Fusionists Win Again Students Douse Prof U. S. to Fete Windsors Wanted: Dam Builder Election Battle Starts

LAGUARDIA VICTORY CONCEDED BY DEMOCRAT
Landslide returns in favor of Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, republican-fusionist candidate for reelection as mayor of New York City, assured him of his second victory against Tammany and its candidate, Jeremiah T. Mahoney. The latter, a democrat, conceded defeat in a telegram congratulating the victor. With this election resulting as it has, many are predicting the end of Tammany as a power in New York politics.

Thomas E. Dewey, noted and successful prosecutor of New York racketeers and strong fusionist, won the district attorney post. Meantime, the election "battle of the unions" was taking place in Detroit. The AFL candidate for mayor, Richard W. Reading, took an early three-to-one lead over Patrick O'Brien, CIO-backed nominee.

STUDENTS DUNK TOUGH PROFESSOR

Tossed into the campus pond on Hallow'en by a masked band of 150 students of the Monticello A. & M. college, a young chemistry instructor admitted yesterday that he had been the victim.

Campus gossip attributed the dunking episode as a retaliation for numerous "flunks" handed out by the prof, and authorities at the Monticello, Arkansas, institution had not yet decided what to do about the affair. . . . Wonder if the baptizers' cry was "We got a prof?"

WINDSOR'S RECEPTION PLANNED BY GOVERNMENT

In contrast to the snooty attitude of society big-wigs toward the impending visit of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, the ex-king and his American wife will be welcomed by the United States government just as it would any distinguished foreign visitors.

George T. Summerlin, chief of protocol for the state department, will meet the pair at New York and accompany them to Washington, on orders from President Roosevelt. In the first formal entertainment for Edward and his bride by representatives of the British crown since he gave up the throne, the British embassy will honor them at a "large" dinner in Washington on November 12.

GRAND COULEE BUILDER WANTED BY ICKES

Wanted: a builder who can do more in four years than was done in a full generation by 100,000 men who erected Egypt's great pyramid. That is the kind of a contractor Secretary Ickes advertised for yesterday — a contractor to complete the Grand Coulee dam.

Bids will be opened for the job at Spokane on December 10. The winner must be ready to post a $5,000,000 performance bond and a payment bond of $2,500,000. The latter is the highest on record. To date almost $63,000,000 has been expended on the Columbia river project. Among materials to go into the completion of the job will be 7,000,000 barrels of cement and 60 trainloads of steel and machinery.

HEATED WORDS FLY AS DEMOS PREPARE

Defending his candidacy for United States senator, Circuit Judge Edward B. Ashurst of Klamath Falls, yesterday issued a statement attacking Willis Mahoney, former mayor and a prospective candidate for the same office.

He branded the latter as "owned, controlled and dominated by the gambling interests" which "have exploited the laboring people of this county." Both men are Democrats.

Ashurst's statements came as a reply to a central labor council resolution expressing "keen disappointment" in his candidacy and urging his withdrawal in favor of Mahoney. Open season for senatorial aspirants in Oregon was sounded recently with the news that Frederick Steiwer would not run for reelection.

"A winnah!" yells someone, followed by, "aw hell, I thought the 3 was hit"

Disgusted with the results, the railbirds wipe the sweat off their brows and move on to more productive fields.

"Hey chum," calls out someone, "let's shoot two-bits apiece and call it a night." And the game goes merrily on.

The two-day annual regional conference of school teachers from five Oregon counties came to a close Tuesday afternoon with Dr. Bruce Baxter, president of Willamette university, making the closing address. His subject was "Horace Mann: Father of the Common School."

Last sessions of the big conference started at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning with registration at McArthur court. County divisional meetings, group luncheons, speeches and discussions occupied the morning hours.

Campus speakers at the conference were: Miss Ethel Sawyer of the University library who discussed the reading experience of young children, and Miss Lenore Casford, periodical librarian, led a discussion of the modern school's library.

Hobson Talks

Howard Hobson, basketball and baseball coach, discussed athletics and recreation in high schools and Miss Janet Woodruff, as associate professor of physical education, spoke of physical education in the Monroe experiment.

Four important qualities of a teacher's voice, were listed by John Casteel, head of the speech department in his talk on "Voice, Nerves and Knowledge."

