Another NRA
In the Air Again
Britain Loyal
Gates of Madrid

By DARREL ELLIS

Second Trial

Prospect of another New Deal program fashioned after the lines of the NRA were foreseen by political experts yesterday as late returns upheld early indications of the nation's overwhelming endorsement of Rooseveltian policies. The president's plurality approached the ten million mark last night.

Although no definite announcement has been made concerning the form the new unemployment legislation will take, it was known that data now being gathered would be used by the president in drafting his opening message to congress and his inaugural address January 20.

Lindy's New Plane

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who has done no private flying since last year when he suddenly took up residence in England, made a test hop yesterday in a plane which he himself helped design. Friends of the colonel expressed an opinion that he would soon be making short trips around Europe.

Lindy's new plane, claimed by its makers to be the fastest touring monoplane ever built in England, is equipped with tandem seats which can be converted into bunks and has a cruising range of 1,000 miles.

Adherence to League

Great Britain will place her reliance in the League of Nations to keep peace in Europe despite that body's impotence in the past, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said in an address to parliament yesterday.

"Because there has been one failure, there is no reason to say that the world must turn back on an endeavor which is the only alternative to catastrophe and failure," Eden declared, at the same time asserting his country would not desert Russia for Germany and Italy.

Still at It

Madrid was crumbling under a withering fire of cannon and machine guns yesterday as the bloody Spanish civil war went into its one hundred and eleventh birthday. The bombardment already has taken a toll of approximately 2,000 lives, an unconfirmed report from Lisbon said last night.

Gen. Jose Varela, who is directing the insurgent drive from a front seven miles outside the city, predicted the capital's fall "inside the week, perhaps."

Ucla Band Dons Nighties to Lead Campus Parade

By BERNADINE BOWMAN

A pajama-clad university band led the pajamero parade on the UCLA campus last weekend. A feature of the homecoming celebration was the awarding of a new pair of pajamas to the man wearing the most dilapidated pair.

Frank E. Merriam, governor of California, Joe E. Brown, and Jane Withers, newly appointed varsity team mascot, were some of the celebrities occupying prominent positions in the parade.

LATE

University women who object to early closing hours might find conditions in South America more to their liking. Late hours are the custom there, according to Catherine Ehrke, freshman at the University of Kansas. The usual dinner hour is 9 o'clock, theaters open at 10, and dances begin at 12!

SAN JOSE

A cooperative flying club has been formed by the students at the San Jose State college and they have recently purchased an airplane for their development in flying. The plane was flown from Bradford, Pennsylvania, by a state student aviator. The members of the club will be able to receive flying time at the inexpensive cost of about 50 cents per hour which is very inexpensive when contrasted with the regular price of $4.50 for an hour's flying time in other aviation schools.

'Bury the Dead' Cast Is Changed

There will be at least two important changes in the cast of "Bury the Dead" when it reopens its campus run next Monday and Tuesday night at the University theater.

In the role of the hard-boiled editor who at first refuses to print the sensational story about the dead soldiers, Ethan Newman will replace Dan E. Clark Jr. who leaves this weekend for the national Sigma Delta Chi convention in Dallas, Texas. Mr. Newman has appeared in numerous University theater plays and is a former member of the Guild hall group.

Patricia Neal will appear in the role originally scheduled for her in "Bury the Dead," that of Julia Blake. Illness prevented her from playing the part in the first showing. Miss Neal's role was played during the original run by Roberta Bennett Humphreys.

These two added performances of the play are being held under the sponsorship of the Student Christian council in connection with

Travel Adds to Critical Attitude, Says Mrs. Allen

By JUDITH WODAEGE

One of the greatest values of traveling in foreign lands is the critical attitude it gives one toward one's homeland, said Mrs. Eric W. Allen last night in her informal talk about her experiences in Europe this summer at the open meeting of Theta Sigma Phi and women students interested in journalism. She indicated that after a visit to the old countries of the world, the United States present unlimited opportunity for critical comparison and contrast.

Reason for Touch-tackle Injuries Will Be Sought By Investigator Washke

Intramural Activity Will Be Dropped Unless Sandlot Casualty Causes Can Be Found and Remedied

Oregon's first year of touch football as an intramural sport ended last night leaving behind it one student with a fractured skull in the Sacred Heart hospital, and several others who are, or who have been, infirm patients with injuries suffered in the sport.

