Governor Charged With Conspiracy
PORTLAND — Papers were served on Oregon's Governor Charles Martin yesterday morning in a $548,000 damage suit.

The charges, filed by Earl H. Fehl, former Jackson county judge who was sent to prison in connection with Jackson county ballot-theft cases, alleged that Martin conspired with the assistant attorney general, Ralph Moody, to deny him release from the state penitentiary on April 15, 1936. Fehl contends he should have been released under the good-time credit rule.

Fehl also claimed in the complaint that the governor and Moody spent $68,000 of the taxpayers' money to "railroad" him to prison.

When he learned of the half-million-dollar suit, Governor Martin laughed, "He must think I'm an economic royalist. He'll have a hell of a time collecting it."

Roosevelt Attacks Belligerent Nations
CHICAGO — The "cruel sacrifice" of innocent peoples in aggressive warfare was denounced yesterday by President Roosevelt in what is generally regarded as being his most important speech on world affairs to date.

Diplomatic circles were stirred by the tremendous potentialities of Roosevelt's hint that it may be necessary for the United States and other peace-loving countries to "quarantine" (isolate from world commerce) the belligerents to protect themselves. The speech earned praise from League members in Geneva.

AMERICAN AVIATOR AWARDS VERDICT
SALAMANCA, SPAIN — Judgment on the fate of the American aviator, Harold E. Dahl, was withheld last night by an insurgent court martial. The prosecutor made a strong plea for the death penalty, but it is believed that Rebel Chief Franco, who has the final word, is in favor of clemency.

Held for "rebellion" after his plane was shot down behind insurgent lines, Dahl has been the center of a dramatic situation for the past several weeks. Only a short time ago his wife, residing in France, sent Franco a semi-nude photograph of herself, pleading for the return of her husband.

Sit-Downers Choose Low Altitude
LANSFORD, Pa.—In what is believed to have set an all-time low in sit-down strikes, 44 miners stopped work yesterday on the eighth level of the Coaldale coal mine and remained sitting 1,350 feet below the earth's surface.

Demanding pay by yardage, under which they could earn from $10 to $15 a day, they sent word to the surface that they would stay down until their demands were met.

Agents Crack Down On Dope Dealers
NEW YORK—In a nation-wide attempt to smash a narcotic ring that is estimated to have imported and distributed from $5,000,000 to $25,000,000 worth of dope in the past two years, 74 persons, including 12 women, were indicted yesterday on charges of conspiracy to violate federal laws.

League Moves
GENEVA—League action in the Sino-Japanese conflict was one step nearer today with the adoption of recommendations condemning Japan for her invasion of China.

Signatories of the nine-power pact, which guarantees territorial integrity to China, will be asked to meet as soon as possible. The United States is a member of the pact.

Alpha Gamma Delta sorority will entertain members of Beta Theta Pi at a dessert Wednesday night.

Sixteen New Courses Added to Curriculum

The University of Oregon will keep with the advance of knowledge by adding 16 new courses to the catalog this year, it was announced by Dr. C. V. Boyer, president. Twelve of the courses are for senior and graduate credit, indicating a trend toward more modern and more comprehensive education.

In the college of arts and letters, three terms of the psychological novel will be offered. This subject, to be included for seniors, is an opportunity for special study in the psychological aspect of the novel.

In the English department there is offered a course in late medieval prose and poetry. It, too, is an opportunity for specialization.

The Romance language department is presenting a new course in Dante and his times. This course is offered primarily for majors in Italian and Romance languages.

The anthropology department of the college of social science will teach a new course in primitive social institutions. It will concern mostly the nature and development of the earlier social institutions. It is to be offered as a year-sequence.

Political science majors and law students will have an opportunity this year to take a course in foreign service of the United States.

The school of education will offer a new subject, known as principles and practice in school health education, during the fall term. It is offered primarily for education majors. Curriculum laboratory is also a new subject in education.

The course formerly offered by the military science department, known as band, will be taught this year by the school of music. This transfer affects both the elementary and the advanced band.

The department of mathematics will offer two new courses this year: elements of algebra and mathematics of life insurance.

and we hope he will be as elusive in college circles.

"Oregon's sure got plenty of things," Isberg commented when he was asked how he liked our school.

"As for our schedule it's pretty good, and looks to have some tough games ahead. Say, this game with the Rooks this Friday night will be a donnybrook, don't miss it. It will undoubtedly be our best game." When asked what he thought of the chances of little Jake Hergbert, the key man in the Rook lineup, of getting loose, he sighed and said, "A few of the boys here are planning on evening up a few things with him," mainly speaking for himself and Chet Haliski, frosh blocking back, known as the "rock of Gibraltar."

Washke will teach class in first aid

Paul R. Washke, director of men's gym, will instruct a class in first aid at the general extension held in Portland at Lincoln high school, on Friday nights.

The course will consist of first aid to electric shock, water first aid, and injuries, paying particular attention to accidents and injuries that may happen in gym classes.

Mr. Washke is a certified first aid instructor in Multnomah, Lane, and Marion counties.

Library receives graduate's book

The University of Oregon library was recently the recipient of a small book "Wagons West," which was written by Elinor Henry Brown, '35.

The book is sent here by the Walla Walla, Washington chamber of commerce and was published at the time of the Whitman centennial celebration, August 13-16, 1936.

The story of Marcus and Marcassa Whitman, pioneers, is revealed.

University faculty devoted to tennis

The University faculty is having a round robin tennis tournament, which will last through the entire fall term, weather permitting. The tournament will consist entirely of double matches, each team playing the other at least one match.

Graduate assistants are reminded that they are eligible for play, and are invited to sign up, either with Dr. R. R. Heustis or Dr. D. D. Gage.

