while in school. This policy will be followed during the school year scheduled to start September 21, although students are advised to write to the dean (Please turn to page eight)

Million Dollar Building Boom Hits Campus

Mammoth New Library, Infirmary, Men's Gym Are Now Rising

When students return to the University of Oregon September 21 they will attend classes on a campus that has grown in value of buildings and improvements by more than 40 per cent over the past year. For perhaps the first time in the history of the institution at small cost to taxpayers, due largely to use of federal funds, all schools and departments will be adequately housed in modern up-to-date surroundings.

The actual value, last year set at $2,600,000 will be increased by $1,110,000 when the work on buildings under construction and remodeling of others, including landscaping, is completed, it is announced by Dr. C. Valentine Boyer, University president.

A feature of outstanding interest to citizens of the state is that this large and much needed construction program has been financed without the necessity of asking the legislature or people of the state for any appropriations except $50,000 previously voted by the legislature to help finance the infirmary. Outright grants and long-time loans by the Public Works Administration, funds from Works Progress Administration and other federal agencies, gifts from friends of the University and funds on hand have provided the money for the work.

One of the new buildings, the infirmary, is expected to be ready for occupancy when school opens, and the library and physical education plant will be in use later in the year. The old men's gymnasium will be made over into a natatorium, and the old library will house the school of law.

The new infirmary will cost when completed $130,200; the library, $464,734; physical education plant, $356,850, and other construction and remodeling, $158,000, a total in new buildings of $1,110,000.

Revenue for constructing the new buildings amounts to: $342,500 donated by the Public Works Administration.

$510,000 borrowed from the federal government through the PWA agency.

$50,000 from a special state appropriation for University infirmary.

$23,438 already in the student building fee funds.

$16,134 from the University Alumni holding company.

$10,411 from the University Mothers' club for use in the infirmary.

$302 from miscellaneous sources. The new infirmary will be completed by September 1, ready for use when the University opens its regular session September 21. The building, up-to-the-minute in every detail, will cost approximately $130,200 with equipment when finished. It will be a completely equipped, modern health service unit. The two story building is 147 feet long and 46 feet wide, and covers an area of 19,000 square feet.

The new physical education building is 425 feet long and 235 feet wide, covering an area of about 60,000 square feet. The building when completed will cover more space than huge McArthur court, and would amply fill Hay-
