Talk With Faculty

VOLUME XXXIX

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, EUGENE, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1937

NUMBER 26

UO Dads Day Planning to Start Today

Students, Faculty and
Dads to Talk Ideas;
ASUO Committee to Pick Chief

Plans for Oregon's annual dads' day program, December 4, 5, and 6, will move forward today when students, faculty members, and dads meet to select a chairman and complete plans for the weekend event.

Members of the executive council will meet this afternoon in the educational activities office to select a student chairman to direct the program.

Call for Chairman

Barney Hall, ASUO president, last night suggested that students interested in the position leave their names and qualifications with the secretary of the educational activities department.

Tonight a group of Eugene dads of University students will meet with faculty members and a group of students to discuss plans for the three-day program.

Plans will include dads' club meetings with the election of officers, luncheons, dinners, and entertainment.

Alumni Dance to Be Held Saturday After WSC-Oregon Game

A dance for Oregon and Washington State students attending the Oregon-Washington State game in Portland Saturday will be sponsored by the alumni association Saturday evening in the Uptown ballroom with alumni as honored guests, Elmer Fansett, alumni secretary, said yesterday.

A rejuvenated Oregon alumni will have an opportunity to congregate at the dance with students for "a merry time for all," Mr. Fansett said.

Gill Evans and his orchestra will be the swing king for the evening.

Tickets are now available from rally committee men for 80 cents.

Faulty Advice On 'Hitch' Given By Professor

An English professor in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology is "taking it all back." In 1929 he told the graduating class to "be a snob; marry the boss's daughter."

Now he declares, "I've decided the advice didn't work out as well as I expected. By marrying the boss's daughter the young man took the chance of acquiring the boss's liabilities along with his assets."

Pantsless Frosh

While other college professors and deans sit back and breathe a sigh of relief that Joe College is on the wane and hazing is no more, the Armour Institute of Technology in Chicago goes onward with the true college spirit.

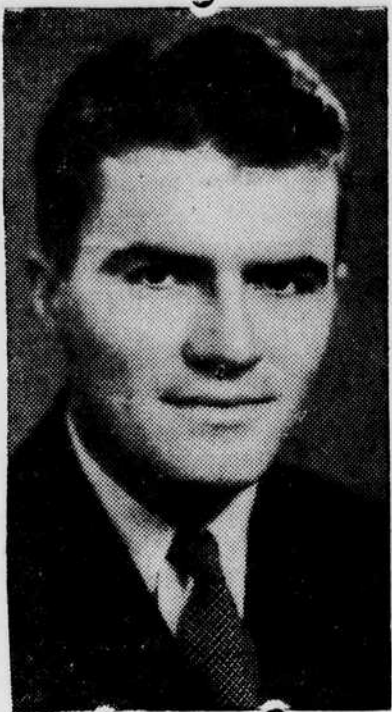

The open season on frosh has started there and the poor greenie is subject to no end of embarrassment when he refuses to wear his beanie. Sophomores catching such recalcitrants remove his trousers and then hide them. It is of no concern to them that the young man must go pantsless to his classes until he finds the hiding place of his trousers.

Smooth Drivers

No longer is the college student in Michigan considered a menace of the highway since the increase in the enrollment in Michigan State college's police administration course.

This five-year course, now in its third year at the university, is offered in cooperation with the Michigan police and is made up of courses including instruction in finger printing, ballistics, police communications, public relations, and other police problems. All courses are taught by the police experts of that state.

Goodwill Tourer

Barney Hall, ASUO president, will lead a group of University students on a visit to the Oregon State campus next week, where they will meet with OSC student officers.

Winter Playground Open to Ski Team

Winter Sport Fans To Have Chance to Develop Here

With the announcement by the highway commission that the McKenzie pass road will be kept open this winter as far as Frog Camp, Oregon students can begin making active plans toward the formation of a ski team which would compete with other Pacific coast universities.

Oregon and OSC are the only major coast universities who have no such team, and the opening up of the Three Sisters region should make this possible. The terrain above and around Frog Camp is as good as any in the United States, and though accommodations are scarce, Paul Lafferty, president of the Obsidians has announced that their lodge will be available to University students who are interested in this sport.