John F. Bovard, dean of the school of physical education, declared that an investigation would be launched to discover the reason for all the injuries.

"We think, however," he said last night, "that most injuries were suffered in sandlot games where there was no supervision. The sport has been played at other colleges and is being played in high schools with much enjoyment and little damage. Of course, if we discover that the game cannot be played without students being injured, it will be dropped from intramural activities."

Washke Will Investigate
Paul R. Washke, director of the men's gym, who will have charge of investigating the injuries, could not be contacted last night for comment.

An effort was made to reach Russ Cutler, assistant professor of physical education, who was injured two days ago during a touch-tackle class, but he could not be found.

Although the most dangerous of the series of injuries suffered is the fractured skull Vernon Sprague received in a street game, and the injured eye of Pat Cassidy, which is being treated in the infirmary, most of the injuries have been minor. The infirmary has had almost a constant stream of bruises cuts, and similar small wounds to bandage from 5 to 8 each evening after touch tackle games. Several times the doctors have had to be called.

Students Say: 'Buy Your Own Pigger's Guide'

"Say, you fellows could make life a lot easier for me if you would just stop bumming me for cigarettes and borrowing my pigger's guide. Why don't you buy your own?"

The above quotation, voiced by a prominent sophomore, seems to be the popular sentiment on the campus. Especially is this so in the case of the pigger's guide or student directory.

Issued nearly a month earlier than usual, the guide, containing names, addresses, and telephone numbers of all students and faculty numbers, has been enthusiastically received.

Copies may now be obtained at the Co-op, as its supply has been re-stocked, at the Igloo, and at the ASUO offices. The price is 25 cents.

Shy Man Awaits Date For Dance; See Dick Devers

Attention girls!
The date committee for the annual law school hop is sending out a distress call. It seems that a certain senior law student has been unable so far to secure a date for that epochal event.

This gentleman is recommended very highly by his friends. He is six feet tall, weighs 180 pounds, has curly blond hair, and blue eyes. His only drawback is that he is slightly shy, but any girl can overcome this by use of the right tactics. His fellow students state that he is a perfect gentleman. He has taken a three months' course in dancing and is an ardent disciple of Emily Post. Even the mildest of maidens need not feel any hesitancy in going with him for he is a past-master in tea-room (not bar-room) tactics.

Any young lady interested in showing this young man and herself a good time is urged to get in touch with Dick Devers of the date committee in care of the law school and ask about X-3. Hurry, girls, he won't last long!

The Abas string quartet will appear in the third and last concert for the University of Oregon students at the music auditorium Monday evening, November 9 at 8 o'clock. The music is selected especially for students and students only are admitted.

The Abas quartet has been touring the Pacific coast playing series of three concerts in cities, universities, and schools from Eugene to Seattle. Realizing the importance of creating musical appreciation in young people, the quartet is building programs from the educational as well as the enjoyment standpoint.

The quartet will return to California to play privately in Pasadena on November 29 and in Hollywood on November 30.

STANLEY KUNZMAN

Stan weighs 158 pounds and is 5 feet 9 inches tall.

50 Jobs Needed For UO Students Says Janet Smith

"Fifty odd jobs are urgently needed for students," stated Janet Smith, employment secretary, when interviewed Thursday.

Due to the third installment of fees that are due November 9, Monday, this is a pressing problem to students working their way through school.

"Last year, the employment office succeeded in averaging 11 jobs a day with an average of $1.50 a day. This mark has not been reached this year and the present situation is the result," stated Miss Smith.

In addition to this 12 jobs for board are wanted by students, unable to cook, but anxious to work in other ways.

Many jobs have been secured and the NYA has affected a great number but Miss Smith said, "Our problem is at the present time to obtain odd jobs and board jobs for students who need this work in order to stay in school."

Student Writes About Alaskan School Teaching

J. F. Banish, University extension student, has been in Alaska for approximately two years, and recently wrote a letter describing his experiences in teaching school.

"I opened school with an enrollment of 35 students and more than half cannot speak English. I have some students who are in the third, fifth, and eighth grades but these are half Indian and half white," a paragraph from his letter said.

Supplies and books are difficult to send to the school at the Pilot station on the Yukon, where Mr. Banish is stationed. In the summer, boats ship them up the river, but in the winter everything is shipped in by dog teams which cannot carry bulky things.