J. R. Jewell, dean of school of education, spoke at the Tuesday luncheon.

The main address before the conference Tuesday morning was given by Dr. W. E. Armstrong, dean of the college of education at Mills college. That child growth and development rather than subject matter should receive emphasis in education today was the theme of his talk.

J. F. Cramer, superintendent of Eugene public schools, Harry B. Johnson, principal of Eugene high school, R. U. Moore, principal of University high school, discussed different aspects of the changing curriculum. Mr. Moore declared that mathematics has a real place in present day courses of study.

Education Modernized

That education is being modernized was the assertion of C. F. Walker, president of the Northwestern School of Commerce in Portland. Along with this streamlining of education comes reorganization of the study of American history explained J. A. Holaday, supervisor of social sciences at University high.

Musical numbers were presented by the Eugene high school glee club and the Eugene junior symphony orchestra.

YOUNG TO SING

Due to many requests Hal Young, professor of voice at the school of music, will sing the famous religious solo "Holy City" at the First Christian church in Eugene Sunday night.

The regular Sunday service will be given.

Primitive Masks On Display in Library

Masks from various portions of the globe, including the northwest coast region of America, are on display in the main circulation lobby of the University library. Those from the northwest coast region include various headdress and face masks used in ritual or ceremonial dances of the early northwest, and are from the collection of Alice Henson Ernst, associate professor of English at the University.

The masks were collected by Mrs. Ernst during a study of the rituals of the region springing from the writing of an article requested by "Theatre Arts," of New York. Also exhibited in the circulation lobby show cases are other masks, collected by John March, reference librarian. These include a Noh fisherman from Japan, a mask from New Guinea, an australian death mask from Chile, and three Mexican masks.

Tillie Dorffler Gets Master of Science

A master of science degree was won by Miss Tillie Dorffler of the school of education when she successfully passed her examination on Monday afternoon.

Miss Dorffler's thesis is titled "A Plan for Correlating the Essential Requirements of the Oregon State Course of Study for Third Grade with an Activity Unit." She is a member of the staff of the Witaker elementary school of Eugene.

Extension Granted Candid Cameraman

Interest in Contest Warrants Extended Time

Because of the unusual interest and response in the Carl Baker-Oregana picture contest, the deadline has been extended to December 1, Louise Aiken, chairman, said yesterday.

Competition for the prizes valued at $25, including subscriptions to the 1938 Oregana and photographers' supplies from Baker's, will be strong, according to Miss Aiken. Entries, which need only include small contact prints and the negatives, can be made any day at the office of the Oregana editor in the educational activities building. The negatives will be returned after the contest closes. There is no limit to the number of entries.

Miss Aiken is especially anxious to obtain photographs of informal activities about the various halls, sororities and fraternities for those sections in the yearbook, she said. The pictures need not have been taken this term as many of last spring and summer's prints are of great interest. The contest is divided into two parts, one for photographs of campus life and one of art pictures of the campus itself. Judges will be George Godfrey, head of the news bureau, Mr. Baker and Wayne Harbert, editor of the Oregana.

Mime's Strange Art Thrills Mrs. Seybolt

First-hand information about the strange art of Angna Enters, coming to the campus Thursday, November 11 as an ASUO concert series attraction, was obtained yesterday from Mrs. Ottilie T. Seybolt, University theater director, who once attended the famed mime's appearance in New York.

"Nobody knew quite what they were seeing," said Mrs. Seybolt, "her performance being a presentation of human characters over a considerable range in a rhythmic pattern."

Mrs. Seybolt was emphatic in her endorsement of Miss Enters as an attraction not to be missed. "It is the only performance of its kind in the country, and should not be missed under any circumstances."

Mrs. Seybolt said the act was on the order of what Ruth Draper does except there is no dialogue, and characters and their emotions are presented through motions.

Miss Enters portrays characters so clearly that the audience can see the mood of the person she is imitating by the expression on her face.

Better than a Letter!

Dear Son:

Those Oregon Daily Emeralds your mother and I are getting every morning keep us posted on what's happening "down at the University" better than any letter you've ever written!

Then, too, the paper is a daily reminder that we're not forgotten, even if you are too busy to write. Though of course we couldn't expect you to do the work of The Emerald's fifty reporters in "covering the campus."

Thanks for the year's subscription. We get so much pleasure from reading The Emerald that I'm even glad to pay that trifling $2.50 bill you had them send me.

Regards
Dad.
