THE Firing Line

By PAT FRIZZELL

You can't beat those wolves. At least college football coaches can't. Did you know that only a dozen have been tutoring gridiron hopefuls at the same institution for a period of ten years or longer? The alumni, who are the wolves, usually nab their scalps after a few seasons.

Amos Alonzo Stagg, now at College of the Pacific, coached at the University of Chicago for 40 years, and that makes him the champion wolf-beater of all time. The immortal Walter Camp, who used to pick THE all-American, mentored at Yale for 30 or 35 years, but that was in a day, or, more specifically, in several days, when conditions were a bit different than now. Dan McGugin, is third in line.

But those fellows have moved on. Who is long-tenure champ today? It's Harry Hughes, who has been at Colorado State college for 26 long years. Then there is Bob Zupke. He's on his 24th year at the University of Illinois. Lowell Romeny at Utah State is in his 18th successive coaching year there.

The Rocky Mountain and Pacific coast sectors seem to have a monopoly on long-time coaches. In addition to Hughes and Romeny, the Rockies have Mr. Ike Armstrong, the very capable University of Utah head man, who has been turning out Ute elevens for more than a decade.

Our own Pacific coast? Well, there's Howard Harding Jones, who came to Southern California back in 1923 and is still there. There's Orin E. (Babe) Hollingberry at Washington State. Babe has been tooth-gritting in the Palouse hills for better than ten campaigns. Down at Los Angeles Chief Jones has competition in Bill

An Oregon Fury

Pat Fury, younger brother of Con Fury, former Oregon center, is quite a football player himself. This big Sand Point, Idaho, lad probably will see action at one of the tackle posts Saturday against his fellow Idaho citizens.

Spaulding, who has directed UCLA gridiron maneuvers since long ago and far away when the Uclas were mere babes, not even in the coast conference.

Well, three on the coast, three where the peaks rise into the sky, and Zupke of the Illini make seven of our dozen ten-year men. The others? They are Bill Alexander, Georgia Tech; Morley Jennings, Baylor; Bill Rafferty, Virginia Military; De Ormond McLaughry, Brown, and Jack Sutherland, Pittsburgh.

Stagg is the grandest old man of all, for he has been coaching for 44 years, the last four at College of the Pacific. Next in line for long-time service is Glenn Scobey Warner, known to the boys and girls as Pop, who has spent 42 years tutoring at Carlisle Indian school, Stanford, Temple, and a few other institutions.

Only two of the ten-year coaches are working for their alma maters. Those are Alexander at Georgia Tech and Sutherland at Pitt. And right now this column raises its insignificant little voice to nominate these two gentlemen for something or other in the way of a medal. They've earned it.

What's your fd byears, t's ETA E? Well, there is one where they used to be three. First it was Bud Goodin who bunged up an already ailing knee and now a knee injury has laid out Tom Blackman, Bud's successor. But Jean Lacau and Arleigh Bentley can play fullback, too, so what.

Bill Hayward assures that Blackman won't be in there against Idaho Saturday. "There's not a chance in the world that Tom can play," said Colonel Bill yesterday.

Which is just too bad. But the black-haired young triple-threat may be ready for Washington State. Hayward says that you never know much about such injuries for about three days, and therefore he's setting no definite date for Blackman's return to the wars.

Short shots . . . Add squabble number three to the annual autumn list . . . The third fuss is all about "Did Coach Lon Strong of Oregon State do right or wrong in jerking Johnny Alexander Saturday?" . . . Well, did he? . . . Alex now has a broken nose, and the Beavers say he's out of the Washington game this weekend . . . All right, but lots of footballists have played 60 minutes with smashed schnozzles . . . Rollie Rourke, former basketballer here, will coach the court sport at Roosevelt high in Portland this winter . . . Slip Madigan thinks California has the best team in the conference, even if the Bears did stumble before his own Gaels . . . Slip must be satisfied with his outfit . . . Who wouldn't be?

Callison Drills Gridders Under Hayward Lights

Blackman Definitely Out For Saturday's Game With Vandals; Lacau May Start

By WENDELL WYATT
Taking no chances of his team suffering a let-down before Saturday's impending battle with the University of Idaho, Coach Prink Callison ran his Oregon gridmen through three and one-half hours of scrimmage late yesterday afternoon and early evening. Practice was finally halted at 7:30 after the footballers had been forced to move to Hayward field in order to use the lights.

Trainer Bill Hayward made definite announcement that Tom Blackman, sophomore passer and replacement for Bud Goodin at fullback, would be unable to take part in the coming struggle with the Vandals. Blackman wrenched his knee in scrimmage last night.

The Oregon fullback job, so ably taken care of in the past by such men as Mikulak and Michek, may fall into the hands of Jean Lacau, huge sophomore from San Francisco. In case Lacau does not draw the starting assignment, Arleigh Bentley, who scored the tying touchdown against Stanford, will fill in. Bentley may possibly start at quarterback with Lacau at full.