The possibility also exists that a small stand where hot foods can be bought will be installed at the end of the road, making it possible for skiers to spend the entire day in the Sisters region without bothering to prepare their own meals.

A few miles above Frog Camp, the trees thin out, exposing mile after mile of ideal ski terrain, and the fact that these slopes are protected from the wind and are high enough to ensure dry powder snow for the duration of the winter months, will eventually make this region one of the best known ski countries in the world.

Skiers report excellent snow as early as November, and as late as the first part of July, and it should not be very long before Oregon and OSC are engaged in skiing competitions.

Landscape Majors Design New Camp

A group of senior landscape architecture majors have been given the opportunity to experiment with designs for a few sections of the new forest camp being constructed in the Willamette forest beyond McKenzie Ridge, Fred A. Cuthbert, instructor for the class, announced yesterday.

The designs as finally made will be constructed by the forest service. Work included in the project will be designing of camp furniture, shelters, and landscaping of the area.

The experience that the students working on the project will gain will prove of great value to them, Mr. Cuthbert said, because many of the graduates enter the national forest service, or some form of park service.

Beck Will Speak at Speech Assembly

Lester F. Beck, assistant professor of psychology, will speak on the "Psychology of Stage Fright," at the monthly speech assembly to be held in Villard hall Thursday evening at 7:30.

This assembly is open to all interested.

Lonely Days End For Students As 'Guide' Is Issued

Telephone, Address
Books Go on Sale
Today

Today is the day. No longer need the lonely males and coeds lament. The "Pigger's Guide" is out and will be on sale today at a booth opposite Commerce and Oregon on Thirtieth, at the educational activities office, and at the Co-op store.

Following the plan of streamlined publications on the campus the student directory has been dressed up in gay green and lemon yellow covers and printed on buff book paper to make the finding and reading of the names at Oregon easier. Despite the rising costs of paper and printing the price of the "Guide" to names and phone numbers remains at 25 cents.

Maps Included

In the back of the book is a map of the University campus, along with floor plans of the new library.

At the campus booths groups of coeds will act as salesmen for the annual phone and address publication.

This year's edition was edited by Les Miller with Bill Lubersky acting as business manager. Directors reported a larger income this year than in previous years.

Drivers' Exams Are Scheduled for Friday, Saturday

Mark Taylor, examiner of operators and chauffeurs, will be in Eugene Friday and Saturday, November 5 and 6. Drivers' examinations will be given at the Knights of Pythias hall from 9 to 6 on Friday and from 8 to 5 on Saturday.

All those wishing permits or licenses to drive cars are asked to see Mr. Taylor during these hours.

OREGANA NOTICE

All Oregana house agents are to report at the Oregana office in the Educational Activities shack between 1 and 4 today.

Amateur Jockeys Ride Marble Boards

By DAVID COMPTON

"It's stupendous, breath-taking, nerve-tingling, heart-breaking, marvelous." These are the praises sung for the latest indoor sport to hit the Oregon campus.

According to the many exponents of the game, it combines the stamina of football, the patience of a rubber of bridge, and the "never say die spirit" of baseball into one thrilling game. Yet anyone with the IQ of a moron can become an expert in a short time.

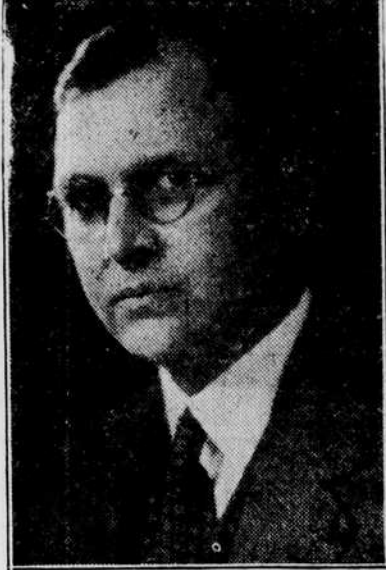

"Pinball railbirding," as it is called is indeed a popular sport as can be attested by the steadily increasing number of addicts. Each afternoon and evening finds games in full swing in any of the numerous wash-houses or drug stores where the pin-games may be found. The railbirds hang around the machines like a pack of vultures waiting for a free meal. Then as some sucker saunters up to the board and starts emptying his pocket-book into the bowels of the machine, they pull a Notre Dame shift and make a mad dash for places on the line of fire. Broken bones during this rush do not distract from the pleasure of the game in the least.

