Oregon Bows to WSC In Final Hoop Playoff Team Returns Today

Easter Sunrise Service Planned

Students, Church Choirs
Will Gather for Sunday
Morning Ceremony

When the first rays of the rising sun peak over the Cascade mountains on Easter Sunday morning, the massed voices of a choir composed of University students and Eugene church choirs will ring out praises for the day of Christ's re-incarnation.

The sunrise song services, starting at 6:30 a. m. in McArthur court, is being sponsored by the Student Christian council and the Community Churches association.

Hal Young, professor of voice, is organizing a mass choir composed of all church choirs of the city and University students who wish to participate. The University symphony orchestra will accompany the vesper songsters.

Mr. Young asks all students who wish to sing at the community services to be present at rehearsal tonight in the auditorium of the First Baptist church. He will sing a solo and direct the community singing. Song sheets will be provided.

Dr. C. Valentine Boyer was selected by the students to give the welcoming address. Dr. A. J. Harms will give a short sermon on the Easter theme. Others to take part in the program are Reverend Tulley of the Presbyterian church, Victor P. Morris, acting dean of the school of business administration, and Dr. C. S. Bergstresser, president of the Eugene ministerial association.

'A Hobby Horse For Every Coed' Philomelete Goal

"Have you a hobby horse?" That is the question members of the Philomelete hobby groups are asking this week in their invitation for all freshman and sophomore women to join them in their weekly meetings at Gerlinger hall, 4 o'clock every Thursday afternoon.

"The best free hour of fun each week that you can get anywhere on the campus," Elisabeth Stetson, president of the groups has promised in outlining plans for spring term which include a garden party at which all members will act as both hosts and guests; an initiation breakfast where all active members of the hobby groups will be awarded the metal acacia pin of Philomelete, and the choosing of Oregon's most charming coed, male student, and faculty member by charm school.

Speakers Go On Symposium Trip

Speaking trips were made during spring vacation by the symposium groups under the direction of W. A. Dahlberg and John L. Casteel, forensic coaches. Cities visited were Silverton, Medford, and Ashland.

Students making the trips were Kessler Cannon, Bernard Hall, Robert Dent, and William Lubersky. In discussion form, the United States Constitution was discussed as to its adaptability.

Robert Dent discussed the economic background under which the constitution was formulated. The proposals which have arisen out of attempts to adapt the constitution to contemporary societies was described by Kessler Cannon.

The various proposals which have been advocated for making the constitution and the supreme court more amendable to public interests were put forth by Bernard Hall and William Lubersky.

Division Championship Captured by Cougars As Ducks Drop Finale At Pullman, 42-25

Webfoots Start Fast Early Lead Fades Before Washington State Rally; Regular Race Tied

Oregon's most successful basketball team since 1927 reached the end of its trail at Pullman Saturday night, when it fell before Washington State in a final playoff game for the northern division championship, 42 to 25.

Howard Hobson's Webfoots, who, despite their playoff defeat, far exceeded the wildest hopes of their supporters during the season, will reach Eugene on the noon train today. A large delegation of students is expected to welcome them.

Cougars Meet Stanford
Jack Friel's Washington State team, by its victory, earned its first northern division title in history and the right to meet Stanford of the southern division in a final series for the Pacific coast crown. Stanford will play at Pullman Friday and Saturday nights, with a third game, if necessary, slated for next Monday.

The Webfoots tied with Washington and Washington State for top spot in the regular 16-game campaign. Oregon drew a bye for the three-way playoff, and Washington State eliminated Washington in an upset at Seattle, 36 to 33.

Johansen Leads Drive
That put it up to Ducks and Cougars and it had been prearranged that the team drawing the bye was to travel. Oregon's basketballers did, and their big chance to become the first Webfoot northern division champ in a decade came before 6500 spectators at Pullman.

Led by Wally Johansen, slim Astorian, the battling Webfoots rushed into an early lead against the Cougars. After big Ivar Nelson, a tremendous thorn in Oregon's side all evening, had drawn first blood for the home crew, the Webfoots opened a vicious drive.

March 27 Poetry Contest Deadline

Entries in the Jewett poetry reading contest will not be accepted after March 27, according to an announcement made by John L. Casteel, director of the speech division.

The contest date is set for April 2. Each contestant will select and memorize three passages of poetry from an approved collection, divided into general groups of sonnets, lyrics, and blank verse. Because the use of any one selection will be limited to two contestants, Professor Casteel urges students to reserve selections at an early date.

