

Holiday Gives Chance To Invite Dads Down

J. Lockridge Suggests Letters for Students Not Going Home; 3 Days' Festivities

Students who are not going home for the Thanksgiving vacation are asked to take advantage of the holidays and drop a line home to dad, inviting him down for Dad's day, December 3-5, it was stated last night by Jack Lockridge, chairman of the Dad's day promotion committee.

"Those who go home will have even a better chance to invite their dads," Lockridge said, "because they can contact him personally, and that's exactly what we urge everyone who goes home to do. Hand him a program of the week-end and tell him the campus will be all his for three days, December 3 to 5. He'll enjoy Dad's day with you."

Lockridge and his committee have distributed special Dad's day stationery and programs to every living organization, where representatives are on hand to give them to the students. Supplies of both programs and letterheads are available to independent students at the Co-op store.

Plans for the weekend are progressing rapidly, according to Bill Cummings, general chairman. At a meeting of the banquet committee yesterday, final arrangements for the Dad's day banquet were made, and it was announced that Chancellor Frederick M. Hunter will be the main speaker. The complete program for the banquet will be announced later.

Dramatic Program To Be Aired Friday

In connection with non-credit correspondence courses in drama presented by the WPA through the general extension division, Miss Madeline Goodall, who was graduated with honors from the University in 1929, will conduct a dramatic program over KOAC Friday.

The program, designed to inform correspondence students how plays can be produced in groups for amusement or for making money, will include discussion and presentation of a scene, probably from Jane Austen's novel, "Pride and Prejudice."

Reporting Classes

(Continued from page one) Mr. Hulten hands them to the reporters. After covering and writing the stories, the reporters turn them in directly to the paper, and a carbon copy is submitted to Mr. Hulten.

Types of stories written have included sports, speeches, club meetings, city council meetings, conventions, and municipal affairs. Frequently they cover a beat for one of the papers' regular reporters who has been sent out of town. The papers cooperate with the program, often giving by-lines in recognition of the students' good work.

Mr. Hulten admits that he began the new idea with some trepidation, but students and the downtown papers have worked so well together that the plan will undoubtedly be continued in the future, he reports.

Iron Lung Will Be Shown on Campus During Next Week

University of Oregon students will have an opportunity to see the Eugene "iron lung" on the campus, according to a decision made by the Eugene "Iron lung" committee Monday night.

The lung will be placed in one of the rooms of the new library on Wednesday and Thursday, December 1 and 2, where students may examine it.

The campaign for funds is still being carried on by the committee with the intention of providing a permanent endowment for maintaining the "lung" and of buying for oxygen tents, one of which will be placed in the University infirmary. Two of the tents will be placed in the Sacred Heart hospital, and one in the Eugene hospital. Cost of the four tents is estimated at $1000.

The committee will appeal to the University for further aid in the project. Students contributed approximately $394 toward the purchase of the "iron lung" when an appeal was made at one of the football games in Hayward field.

Drainage Ditches Grace Landscape West of New Libe

WPA workmen proceeded yesterday to move landscape at various points of the campus, in spite of the continuous downpour of rain throughout the day.

Most conspicuous of the operations were those at the west end of the library, where a system of surface drains is being laid. This type of drain consists of a ditch dug at sufficient pitch to allow drainage, with drainage tile laid for permanence.

Other men continued on landscaping around the remodeled men's natatorium, where grading is being done. The grading has received attention from time to time since the completion of the building, but is still unfinished.

Following the grading, the ground surrounding the pool and on the west side of the infirmary will be seeded for grass.

Dads and Dad's Day Committee Get Together

University of Oregon dads will be greeted December 3 by a full program when the big weekend celebration gets under way. Plans for the program are being made by this group of students, faculty members, and Eugene dads. From left, standing, are Jack Loch-ridge, Phyllis Gardner, Rita Wright, Jack Enders, Dr. Charles E. Hunt, Robert W. Precott, Elizabeth Turner, Dean Karl W. Onthank, and Lloyd Huffman. Seated are H. B. Sallee and Bill Cummings, committee chairman.

Soph Informal Price Cut To Card Holders

In keeping with the policy of giving sophomore class card holders "their money's worth," co-chairmen Chuck Skinner and Phil Lowry announced a reduction to card holders for the annual all-campus informal December 4.

The reduction will be 25 cents of the one dollar admission, the co-chairmen said.

Plans for Maurice Binford and Gus Meyers to furnish a two-band musical setting for the dance fell through last night, Skinner said, when Binford said he was playing for the Sophomore Cotillion at Oregon State December 4.

The co-chairmen have contacted Dan Flood and Gil Evans in Portland and Johnny Mercer at Corvallis. Consolidated Radio Artists have also submitted bids for the dance, they said, offering Fletcher Henderson or Clyde McCoy.

The dance will be a sport affair to follow a basketball game on McArthur court Saturday evening of the Dad's day weekend.

University Health Officers to Attend Annual Meeting

Earl E. Boushey and Mike Hoy-

man, of the physical education department, and Dr. Fred Miller and Dr. Marian Hayes, of the student health service, will leave today to attend the annual conference of the American student health service organization at Mills college in San Francisco.

En route to the meeting the University representatives will meet John F. Bovard, former dean of the physical education school here. Dr. Bovard is attending the meeting to conduct a series of conference groups.

The main discussion of the conference this year will be centered around venereal diseases instead of the usual conversation about tuberculosis progress.

The four faculty members going on this trip expect to return via automobile next Sunday.

Lunch to Be Served Students Thursday

A lunch for all students remaining on the campus over the Thanksgiving holidays will be served Thursday evening at 6 o'clock in Gerlinger hall.

Tea or coffee will be served to all students, however, each student must bring his own cookies and sandwiches.

After the lunch, the sun room will be opened for games. Students are invited to remain until midnight. The weekly symphony concert at 8:15 over the new radio in alumni hall will be open to all. This is a weekly feature.

Campus Calendar

Virginia Elliott, Belva Holm, June Dick, Doris Baker, Jack Stafford, Charles Walnum, Harry Chapman, Phillip Loway, Ted Holmes, Bill Faskett, Peter O'Toole, Chester Wells, and Tom McKelvie were confined to the infirmary yesterday.

Students of the Baptist church will hold a Thanksgiving party at the church Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

At both houses a desire was expressed to continue the affairs and the hope that the custom would spread through the campus and eventually mean closer and more friendly relations between all University fraternities.