The game is started by the guy that is playing the marble board. As the ball rolls onto the playing field the excitement mounts high. With faces tense, the railbirds lean forward. All eyes are glued on the elusive little ball. A player feints to the left and then lurches forward in an endeavor to keep the ball out of the wrong hole. His efforts are in vain as the ball plunges into a hole at the top of the board. A jaw drops, but is quickly picked up again. Low noises resembling moans are heard along the scrimmage line. The line shifts to the right and play is resumed.

The quarterback calls time out as 40 to 1 odds appear. Faces go white with excitement. A woman shrieks. Everyone literally guides the ball down the board with his body. The ball comes to a rest.

To Visit Campus

Professor Homer L. Dodge of the University of Oklahoma was enroute to Oregon last night to visit the University campus, supposedly in connection with his candidacy for the president's chair vacated by Dr. C. Valentine Boyer.

AWS Sponsors Prof, Student Tea Mixer

Starting a new precedent, campus men and women will have an opportunity to invite their favorite professor for a cup of coffee at the AWS tea to be held Thursday in Gerlinger from 3 until 5.

This tea is for the purpose of getting acquainted with your professor in an informal atmosphere. The idea is to get your professor after class or ask them some time before if they wouldn't like to go over and have coffee some time during the afternoon. AWS is laying emphasis on the fact that this is not for women but that men on the campus are to take advantage of this opportunity also.

Mortar Board and the AWS council will act as hostesses with freshman women starting.

The council decided that November 17 would be the date for the next mass meeting.

Further plans were discussed for the weekly dances and committees were appointed to decide on an appropriate time. The dances will be held either on alternate weeks or as monthly affairs.

Donald Seaman Appointed Editor Of Lemon Punch

Students Interested
In Working on Staff
Contact Editor

Donald Seaman, junior in the school of journalism, has been appointed editor of Oregon's 1938 humor magazine, "Lemon Punch" which will appear as a feature in the 1938 Oregon and at least one other time this year.

An effort will be made, according to Seaman, to revive the traditional Oregon humor of years gone by which was published in "Lemon Punch." The name "Scruples," which has been used for the past two years, was discarded because it has no connection with the University.

All articles and jokes in the publication will be original this year, as will the cartoons and other features. The deadline for material will be January 3 when the magazine must be ready for the printer. This advanced deadline is even ahead of the usual appointment of the editor.

Students interested in working on the staff may contact Seaman or attend a meeting which will be held soon in the journalism building.

'Emerald of the Air' Features Interview

The Emerald of the Air last night featured an interview of Werner Asendorf, German exchange student, by Don Kennedy, program director.

Asendorf said that when he learned of his acceptance as an exchange student, he had a choice between Stanford and Oregon. He chose Oregon because he preferred a smaller community where people are more friendly and he could be closer to the American people.

He denied taking any "training course" before coming here, and said that the Germans were very much in favor of Adolf Hitler and his policies. He said that Herr Hitler has reduced Germany's unemployment from 5,000,000 to 500,000. He believes that Hitler's final aim is peace and a unified Europe.

Questioned about differences between German girls and American coeds, he said that German girls are more natural, but that coeds are "pretty nice, too."

Asendorf saw his first football game in Eugene and got a big thrill out of it, he said. He admitted that he was "not much of a sportsman," but hoped that he was a "good sport."

Curriculum Data At Glance Will Be Feature of Booklet

Information at a glance concerning educational facilities at the six institutions administered under the state system of higher education is being offered prospective students in a new booklet entitled "Courses of Study, Oregon State System of Higher Education." The booklet was prepared by the division of information of the system.