New Number One Woman

In command of the AWS spring term will be Gayle Buchanan, above, president elected to succeed to the office held by Martha McCall. Under Miss Buchanan's guidance, the AWS will present its annual carnival, biggest affair of the associated women's year. With vice-president Vivian Emery, Miss McCall attended a conference of the organization held in California during spring vacation.

Undergrads Will Register In Igloo Today

Materials Released in Johnson, Procedure Is Unchanged; Grads Get One Week

With procedure unchanged, materials for enrollment will be released to all undergraduate students from Johnson hall today and registration will be completed in McArthur court.

Neither the forms or the plan of the thrice-annual enrollment has been changed, the registrar has announced. Undergraduates must complete their registration Monday or pay the $1 per day late fee, while graduate students are given until the end of the week.

As last term, freshmen and sophomore advisors will be in the reserve library reading room in Condon hall. Other advisors will be in their offices. First installment of fees must be paid to complete registration, in McArthur court.

Essay Committee Wants Entry List

Bennett Contest Deadline
Five Weeks Off; Topic
Is Judiciary's Power

Five weeks remain in which to turn in essays competing in the Philo Sherman Bennett prize essay contest, but the committee in charge is desirous of learning as soon as possible the names of all participating.

This year the $25 prize is offered for the best 5,000-word essay on "The Proper Relationship of the Judiciary and Other Departments of Government in Our Democracy." The closing date announced is April 25. All intending participants are asked to notify George Turnbull, chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the contest, at their earliest convenience.

Faculty members interested are asked to announce this contest to their classes. Any information desired will be given by Mr. Turnbull.

Aspiring Campus Journalists Must Petition by April 3

Deadline for student petitions for positions of editor and business manager of the Oregon Emerald and editor and business manager of the Oregonian has been set for April 3.

Petitions may be submitted to the publications through the offices of Ralph S. Schomp, educational activities manager, it was announced yesterday.

Applications should indicate the position desired, the applicant's previous experience, his scholastic records, and any other information considered pertinent.

Panhellenic to Hold Nation-Wide Theme Contest

In an effort to maintain a link between fraternity women and other college undergraduates the Panhellenic house association, national organization of women's fraternities, have launched plans for its third annual essay contest for all college students, Dean Hazel P. Schwering announced last week.

The subject of the contest is New York City, and the winning essayist will be awarded a visit to New York and $100. The contest is open to all undergraduates, and their work will be judged by a group of well-known American authors.

Information concerning the contest can be obtained from the office of the dean of women.

Two Concerts, More Features On $3 'Easy Payment' ASUO Card; Martini Appears May 9

Voice Has Thrilled Thousands

Over the radio and in performances at the Metropolitan Opera, Nino Martini, famous tenor, has with his voice thrilled thousands. Martini will sing here May 9 in the first concert ever to be presented during spring term by the associated students.

McArthur Court to Become Huge Circus Tent April 3 For AWS Carnival Evening

The AWS carnival, jamboree night for University students when huge McArthur court is bedecked with colored streamers and concession hawkers cry their wares to gamboling students, will be held Saturday night, April 3.

Kay Coleman will direct the plans for the annual event when the associated women students combine to present an evening of dancing, skill games, confection concessions, and entertainment.

The somber, colorless walls of McArthur court will be changed from a basketball court into the tentings of an indoor circus. Booths to be erected around the floor will be decorated by men's and women's living organizations who will pair off to operate the various concessions.

The AWS will erect a food booth to sell ice cream, hot dogs, and drinks. Music will be furnished by a campus orchestra. Campus clothes will be in order.

Committee heads assisting Miss Coleman include Betty Riesch, Felker Morris, Elisabeth Stetson, Betty Lou Swartz, Eleanor Hays, Jean Taylor, Maude Edmonds, Virginia Regan, Shirley Rising, Betty Wright, Marionbeth Wolfenden, Dorothy Magnuson, and Myra Hulser.

Lodell Resigns Post as Beaver Athletic Manager

After 15 years as head of intercollegiate athletics at Oregon State college, Carl Lodell suddenly resigned Saturday.

The OSC athletic manager said he expected to enter the insurance business in Portland, leaving the college at the end of the spring session.

Lodell had recently been placed in charge of the Beaver track team in addition to his other work.

Seniors Must File for Degrees Immediately At Registrar's Office

Seniors intending to graduate this term must file for their degrees in the office of the assistant registrar in Johnson hall at once.

If possible, seniors should file before the register for the term.