New Turf Comes Through in Spite Of Cleat Humps

The velvety new turf on Hayward field came through Saturday's game in much better condition than was expected, in spite of the wet weather during the week preceding the game, according to F. A. Cuthbert, University landscape architect, who had a major part in the turfing project.

Greater damage than that done by the cleats of players was caused by the rush of the crowd across the playing field after the game. This caused the formation of many hummocks which would not otherwise be there.

Divots made by cleats were kept alive by natural dampness, and the field could be ready for play by Saturday again if necessary, according to Cuthbert.

Girls Ad Honorary To Honor President

Miss Mary Gist, national president of Gamma Alpha Chi, women's advertising honorary, will outline plans for the national convention, to be held next October in Los Angeles, at a dinner and meeting of Beta chapter Thursday evening. The dinner will be held at 6:30 at the Anchorage.

Miss Gist arrived in Eugene Sunday from Los Angeles, to spend the week with Miss Althea Peters, national secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Thacher Will Play With Symphony

Mrs. Jane Thacher, professor of piano at the University, will play with the Portland symphony orchestra during one of its Sunday afternoon concerts next February.

Following her appearance in Portland, Mrs. Thacher will begin a series of lecture-concerts in California. Her first two concerts will be given in Santa Cruz and Lajolla.

State Fire Marshall To Inspect Campus

All campus living units housing two or more students may expect a visit of inspection from Hugh S. Earl, state fire marshal, in the near future, according to information received on Tuesday by Dean Karl W. Onthank of the personnel administration.

The state official investigates fire hazards and preventive measures each year in all living quarters connected with the Oregon system of higher education.

Dr. Don Stuurman Joins Reed Staff

Dr. Don Stuurman, former University of Oregon graduate student has been added to the staff of Reed college in Portland, it was announced here Monday.

Stuurman was a graduate assistant in philosophy at the University where he was awarded his master's degree in 1933. He recently earned his Ph.D. at Oxford university, where he was a Rhodes scholar.

Late Mrs. Osburn Donates Etchings

Less than a week before her death recently, the late Mrs. Rose Osburn donated two framed steel etchings to the University of Oregon library.

The pictures, one of Shakespeare and friends, the other of Emerson and his friends are now in the seminar room, number 204 in the library.

Kappa Sigma Head Visitor on Campus

A visitor on the campus Saturday was Hamilton W. Baker, Boston, Massachusetts, national vice-president of Kappa Sigma fraternity. Mr. Estes Snedecor, Portland attorney and district grand master of the fraternity, accompanied Mr. Baker.

Baker was at the chapter house for dinner and the evening, leaving later Saturday night.

Baker's visit to the Oregon chapter is his only stop on the coast.

University Offers Evening Classes For Townspeople

Registration for evening classes which are being offered by the extension division for town people will close October 9.

Courses in American literature, parliamentary procedure, administration of justice, problems of the curriculum for grade school teachers, curriculum laboratory class for high school teachers and an advanced art appreciation course are being offered.

The classes will last six weeks. Additional information may be obtained by calling general extension division, 3300, local 326.

Leavitt Wright Joins Staff of Publication

Leavitt O. Wright, professor of Romance languages, has been asked to be one of the contributing editors on the staff of the 1937 Handbook of Latin American studies.

Professor Wright will edit a section on the language of Spanish America. The section will be composed more or less of a bibliographical study of language publications in the Spanish American field. Mr. Wright will be assisted by Stanley L. Robe, research assistant.

LIBE FINES UP

Due to a recent ruling by the library council of the Oregon State System of Higher Education and applying to all state school libraries, the University will charge 5 cents a day for all overdue books.

Miss Ethel Sawyer to Head Browsing Room

Appointment of Miss Ethel R. Sawyer of Portland, to be special librarian in charge of the "browsing" room in the library was announced yesterday by M. H. Douglass, head librarian. Furnishing of the room will be completed soon, he said.

The browsing room will be used for recreational reading by the students, and will provide facilities for unrequired, independent reading for pleasure. It has a conspicuous location on the main floor between the two main entrances and opposite the circulation desk. The room is 90 by 24 feet, and is to be beautifully and comfortably furnished.

"The room will be furnished with furniture that has a slight masculine taste," said Mr. Douglass. "The upholstery will probably be leather. And the walls will remain unpainted, as at present. This is a special effect, known as bleached wood. The white appearance of the bleached walls is especially conducive to good reading conditions with the indirect lighting system."

Miss Sawyer, who is to direct and promote the activities of the room, is an experienced teacher and librarian, said Mr. Douglass. She is a graduate of Wesleyan university of Middletown, Conn., and of the Pratt Institute school of library science, Brooklyn, N. Y. After completing her library course, she served for two years as librarian of the normal school at Stevens Point, Wisconsin.

She then went to the Seattle public library where for three years she was first assistant in the circulation department, and for two years superintendent of circulation. From Seattle she went to Portland to become director of the library training class in which position she remained from 1914 to 1926. Since 1926 Miss Sawyer has been with the Hillside-Catlin school, Portland, in a progressive education experiment.

During the years she has been in Oregon, Miss Sawyer has served as instructor and lecturer on library and book subjects at the following universities, generally during summer sessions: Minnesota, Oregon, Johns Hopkins, Michigan, and Washington.

Miss Sawyer has been much in demand as a speaker, writer, and lecturer on book topics and has been a frequent contributor to library periodicals. She will take up her new duties with the opening of the fall term.

The Alpha Phi will celebrate their 65th anniversary with a founders' day banquet this coming Sunday. A large alumni group from Portland is expected.
