

Cossacks' Chorus To Appear Sunday

Russian Male Singers Bring Homecoming Program To Close

As the final event on the homecoming program, returning Oregon alumni will hear the famous Don Cossack Russian male chorus in the opening concert on the ASUO 1936-37 schedule.

The "singing horsemen of the steppes", making their third appearance in Eugene, will start the program of Russian songs at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

At their last performance on the campus, the Cossacks were greeted by the largest crowd ever assembled in McArthur court. stalwart Russians will establish a ASUO officials believe that the 36 stalwart Russians will establish a new attendance record during the homecoming appearance.

The group of fugitive White Russian army officers have prepared a completely new program for this tour, their seventh in the United States. Listeners, who have heard the Don Cossacks before, will be greeted with many of the old favorites which have won world acclamation for the group.

Organized among the filth and despair of a prison camp, the group was whipped into perfection by the dynamic Director Serge Jaroff, and soon became recognized as the greatest chorus of its kind.

Since their release from the prison camp, they have mastered every form of choral singing. The Cossacks have become generally recognized as the last promoters of a waning culture.

The Cossacks Are Coming—For Homecoming Sunday

The mighty voices of 36 stalwart warriors will be heard Sunday afternoon in McArthur court when the Don Cossack Russian male chorus opens the University of Oregon concert series. Season ticket sales for the entire ASUO series ends today. The singing horsemen will present an entirely new group of Russian melodies.

Undefeated Iron Men Of 1916 Reunite Oct. 31

The men of the only Oregon eleven which ever completed a season undefeated will gather in Portland October 31 to see their alma mater meet Washington and to hold a brief reunion.

Twenty-one years ago, these men gave the University the mythical national championship. The 1916 Oregon machine, playing back in the days before the war when aerial tactics were not yet popularized, crushed through the regular season undefeated, then swept over a great Pitt eleven in the New Year's day game, 14 to 0.

A trifle large around the waist and not so fast as they once were, they still have the old enthusiastic spirit that carried them on to the victory, that will always be remembered as one of the greatest in Oregon's football history.

C. A. (Shy) Huntington, signal caller of the 1916 team, reports nearly 100 per cent agreement of the team to be present at the reunion.

Hugo Bezdek, coach of the Oregon juggernaut, will also return for the get-together. He coached here from 1913 to 1917. Recently, he has been at Penn State as athletic director, but has just been granted a year's leave. Next year he may continue at Penn or receive an honorable discharge.

With the phenomenal record of only five substitutions in four months of play and eight hard-fought games, they rolled up 244 points as against their opponent's 17.

Johnny Beckett, captain of Oregon's only undefeated eleven and Shy Huntington, now a Eugene business man, were named on Walter Camp's All-American third team when such recognition of western grid material was unusual, and along with Jake Risley, Bill Snyder, and Johnny Parsons were unanimously chosen on the All-Coast and All-Northwest teams.

In the Rose bowl game Oregon was decidedly rated as the underdogs but the green and lemon yellow team gave the boys from Penn such a drubbing that the whole nation sat up to take notice.

The following year was to have raised Oregon to still greater heights, but with the outbreak of war, all but two of the team left college to enlist.

Members of the championship squad who are expected in Portland for the reunion are: Holly Huntington, Shy Huntington, George Cook, Jake Risley, Glenn Dudley, Ken Bartlett, Johnny Beckett, Bill Turk, Charley Johns, Bart Spellman, "Bone" Skelton, "Busher" Brown, Carl Nelson, Bill Snyder, Baz Williams, "Monty" Monteith, Lloyd Teggard, Peter Jensen, John Parsons, Ray Couch, Brick Mitchell, Gus McKinney, and Neil Moffitt, Trainer Bill Hayward, and Coach Hugo Bezdek.

Send the Emerald to your friends. Subscriptions only $3.00 per year.

Phi Gamma Delta National Officer To Visit Chapter

Cecil Wilkinson, national executive secretary of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity and editor of its official publication for more than twenty years, will be on the campus during the end of this week to visit the local chapter.

Mr. Wilkinson, a resident of Washington, will be entertained by the Portland graduate chapter at an informal dinner at the Heathman hotel Wednesday. He will also visit the Oregon State Phi Gamma Delta chapter. Mr. Wilkinson is a past president of the national inter-fraternity council and is a graduate of Ohio-Wesleyan university.

Wesley Club Members To Hold Project Night

Feeling that students spend much time and money on mediocre moving pictures which they would not attend if they knew previously the quality of the entertainment, Wesley club cabinet members, at a meeting Wednesday night, appointed Wilbur Greenup to preview movies coming to town.

Greenup, senior in business administration, will report each Sunday on the quality of the movies billed for the following week, and a bulletin also will keep members informed.

Dr. Moore Declares War Unnecessary

'Biological Necessity' Cry Is Cited as Misconception Of Darwin's Theory

"Is War a Biological Necessity?" was the subject discussed by Dr. A. R. Moore, professor of general physiology at the University, in the public forum at the Congregational church Sunday night at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Moore believes that war is not only not a necessity, but is a set-back to the human race. "A misconception of the Darwin theory of the survival of the fittest has been used for war activities in such countries as Germany and Italy," he stated. "The success of the human race has been due to mutual aid, and not, then, to the battle of tooth and claw," he said.

Dr. Moore also stated that aggressive wars are not waged for necessities but for luxuries. For example, he explained, the Japanese have ample agricultural land to support their population if they would use it.

"The human race is one vast community," he emphasized, "and therefore war is self-destruction."

Dr. Moore's talk was one of a series held every Sunday night at the Congregational church. Next week, Dr. Howard Taylor of the psychology department, will speak on "The Psychology of War."

Business School Adds New Courses

Extension, Lecture Work in Real Estate and Income Tax Offered

The school of business administration, through the Portland Extension Center of the University, and in cooperation with the Portland realty board, is undertaking three new courses in business. These include two in real estate and one in income tax procedure.

One "Basic Course in Real Estate," provides a survey of the principles and practices as a basis for more advanced and technical work later.

"Appraisals" is an advanced course for those who already have extensive knowledge and experience in real estate. The study of income tax procedure deals with the auditing of income tax reports.

All courses are under the general supervision of the University staff, Professor Beattie taking charge of the basic course; Dean Alfred Powers, of "Appraisals;" and Professor Phillip W. Janney, of income tax.

Lectures will be given by a group of authorities rather than one professor. Selection has been made of subjects of particular significance and these will be presented and discussed.

The classes in real estate have 60 and 75 pupils respectively. The course in income tax opens this week.
