Famous Negro Choir Opens Season Oct. 18; Galli-Curci to Follow

Lanny Ross, Mystery Girl Angna Enters, Hindu Ballet, Violinist, Prima Donna Also on Year's Diverse Program

By DICK LITFIN

Heralded as the greatest concert series ever to be presented by the ASUO, the 1937-38 season will bring such outstanding personalities as Metropolitan opera's Helen Jepson, NBC's Lanny Ross, and "Mystery Girl" Angna Enters to the campus to be presented under the direction of George Root, newly-appointed University activities manager.

The first attraction will be the Hall-Johnson negro choir October 18. This choir is best known for its performances on stage and screen, and was recently featured in the motion pictures, "Banjo On My Knee," and "Lost Horizon."

ing. It costs $7,781.40 to print 131 issue of 2,700 copies each.

Contrary to popular belief, the ASUO does not "clean up" on its concert series.

Artists Come High

This year's series is expected to cost $8,408 and to clear only an estimated $7,600 in order that student body card holders may attend their performances without extra expense. Although expenses of presenting these concerts total $1,545.00, the main cost is in artist's fees which average nearly $1,000 and total $6,500 for seven events.

Canoe fete, homecoming, student directory, the check room, class fund carrying charges, and the Oregon high school band concert all produce some income. (Band concert expenses outstrip income.)

Activities which contribute no income include forensics, women's rifle team, Philomatele, band, orchestra, associated women students, and women's athletic association.

Amelita Galli-Curci, Italian prima donna, will bring her famous soprano voice to the University October 24. Formerly a Metropolitan opera star, Galli-Curci appears here on her first western tour in several years.

Mystery Girl Featured

On November 11 Angna Enters, known as the "Mystery Girl," and featured as a one-woman theater, will appear in the University's McArthur court. A world-famed mime, Miss Enters is a satirist of human frailties, and a master of pantomime, Mr. Root said.

Nathan Milstein, young and handsome Russian violinist, will appear next on the program February 13. He has played with the New York philharmonic, Leopold Stokowski's philharmonic, and twice with Willem Van Hoogstraeten of the Portland symphony orchestra.

Hindu Ballet

February 22 will bring Uday Shan-Kar and his Hindu ballet to offer an original and exotic ballet attraction from the far east. Hindu music from native instruments will be a feature of the presentation.

Lanny Ross will appear March 27 on his first concert tour of America. The leading radio tenor and star of the "Show Boat" broadcast recently completed two sell-out appearances in New York which stamped him as the season's concert "find."

First Appearance

Mr. Ross' Eugene concert will mark his first stage appearance on the Pacific coast.

Concluding the year's concert series on May 5, Mother's day and junior weekend date, Helen Jepson, star prima donna of the Metropolitan opera company, will present a concert in honor of the mothers. Miss Jepson recently was awarded a starring role in a new Hollywood musical production.

Parade of Artists

Artists representing the tops in stage, screen, and opera are included on the 1937-38 University concert series. Among them are, left to right, above, Amelita Galli-Curci, world-famous coloratura soprano; Helen Jepson, American-born Metropolitan opera sensation; Lanny Ross, stage and radio tenor; Angna Enters, leading exponent of the art of the pantomime; and left, Nathan Milstein, noted concert violinist; the Hall-Johnson negro choir; Shan Kar, leader of the Hindu ballet.

New Buildings Ready For Oregon Students

Full Facilities of Modern Library Now Available; Gymnasium Courses and Medical Service Given

Two decades ago University educators went into a huddle. The result was a gigantic building program with a far-seeing view to Oregon's growth. Last year finishing touches were put on three buildings costing more than one million dollars; completion of the program was almost realized.

When more than 2,800 Oregon students trudged back to the campus last fall a new infirmary, complete with the most modern hospital equipment on the coast, and decorated in modernistic simplicity was ready for their use. The two-story structure offers free medical service to Oregon students and clean, comfortable wards for bed-stricken patients.

P. E. Plant Finest

Second building to reach completion was the Pacific coast's most up-to-date physical education plant. Housed inside the building is the finest of athletic equipment, air-conditioned, artificially lighted gym rooms. The new building gave Oregon the opportunity to organize one of the most complete and comprehensive physical education departments in the United States.

New Libe Opened

Spring term rolled around and students were presented with a house-full of knowledge in the form of a beautiful library building. Radiating beauty from every corner, but still including all the requirements of utilitarian education, the new library gained immediate approval of students. Awaiting returning students this year is the widely-publicized "browsing room," dedicated to the pursuit of relaxation.

Oregon's building program is not finished. Plans are being formulated for achievement of the ultimate goal planned by University builders twenty years before.

Kaufmans Take Over Beard's Women's Store

A new specialty shop for women will greet the returning coed this fall.

Taking over the business formerly run by Beard's at 657 Willamette street are Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Kaufman, who will manage the new firm. Both have had years of experience in clothes styling work on the continent.

Eugene Shops Are Ready for School Opening

Footsore and weary from trudging over hundreds of miles of Eugene streets and peering into stocks of almost every store in town, Walter R. Vernstrom, Emerald business manager, cooled his heels on the top of his desk and proclaimed that "Eugene shopkeepers are better prepared than ever before to supply the needs of college students."

"Everything from toothpaste to overcoats, all the best models and the latest styles are available in stores near the campus.

"Men and women who have attended Oregon in the past have found it advisable to wait until coming here before buying their college clothes. Eugene merchants buy clothes to fit ever-changing college styles. Price and quality in the latest fashions are the same here as in any other city," he said.

Miss Letha Tallman, who served Oregon coeds for years under the former management, has recently returned from a clothes selection trip to New York with Mrs. Kaufman and will retain her former position.

Beverly Caverhill, circulation librarian, was married August 14 to Miss Ellenore Bendroth.

Your Dreams Come True in Eugene ...the Ideal College Town...

EUGENE, the home of the University of Oregon, will not disappoint you in the setting it offers for your college life. It will exceed your expectations. Ask any alum. Let him describe the romantic mill stream . . . the spreading shade trees lining the broad streets . . . beautiful homes . . . and the perpetually green campus with its winding walks bordered with huge trees and beautiful shrubs.

Eugene has the distinct advantage of being large enough to enjoy numerous metropolitan advantages. Every year, for instance, nationally-famed musicians and speakers provide the community with a broader cultural life. Recreational facilities are numerous and varied with the benches, lakes, winter snow sports, and world-famed McKenzie River in close proximity to the city.

Truly, Eugene is the center of Oregon outdoor world. Churches of over 20 denominations carry on the religious activity of the community. Every type of service and commodity is offered by the 450 retail stores at prices and quality proven comparable to stores of larger cities.

Yes, you will agree that the city of Eugene is the ideal college town. You will enjoy living here while attending the University of Oregon.

Tommy May's SIBERRIAN

Denver and Lombard Street, Portland Across from Sigma Nu on Eleventh, Eugene

SUGGESTS:

1. After the WEBFOOT day at Jantzen Beach enjoy a Siberian treat at Tommy May's Portland Shop.

2. Then, on entering the university, Tommy May again greets you with the same good food, ice cream delicacies and service at his shop in Eugene.