The booklet, designed primarily to help the high school student select a college curriculum best suited to his needs, gives a brief but complete exposition of all courses of study, both general and specialized, offered in the six institutions, University of Oregon, Oregon State college, normal schools at Ashland, Monmouth, and LaGrande, and the medical school in Portland. Another purpose is to give a picture of the unified institutions and the way in which their functions are coordinated under the leadership of Chancellor Frederick M. Hunter.

Included in the booklet is a double page curricula chart which gives a tabular summary of each course of study.

The booklet was planned and composed by Edwin T. Reed, publications editor for Oregon State System of Higher Education. He was assisted by Delmer M. Goode, publications editor at the state college, and George N. Belknap, University editor. Charles D. Byrne, director of information for the sys-

Prexy Nominee To Visit Campus

Prominent Physicist
Was Main Factor in Building Oklahoma
Graduate School

Visitor on the campus today, Homer L. Dodge, candidate for the presidency of the University, has attracted national prominence for his work in building up the graduate school of the University of Oklahoma.

Since going to his present place at the Norman, Oklahoma school, Dr. Dodge has held many positions in the department of physics. He started as professor of physics and head of that department in 1919, and became director of the school of engineering physics in 1924. Also a member of the governing board of American Institute of Physics since 1932 and director of the Oklahoma bureau of standards since 1919, besides which he has held numerous special appointments and positions in research and survey work in his field.

He has served as president of the Oklahoma chapter of the American Association of University professors and on the national council of that council. In 1925, he was president of that state's academy of science.

Four Fellowships

He has held fellowships in four scientific societies and has had four books and about 50 research papers published. Besides his writing on physics and other science articles, Dr. Dodge is the author of many papers on educational problems published in various papers.

His foremost work has been in the graduate school of which he was made dean in 1926. Dean Dodge regards as one of his most important contributions to that school, the adoption of programs of study leading to the degree of doctor of education. Oklahoma was among the first ten institutions to confer this degree.

Two of the 50-year-old educator's earliest accomplishments on the Oklahoma campus were his part in the establishment of a faculty club and the improvement in the standards for high school teachers in the state.

Affiliated with Fiji, social fraternity, and Sigma Xi, Phi Beta Kappa, and Phi Delta Kappa, honorary societies, is this third candidate to visit our campus.

Besides the out-of-doors avocations of boating, camping and the study of anthropology, he interests himself in art work, having managed several exhibits in Iowa City, Iowa.

Honorary to Discuss Buying and Selling

Pi Lambda Theta, national education honorary for women, will launch a new series of discussions on problems of better buying and selling at the second meeting of the season Monday evening. The subjects are grouped under the title, "Educating the Economic Illiterates."

Law School 'Fooers' To Go Under Hammer

"Anything you've got for anything we've got" will be the cry of lawyer Sid Milligan when he auctions off his undated fellow law men to Oregon coeds on the law school steps at 12:45 p.m. next Thursday in preparation for their "Foo" themed dance Friday night at the fair grounds.

The dance slated to begin at 9 p.m. will be held at "second barn on the left" after entering the fairgrounds. The unusual theme was chosen, says Reva Hearn, social arbiter of the "Stable Stomp," "because to my knowledge this is the only dance on or off the campus to have a genuine foo motif."

Costumes for this term's dance will be kept in accord with the rustic surroundings, a "bunny" being acceptable, according to Ed Raudsep, dance chairman.

The purpose of Thursday's "bargain sale" the lawyers declared is to "bring before the public, flowers of the legal department that have heretofore bloomed unseen." Ticket chairmen, Jack McGirr and Nathan Cohen, are anticipating an attendance exceeding 65 couples.

Mums to Be Sold For Oregon-WSC Game at Portland

For the Oregon-Washington State football game in Portland this weekend, AWS is sponsoring another mum sale with Harriet Sarazin as general chairman.

The mums are being purchased from Tommy Luke's and can be picked up at either of his flower shops at 6th and Alder or 23rd and Sandy. The usual prices of 50c, 75c or $1.00 are prevailing.

Orders will be taken by representatives in each women's living organization and AWS representatives will contact all men's houses.

The orders must be in by Thursday evening by 5:00.