8 Northern Division Baseball Games Lead Sports Slate; Haliburton Here; Cards Needed to Vote in Election

In an effort to enroll the entire student body as members of the associated students of the University of Oregon, a drive to interest men and women trekking back to the campus after a brief vacation in the fullest spring program ever offered by the ASUO gets underway today.

Presenting concert attractions for the first time during spring term, the ASUO heads have also included a heavier-than-usual athletic program on the reduced price card—$3, payable the "easy" way.

Emerald Initiates Delivery Service

Subscribers in Campus
Area Will Get UO Daily
At Own Doorsteps

As a new service to Oregon Daily Emerald readers, the campus newspaper will begin daily house-to-house distribution to student and faculty subscribers within an area surrounding the University campus.

Student purchasers of ASUO activity books, which contain spring term subscriptions to the Oregon Emerald, will receive copies of the Emerald delivered directly to their doors.

Delivery will be made to subscribers within campus area bound by Broadway avenue on the north, Willamette street on the west, Twenty-second avenue on the south, and Fairmount on the east. Townspeople and faculty members can avail themselves of this service by ordering delivery through the circulation department of the Emerald.

NYA to Give Work to 350 This Term

During spring term 350 University students will receive NYA work appointments. Students eligible for automatic appointments were notified of their acceptance last week. Other students can get notification of appointment at NYA headquarters in Villard hall.

The faculty committee met yesterday to make the additional appointments.

ASUO Men's Glee Club Gets Landsbury's OK

John J. Landsbury, dean of the school of music, expressed his approval of the new ASUO activity of a men's glee club Tuesday.

"I have been tremendously pleased," he said, "over the fact that the ASUO has added a men's glee club as an activity. The school of music is always vitally interested in any movement which will tend to make the student body music conscious. This movement has the full cooperation and support of the school of music."

He added that the new activity conflicts in no way with the Polyphonic choir or the efforts of Phi Mu Alpha to improve the quality of singing on the campus.

"I feel there has for years been a real need of an organization of this kind. The school of music has placed at the disposal of the ASUO all facilities for carrying on this most worthwhile new activity."

Commenting on the many purposes of the new glee club, he stated that not only would this organization furnish activity for many students not now provided with an activity outlet, but would in addition furnish practice to men's organizations for their after-dinner singing and serenades.

Plans for using the chorus as an nucleus of the chorus for the "Student Prince," if it is given here next fall, are being made. At the present, it is hoped and expected that the light opera will be presented at that time.

The new glee club will be directed by Hal Young, professor of voice, who holds informal auditions.

(Please turn to page two)

First on the concert program will be the performance of Nino Martini, tenor star of the Metropolitan Opera and of the radio, who will sing here May 9. Later in May, Richard Haliburton, famed for his tall tales of his own exploits, will lecture on adventures which he has experienced in seeing the world.

No Down Payment

Under the easy payment plan worked out by educational activities manager Ralph Schomp and student by signing a card at registration may pay for his card in installments, due when second and third fee installments are collected. No down payment is required.

Eight northern division baseball games will be played on Howe field this season and the Oregon-Oregon State relays will be held on Hayward field. In addition to admittance to all of these contests, student body members will be admitted to six tennis matches, which this year are to be made "charge" affairs.

'Caucus' Party of Parties

In addition to the right to vote in election of officers to associated student positions, members of the association will this term participate in an all-party political caucus and dance, if plans now under consideration are culminated. The affair may be made an annual event, with presentation of candidates, noise parades, party demonstrations, and a possible "political parody" skit included on the entertainment list.

A terms subscription to the Emerald, delivered within an area surrounding the University under a new plan, also goes to each student who purchases a card. The right to work on publications, to take part in athletic and other associated student programs is also extended to members, as well as admittance to ASUO-conducted assemblies.

Alpha Kappa Psi Takes New Men, Elects Officers

Fourteen new members were pledged by Alpha Kappa Psi, business professional fraternity, at a recent meeting at which Harry Hodges was elected president of the organization, Harold Strawn, secretary-treasurer, and Frank Drew, master of rituals.

The newly chosen members are: Richard V. Antony, David H. Breuer, Frank G. Breuer, Frank L. Chambers, John H. Enders, Harold Faunt, Jack E. Filsinger, Don E. Fry, Courtney Lasselle, Louis A. Lubliner, Sam E. Mack, Charles E. Miller, Louis H. Rotenberg, and Melvin H. Shevach.

In place of their usual spring research work, Alpha Kappa Psi will spend the term working with Dr. N. H. Comish on plans for the Oregon Retailer's association's first annual meeting in May.