Mr. Banish's home is in Medford, and he is now working for his BS degree. When he has fulfilled his required hours of teaching in Alaska, he plans to come to Oregon for his degree.

These lads staked their all on Landon and the Literary Digest and are shown here squaring up election bets. Donald Seaman is wearing his tuxedo (and overcoat) to classes this week to add a formal touch to Oregon classrooms, while Don Tower stops with Seaman to watch Paul Cushing motivate a peanut with his nose. Tower, clad in pajamas, is on his way to call on a coed friend. Cushing's trip from the business administration school to the University Co-op was one of the slowest on record. He didn't even eat the peanut.

UO-UCLA Train Leaves at 3:40

Many Rooters Are Expected To Attend Rally Game In Portland

Following the Oregon-Washington grid battle of last week, indications are that a large representation of Webfoot rooters will be on hand to watch the rejuvenated Ducks tangle with UCLA in Portland this Saturday.

In order to arrive in time for the big rally dance, to be held in Portland at the Uptown tonight, many students are planning on leaving by train today at 3:40, according to Don Thomas, rally committee chairman. Special rates for the round trip are $2.75 or lower, depending on the number of students that entrain.

Arrangements have been made by the rally committee to admit students to the rally dance, which starts at 9 o'clock, for 25 cents per person, provided the tickets are bought in advance. Tickets are available from members of the committee and at the Co-op.

Plans have been completed to insure every Oregon student an enjoyable evening, and if this first pre-game dance in Portland proves a success the rally committee may arrange similar pre-game celebrations in the future.

Rooters are requested to wear their lids.

Fathers' Day Cups Awarded November 14

Campus Groups Compete In Dads' Registration; Rook-Frosh Game to Head Program

Three revolving cups are being offered again this year for the sororities and fraternities which lure the greatest number of fathers in proportion to the membership of the organization to the campus for the 1936 Dads' day.

Phi Mu sorority was awarded two of the three attendance cups last year, the A. W. Norblad trophy given to the house enrolling the highest proportion of fathers, and the O. L. Laugaard cup for the largest number of freshman dads in attendance.

All three of the awards last year were won by women's groups, with Alpha Delta Pi taking second for the highest proportion of dads present, for which the Paul T. Shaw trophy is given.

Clifford Constance is in charge of awarding the cups. The three cups offered may be retired by a house winning them three times.

Dads' day, in reality a weekend, opens on the campus Friday, November 13, and runs through Saturday and Sunday. Heading the list of events will be a football game between the University frosh and the Oregon State rooks.

Only 500 reservations are being made this year, Earl M. Pallett, faculty chairman of the event, has announced. To make reservations for the dinner and other events on the program, the cards which were sent to houses at the first of last week must be filled out and returned to Mr. Pallett.

Faculty Found to Be Human Under Scrutiny

By ALICE LEE NELSON

"Dorothy Cox Hesse gave the University of Oregon faculty some of their own medicine, put them under the microscope, and discovered what a swell bunch they are, what interesting hobbies they ride," begins an article in the November issue of the Sunset magazine entitled "Professors Are Human."

To prove her contention that professors are human, Mrs. Hesse describes the 200-foot three-track "Evans made and Evans planned" railroad which John Stark Evans keeps in his attic to which "he makes tracks when sweet music sounds sour."

Dean Hazel P. Schwering's collection of more than "250 Tom Thumb animals, birds, people, dwellings, conveyances and odd bits of tiny pottery" is brought to light as well as Professor Frederic S. Dunn's collection of stamps. In his collection "everything from rare, valuable postage stamps to wine bottle stamps or even Christmas seals are found," Mrs. Hesse said. The article continues "that's the reason his six loose leaf albums are so full of interest and variety. And that is one of the reasons he's so full of interest and variety."

Mention is made of President C. V. Boyer's dogs, George Hopkins' model airplanes, Dean Wayne L. Morse's horses, Dean James H. Gilbert's ten-mile daily walks, as well as the cabbages and tomatoes of Howard R. Taylor, head of the psychology department.

Dorothy Cox Hesse, ex-'22, is the wife of Dr. John L. Hesse. She is a member of Theta Sigma Phi, journalism honorary, and Pot and Quill, writing honorary.

Irene Conkling, ex-'36, and Harold W. Birkinshaw, ex-'34, were married in Portland on October 21. Mr. Birkinshaw is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.