Phi Chi Theta to Hold Banquet Here Soon

A banquet, sponsored by the Phi Chi Theta, women's business ad fraternity, will be given in Eugene, November 16, it was announced today by Vivian Runte, chairman in charge of arrangements.

The guest speaker will be Erwin S. Adams, assistant to the president of the Jantzen knitting mills of Portland. While the topic of his speech has not been definitely decided, he will probably discuss the merits of a college education.

Mr. Adams is a graduate of Oregon having received his BS degree in 1924.

Although this banquet is sponsored by and given for students enrolled in business courses, all other students and faculty members are welcome.

A definite location for the banquet has not been decided upon as yet although the place will be announced presently.

Tickets will be placed on sale in a few days and may be secured either from the commerce building or from Vivian Runte.

Mr. Adams is affiliated with the Phi Beta Kappa and Beta Gamma Sigma honorary fraternities.

Dr. Lesch Is Host to Poet Don Blanding

Dr. and Mrs. Edward Lesch were hosts at a small informal gathering Saturday evening at their home honoring Don Blanding, one of America's foremost contemporary poets, who was a Eugene visitor last week.

Mr. Blanding, who is a world traveler, entertained the group with stories of his adventures in many lands. He also read some of his poetry and discussed modern poetry trends with Dr. Lesch.

Dr. Lesch and Mr. Blanding were classmates at Princeton.

Dr. Homer L. Dodge Is Expected Today; Charles Remer Has Not Withdrawn

A new development in the selection problem is the expected arrival on this campus this afternoon of another nominee, Dr. Homer L. Dodge, dean of the graduate school of the University of Oklahoma, for a short visit and interview with University officials.

Although rumor stories were printed yesterday that Dr. Charles F. Remer, Michigan economics professor being prominently mentioned for the Oregon presidency, had withdrawn from the race, it was learned from Willard L. Marks, president of the state board of higher education, that such was not the case.

Contrary to the stories that Dr. Remer had returned to his home in Ann Arbor and had wired his withdrawal from consideration, Chairman Marks said yesterday that no formal offers or decisions will be made by either side until all the candidates have had the opportunity to visit the campus. Thus far only Dr. Remer and Dr. Clarence M. Updegraff, University of Iowa candidate, have been here.

Said Chairman Marks, "No announcement of the choice is imminent because no final decision has been made," thus passing off rumors that any man had been offered the position.

Candidates to Visit

In keeping with the plan of the state board to have each candidate visit the campus and be interviewed, it was learned that Dr. Dodge, a physics professor and head of that department since 1919 at his present school, will arrive this afternoon to look over the situation and talk with faculty members. He is believed to be the man favored for the position by several board members.

Dr. Remer, a visitor here two weeks ago, is known to have the backing of many of the faculty.

Dr. Updegraff, assistant to the president of the University of Iowa, was on the campus shortly after school started, while two of the other candidates being considered, David Faville and Donald Erb, of the Stanford economics department have not been here recently.

Interesting was the remark of Chairman Marks yesterday, that several other names are before the board for consideration. No hint has been given before this that there were others besides the five prominently named at the board's special session October 11, for choosing a president. He has also stated that the announcement will come after consideration of the candidates by the entire board, and not just by any part of it.

OSC Victory March Credited to Spirit

Oregon State College students, expecting chastisement for their now famous victory march to the University of Oregon campus, turned out in record numbers for a special student body meeting yesterday.

President G. W. Peavy attributed the demonstration to enthusiasm and asked cooperation in maintaining the institution's reputation with the public. Students regarded the incident as closed.

Ray Marlowe Visits On Campus Tuesday

Ray Marlowe, tenor from San Francisco, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Underwood of the University music school here Tuesday, while on his way to a singing engagement in Seattle.

Mr. Marlowe was a tenor soloist in the Eugene trail pageant in the summer of 1934.

Social Problems Will Be Discussed

Mrs. Mary Hilburn Jackson will lead the social problems discussion at Westminster house tonight from 9 to 10 p.m.

Mrs. Jackson will speak on "Share Croppers" of southeastern states.