In the line, big Bill Foskett, who turned in a good performance (Please turn to page 4) interested in Governor Lehman than in his own jump. "Gee, he is really a nice fellow," he said.

Varoff says that the time he broke the record was one of the easiest jumps he ever made, which is often the case when records fall. Every muscle in his body coordinated to perfection. He was even vaguely aware of Glen Cunningham, Bill Bonthron, and Gene Venzke starting the 1500-meter race as he took off down the runway on his record jump.

Unfortunately, everybody was watching the race, and only the officials saw Varoff make his sensational vault.

"I was surprised myself when I made it," the young athlete confessed. He says he has been pole vaulting for only four years. His first jump, he says, was nine feet. Varoff thinks that the principal requisites for a pole vaulter are plenty of speed and power in the arms and shoulders. He seems to have it.

Only 22 years old now, at the next Olympiad he will be 26, at the peak of his physical development.

George is a blue-eyed blond weighing 168 pounds, although he looks more like 180. He plays the bass viol in the University symphony orchestra and hasn't missed a concert while in school. He prefers classical music. However, he has had several offers to play in dance orchestras.

He did not attend the University last spring. But he joined the Olympic club in San Francisco, and along with his famous job as janitor he managed to keep up his training.

Don Casciato to Prepare Sigma Delta Chi Exhibit

Don Casciato, senior in journalism, has been appointed to prepare the official exhibit of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism society for the national convention, it was announced by Dan E. Clark, Jr., president of the organization.

The exhibit will tell of the activities of the local chapter in Oregon journalistic circles during the past year.

Betas Humble Omega Squad 14-0; ATO Men Topple Phi Sigs, 13-0

Phi Sigs Edge Phi Deltas, 1-0; Sigma Hall Drubs Canard Hall, 14-0; Beta Man Injured

By RUSS ISELI
Beta Theta Pi won from Omega Hall, 19 to 0, in the first of last night's touch tackle games to remain in the undefeated column. The ATOs beat Phi Sigma Kappa 13 to 0, to retain their place in the win column. Phi Kappa Psi took a tight game from Phi Delta Theta, 1 to 0, to make their record read two wins and no defeats. Sigma Hall took Canard, 14 to 0, to gain its second victory of the season.

Betas 14, Omega 0

The Betas put up a slashing attack that netted them two touchdowns over Omega hall. Deadly passing by Matt Pavulunas contributed greatly to Omega's defeat.

The first Beta touchdown came after considerable difficulty. Three different attempts were made to score. On the first Si Wentworth caught the ball when he was clear out of the end zone and the play was disallowed. Bill Harrow snagged a pass from Pavulunas but stepped out of bounds right on the goal line. Hal Thudren broke into the clear and took another of Pavulunas' passes to score. Duden converted to make the score 7-0.

In the second half Jerry Kestny scored on a pass for the second Beta touchdown. He also made the conversion.

With about three minutes left to play in the game, Bill Harrow, fullback for the Betas, ran into a telephone pole at one end of the field while trying to catch a pass. He suffered two broken ribs, concussion of the brain, and possible skull fracture as a result of the accident.

Bill is the ninth casualty so far in the tough football games, but the others were all minor injuries.

ATO 13, Phi Sigs 0

ATO remained in the undefeated column by virtue of a two-touchdown win over the Phi Sigs. A series of short passes put ATO in position to score. Harold Reese lobbed over a short one which was taken by Harold Weston to account for the first ATO score. Weston converted to make the score 7-0.

Jack Berry of ATO was tripped behind the Phi Sig goal line and missed a pass which was intended for him. The referee ruled the pass completed, however, because of interference with the receiver.

Glenn Record and Donald Bailey turned in a good ball game for the Phi Sigs but could not stop the ATO attack.

Phi Sigs 1, Phi Deltas 0

The Phi Sigs copped a close game from the Phi Deltas, 1 to 0, after both teams had failed to score in the regular playing period. The Phi Deltas were penalized 15 yards for tackling in the playoff period. They could not gain this time.

back and the period ended with the Phi Sigs about 20 yards in Phi Delt territory.

Bill Williams, Phi Delt, caught a long pass to put the ball on the Phi Sigs' two yard line, but the barn boys were penalized 15 yards on the next play and the ball was out of scoring territory.

Sigma 14, Canard 0
Sigma Hall took its second straight victory, defeating Canard Hall 14 to 0. Last week the Sammies fell, 1 to 0, before the Sigma attack.

Dick Miller passed to Barney Hall early in the first half for the first Sigma score. Miller converted to make the count Sigma 7, Canard 0. A fumble by the Canard men put the Sigs in scoring position. Dick Miller of Sigma capitalized on the break by heaving a short pass to Joe Green who stepped over the goal line for the second score. Miller converted for the winners.

