Washington Evens

Wagner left the fuss on fouls a moment later, but the Huskies, far from downcast, opened up with renewed fury. Gannon tipped in a rebound and after Wintermute had caged another free throw, Werner potted a one-hander from the right on Gannon's out-pass. Werner sank one of two gifters on a foul by Lewis and tied the score at 17. Gannon dribbled in for a lay-in at the right, but Wintermute canned a clever one-hander to knot things at 19. Gannon the converted on Anet's foul to give Washington a 20-to-19 half-time lead.

Wild and Woolly The first two minutes of the second half were wild and woolly, with loads of missed shots on both sides. Lewis broke the scoring ice with a nifty under-hand lay-in of a pass he took from Johansen while on the dead run.

Then Ziegenfuss hit his two one-handers. Lewis brought Oregon up to 24 to 22 with a free throw, but Gannon and Werner holed field goals to give Washington a 28-to-22 margin. Silver laid in Lewis' rebound, cutting it to 28 to 24, but the deliberate Egge potted a one-hander from the right of the key-hole to make it a 6-point lead for Washington with 10 minutes left.

After a time out, Egge did it again, another one-hander, and Gannon followed by scoring on a tip-off play. Gannon caged a one-hander for Washington's eighth consecutive point. Wintermute stopped the onslaught with a free throw, but Dorsey, Voelker, and Gannon dropped successive foul shots to give Washington its 14-point lead, 39 to 25.

Mass Flight Across the Pacific

Twelve Navy bombers took off from San Diego for the Pearl Harbor Naval base on what was termed a "routine delivery." This is the Navy's most ambitious mass attempt to span the Pacific. The planes carried a total of 78 men. In the upper scene is the entire complement, officers and crew.

Style Show Is Part of School Humor Book

Look your best, my fine feathered friends! Soon will come the selection of the best dressers on the campus to model for the fashion section to be displayed in Scruples, campus humor magazine.

Selections will be made from both the male and female species of the Oregon campus group and no politics will enter into this choice. Poise, good taste, neatness will be the only basis for judging in this contest.

Two volumes of Scruples will be published. One volume will be included in the 1937 Oregonian and the other will be distributed among visitors, parents and students during Junior weekend.

Speech Groups To Make Trips

Two speech symposium groups, made up of University students active in varsity forensics, will make state-wide trips during February. These trips are sponsored by the educational activities board of the ASUO and are made each year to further interest in varsity forensics.

One group, under the direction of W. A. Dahlberg, assistant professor of speech, will address audiences in Portland, Astoria, and Knappa-Svensen.

The other group, which consists of Walter Eschebeck, Avery Combs, Edwin Robbins, and John Luvaas, will address the Newberg chamber of commerce, the Salem Kiwanis club, and the Salem Rotary club. The group will also go to Portland, where they will study the J. W. Studebaker public forum programs, now being held there. These forums, which are sponsored by the U. S. department of education are being given in leading cities to aid adult citizens in an organized quest for understanding of public affairs.

John L. Casteel, director of the speech department, will be in charge of the second trip.

Completing the degree of bachelor of arts and studying advanced economics at Otago university.

David Wilson, who was a member of the University of Oregon Pacific basin debate team which visited New Zealand in 1931, will take part in the assembly. Mr. Wilson is now connected with the Japanese consulate in Portland.

Plans are being made by Order of the Mace, University of Oregon speech honorary, for a banquet to be given in honor of the New Zealand men. Kessler Cannon, president of the honorary, announced yesterday.

Poetry Reading Lists Approved

Students planning to take part in the W. F. Jewett poetry contest to be held Wednesday, March 3, may secure a list of the approved poems at the speech department, the dramatics department or at the reference library.

According to John L. Casteel, director of the speech department, the poetry speaking movement is comparatively new and might be considered a marked tendency back to the conception of poetry as something to be read aloud.

Poetry speaking contests and festivals are popular in England. In the preface of the latest edition of the poems of John Masefield, he tells about attending a festival in Edinburgh and being so impressed by the beauty of poetry as spoken by the Scotch that on his return home he joined other poets in sponsoring an English festival.

Peace Campaigners to Talk in Portland Feb. 9

Sherwood Eddy, prominent public affairs speaker, and Maude Royden, noted peace campaigner, will be the principal speakers at the conference of the emergency peace campaign in Portland, Tuesday, February 9.

Paul Elliott, secretary for the Pacific Northwest Emergency Peace campaign and chairman of the league of nations organization and associated with similar other groups, has arranged the conference. Mr. Elliott urges that all persons planning to attend the meetings should make reservations, because of the limited capacity of the auditorium.

Reservations can be made either through Dean Onthank or Glenn Griffith, YMCA secretary.

Rigorous Training

In the evening, the ballerina who is not in her dressing room in good time for make-up and the long ritual of donning her ballet slippers is likely to find her name posted on the bulletin board for a fine.

