

Hollis Replaces Dean Leighton on Advisory Council

The election of Orlando J. Hollis, professor of law, to a membership of the advisory council was announced yesterday following the opening meeting of the University faculty Wednesday. Professor Hollis will take the place made vacant when Dr. R. W. Leighton was promoted this summer to the position of dean of physical education. The faculty advisory council was also authorized to aid the search for a new president of the University, to take the place of C. V. Boyer, who resigned.

No-Date Dance, Mixer Tonight, Gerlinger Hall

The first no-date all-campus mixer dance, with free admission, begins tonight at 8 o'clock in Gerlinger hall. Festivities are scheduled to end at 10:30. Sponsors Phi Theta Upsilon and the Yeomen promise music by the Eugene Hotel orchestra, free refreshments, and other features. For the benefit of the non-dancing collegiate, games of skill and amusement are planned under the direction of Russ Cutler of the physical education department.

Oregon Alumni Win Top Honors

Both first and second places in the national examinations for certified public accountants, went to University of Oregon graduates this year. First place was captured by Max Saunders, Eugene, and second place by Albert J. Henke, Portland. Mr. Henke graduated from the University school of business administration in June, 1936. Last year Saunders took graduate work for the CPA exam. Mr. Saunders graduated from the place, graduated from the University in June, 1937. Both men are members of Beta Gamma Sigma, Beta Alpha Psi, and Alpha Kappa Psi. The examinations were given throughout the entire United States and were taken by approximately 1,000 candidates. As a result of their outstanding achievements in the examinations, both Mr. Saunders and Mr. Henke have been invited to attend the national meeting of the American Institute of Accountants which will be held in New York City, October 18 to 22. At that time, national recognition will be given to the University of Oregon. Mr. Saunders is now employed with the auditing division of the state tax commission of the state of Oregon. Mr. Henke is connected with Whitfield and Company, firm of public accountants in Portland.

Handbook Still On Sale: Will Aid Befuddled Frosh

Hailed by University officials as "the peppiest and most informative 'Hello-book' publication in several years," the 1937-38 Student Handbook, designed and edited by William Lubersky, forensics manager, went on sale at McArthur court as registration began yesterday morning. The handbooks will be on sale again today and Saturday at both McArthur court and the activities building on the campus.

in chemistry and physical science survey.

Two additions to the library staff will be Oliver Field and Jack Plotkin, both of whom have specialized in library work. Miss Mary Ming Holm has been appointed research assistant in the registrar's office. Graduate assistants and the departments to which they have been appointed are as follows: Jack Huggins, Marjorie Sumpter, Dorothy Dexter and Doris Hartshorne, English; Ralph Bailey, education; Mortimer Andron, social science; Dorthalee Horne, Ruth Irene Russell, Beth Elaine Taylor, James Sidney Wilkinson and Roland B. Dickie, physical education; Kenneth Gillanders and Paul E. Hayman, business administration; Harlan Paul Bramble, economics; James C. Welch, psychology.

Frosh Turnout Attracts Fifty

Nearly 50 yearling hopefuls answered Coach John Warren's first call for freshman football candidates yesterday afternoon, and were treated to a brisk workout covering the fundamentals and calisthenics. Several outstanding ex-high school stars were noted romping around the field, but Warren was reluctant to discuss this year's lineup of prospects until after registration is completed. Warren will be assisted this year by Stan Riordan, former Oregon football great, who will have charge of line coaching. Riordan, an all-coast end of several years ago, was assistant coach at Whitman college last season, and has returned to the University to complete requirements for his degree. No scrimmage is on the menu for the frosh for several days as Warren intends to give them a liberal sample of his justly famous condition methods.

The Ducklings will embark on the most ambitious slate in history with seven games scheduled, two to be played at Multnomah stadium, in Portland.

(Continued from page one) coast fullbacks, is one of the Bruins Oregon must stop. He hits the beam at an even 200 pounds. He isn't all, though, for fleet Don Ferguson at left half threatens to worry Duck linemen. Merle Harris, 170-pound right half, par excellence at diagnosing pass plays, and Jack Montgomery, quarter, comprise Spaulding's probable starting quartet. A relatively fine forward wall will take the field against Oregon, but it is expected to take a weight advantage at an average of 198 pounds. The Webfoot line may not quite hit the 190 mark. Oregon's less-experienced backfield should, however, average 181 pounds against 175 for the Bruins.

California Bears

(Continued from page two) Bruins, who furnish the Webfoots competition this week-end. This year Coach William H. Spaulding is emphasizing offense and not defense as in the past. Backfield strength, which appears for the first time at Westwood village, gives him well-rounded offensive power in all departments of the game. The Bruin chances for finishing in first division in the conference race depend directly on whether Coach Spaulding can develop a line out of a half-and-half mixture of veterans and rookies. If he can he has the back to build the Bruin's first great real offensive machine. Stanford Down on the farm at Palo Alto, the mighty Stanford machine, which bogged down by the way-side last year after several outstanding seasons, shows signs of stumbling along again. The Indians chief improvement will be in the backfield, although the Cardinal line should also be better than it was last fall. Big gun in the Stanford attack is expected to be Bill Paulman, who was out most of the 1936 season with injuries. He has an able running mate in Jimmy Coffin, diminutive safety man, who performs at left half. Tiny Thornhill has a veteran line but his reserve strength is sorely lacking in some positions. Lack of information about Stub Allison's California Bears makes it impossible to make the trip to Berkeley to estimate their abilities but one thing is certain—if Allison doesn't produce this year he will be on the road looking for a new position. So with that in mind, chances are the Bear mentor will have a team in the field that will be hard to stop. As Idaho and Montana have been dropped from the round-robin schedule their strength does not have any bearing on conference results.