Girls' Swimming Group to Select New Members

All girls interested in swimming are urged to attend the Amphibian meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Gerlinger pool. The campus swimming honorary will select their new members from girls attending this try-out, according to Jean Stevenson, president.

A knowledge of the rudiments of swimming and a bathing cap are the only qualifications to attend the Amphibian meeting. Suit and towel will be furnished.

Gerlinger pool has recently been redecorated, making an attractive meeting place for the organization.

A new model giant X-ray machine, the only one of its kind in the Pacific northwest, has been added to the equipment of the student hospital. Mrs. A. H. Foote, lab technician, will be in charge of the X-ray work.

Ducklings Drill On Offense for Tilt With Rooks

Two More Hard Practice Sessions Slated This Week; Beaver Babes Boast Weight

Two more hard sessions of practice are on the menu for Coach John Warren's frosh gridders this week, with emphasis being placed on developing a suitable offense for the Oregon State rook game.

Warren plans on concentrating his attention to building a strong aerial attack and will devote a lot of time to this. Frosh passes resulted in two touchdowns against Southern Oregon normal last week, but a lot of the plays were ragged, and the Duckling skipper intends to iron these out.

Scrimmage With Varsity

Practices this week have found the frosh squad spending a lot of time punting and passing, and the team has scrimmaged twice against Prink Callison's varsity.

Reports from the Oregon State campus intimate that Howard Maple, new Rook mentor, will place a fairly heavy team on the field. The average is expected to be near 190 pounds. Oregon's freshman eleven, however, should average near that figure.

The present frosh-forward wall averages about 190, but is held down to that figure by three lads who hit under 185 pounds. Ron Husk, 180-pound converted guard, is the lightest lineman. Erling Jacobsen, center, and Vic Reginato, end, both weigh 185.

Stein Scales 200

Jim Stein, guard, and Russ Inskip, tackle, are two "beefy boys," each weighing an even 200. Elroy Jensen, tackle, hits 195 pounds, and Larry Lance, end, is a 190-pounder.

The Frosh backfield will prove to be lighter. Paul Rowe weighs 200 pounds, but Jay Graybeal,

Cross Country Rule Changed For Next Race

A new rule will be in effect this year in the cross country race to be run November 19, according to Russ Cutler. This new rule will allow all track lettermen except those who won their letter in the quarter, half-mile, mile, and two-mile races to enter the meet. In previous years all track lettermen were barred from running in the race.

All intramural managers should have their men start working out as soon as possible. All entrants must have at least nine workouts before they can enter the race. According to Russ Cutler, the competition is going to be pretty stiff this year.

In order to win points a house must have three men finish the race under the time limit. The time limit is 20 minutes but this is subject to be changed. Any house may enter as many men as it wishes.

There has been an increase of entrants in the cross country race in the past and Mr. Cutler expects 75 or 100 men entered this year.

Opening Basketball Drill Set for Late This Month

The first varsity basketball turnout will be held around the end of this month, according to Coach Howard Hobson.

Hobson expects to start pre-season drills on October 26 or November 2. Although several lettermen and former freshmen stars are available, the Webfoot mentor urges all men who have or think they have basketball ability to turn out.

The present frosh-forward wall averages about 190, but is held down to that figure by three lads who hit under 185 pounds. Ron Husk, 180-pound converted guard, is the lightest lineman. Erling Jacobsen, center, and Vic Reginato, end, both weigh 185.

Smith, right half, tips the scales at 185, and George Jesse, who alternates with Graybeal, weighs 183.

Frosh-rook encounter should find both teams fairly evenly matched, although any weight advantage will probably rest with the Baby Orangemen.

Double contests include B. Campbell and Bech vs. D. Houtch-

Schedule Made For All-Campus Tennis Matches

Hot Competition Ahead As Racquet Welders Struggle for Coveted Net Title

Excitement is reaching a high pitch in campus tennis circles as the first-round matches of the annual all-campus tennis tournament are slated to get under way this weekend.

Schedules of singles and doubles matches are posted in the igloo, and all entrants are advised to read their assignments and contact their opponents. Telephone numbers are listed with the names of the players so that participants may make arrangements for the time of the match.

Weather Only Excuse

All first-round matches must be completed by Monday, October 19, and those who have not played, automatically forfeit the match. The only excuse acceptable to the intra-mural board will be adverse weather conditions.

Two out of three sets shall constitute a match, and officials must be chosen by the opponents. When a match is completed, the winners should register their advancement on the schedule sheet, or notify the intra-mural office.

Four Matches Listed

Due to a small field of entrants, only four matches have been scheduled in the first-round singles competition. All other men advance to second-round positions. First-round matches include E. Robbins vs. Al Finke, B. Eaton vs. B. Cole, J. Haman vs. Don Anderson and H. Winston vs. O. Miller. Al Finke, who was on the championship doubles team last year, has been seeded No. 1 position in the singles division.

Double contests include B. Campbell and Bech vs. D. Houtch-