As an example of the life of the ballerinas, a bit of research revealed intimacies of Tamara Toumanova, youngest ballerina in the ballet.

She is the daughter of a Georgian princess and one of the Czar's officers, and was born in a freight train that was carrying her mother away from Russia and the revolution. In Paris she was discovered by Mme. Preobrajenska, one of the former prima ballerinas of the Russian Imperial Ballet. Under such tutelage she attained international fame as a ballerina at the age of 17.

Toumanova is one of the leading ballerinas in the ballet coming here. Her mother is her constant companion, and chaperone on all of her daughter's travels.

Dr. Taylor Is Thumbs Down on 'Youth Act'

"If a college is going to finance the way of all students who wish to enter the institution, regardless of their scholastic abilities, the entire scheme of curriculum will have to be revised," stated Dr. Howard R. Taylor, head of the psychology department of the University, when interviewed on his opinion of the California youth act introduced into the California legislature this last week.

The act, if passed, will provide educational, vocational, and employment opportunities to high school and college students under the age of 25 years, regardless of their grade standing and ability to learn.

"America has reached the static degree that Europe has had for many years, that of industry not having room for uneducated youth. There was a time in our country when foreign countries were encouraged to send emigrants to help build our industry. Today, our factories are full, and labor unions are so strongly organized that they heartily discourage admittance of youth to their ranks," continued Dr. Taylor.

"If all students who were not financially able to attend school, were helped with this supposed aid without regard to their abilities, our institutions would be flooded, and because they would not find what they supposed was there, would become dissatisfied and cause considerable disturbance. "The plan is a generous one, but in my opinion, certain revolutionary steps in the working of our schools would have to be made," concluded Dr. Taylor.

Radio Students Get Real Training

Weekly Broadcast Made Over Stations KORE And KOAC

The University of Oregon is one of the few colleges in the western part of the United States that is able to give its students actual work in radio broadcasting. D. E. Hargis, who is in charge of the University radio work, said yesterday.

At the present time there are about 35 students enrolled in radio class work, which was first offered on the Oregon campus this year. These classes are divided into three sections: announcing, forum work, and dramatics. Students are given a chance to take part in actual radio presentation through the weekly broadcasts made over KOAC, Corvallis, and KORE, Eugene.

"A number of my students say that their ambition is to go into radio work," Hargis said. "David Hoss, who recently withdrew from the University, is now announcing over KORE, and Jack McCarty, who was enrolled in the radio class last term, has a position as an announcer over KGW and KEX." Mr. Hargis, who joined the University of Oregon faculty this fall, did his undergraduate work at the University of California and received his master's degree in speech at the University of Minnesota last year.

The Yeoman-Orides winter semi-formal has been scheduled for Friday, February 5, at the Osburn hotel. Dinner gowns and dark suits are in order and corsages optional.

Members of these independent groups may invite outside guests. There will be a charge of 35 cents to be paid in advance at the Y-hut for each Yeoman, while the Orides will be admitted on membership cards. There will be no charge for men who are not Yeomen.

For Digestion's Sake... Smoke Camels

— One reason why they all keep Camels handy

VIGOROUS, active people—in sport, society, and in the world of work—count on healthy nerves and proper nutrition to see them through. Take your cue from them and make Camel your cigarette too! When you smoke Camels at your meals and afterward, the flow of digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids—speeds up. Strain and tension are lessened. And you have a delightful sense of digestive well-being. With their matchless mildness, Camels are better for steady smoking, and they don't tire your taste.

PLUGGING at the books often taxes digestion—burns up energy too. You'll welcome Camels—for their cheery "lift"—for their gentle aid to digestion. When you smoke Camels with your meals and afterward, tension eases, your food tastes better and you enjoy a sense of digestive well-being. Camels set you right. And they never tire your taste or get on your nerves.

"SKIING TAKES GOOD DIGESTION and a healthy set of nerves," says Sig Buchmayr, shown executing a difficult jump turn across a rock (right), and enjoying Camels during a hearty meal (above). "I smoke Camels a lot. I know they don't get on my nerves. And they help my digestion. Camels and food are always in the same picture. Smoking Camels with my meals and afterward lets me enjoy my food more. Camels set me right! Lighting up a Camel seems to give me new 'zip'."

SEA-GOING CHIEF ENGINEER. George Buckingham (above), controls a maze of high-powered machinery. Such responsibility taxes digestion. He says: "I enjoy Camels steadily. Camels keep my digestion on an even keel."

ROSE DAVIS (above), champion cowgirl from Fort Worth. As a star attraction of the rodeo, Miss Davis often rides a bucking bronc twice a day. She says: "The jolting puts a strain on my digestion. That's why I always smoke Camels with my meals and after."
