

Romance, Pep to Pervade 'Christmas Revels', Last Dance Party of Fall Term

Students and Faculty Will Get Together in Pause That Refreshes on Weekend Before Onslaught of Final Exams

Sprigs of mistletoe placed in numerous cozy places are expected to add an air of romance to the merry Christmas spirit which will fill Gerlinger hall during the all-campus Christmas Revels, Saturday, December 11, announced Larry Reid and Hazel Lewis, co-chairmen of the affair yesterday.

Additional zest will be added in the form of the new fast-stepping campus dance team of Alyce Rogers and Max Peabody, who will put on a novel specialty, a fast dance, routine. And there is talk of plenty of the big apple and other lively steps beside all the conventional dancing a couple may desire.

Also on the program will be the Hyde sisters, an acrobatic dance team, Hugh Simpson, singing guitarist, Hal Young and his carollers, and several other skits which have been kept secret, comes the announcement. Among the latter are several from faculty members. This is the seventh year of the Revels. First starting as an informal all-campus get-together of the students with the faculty, it has rapidly grown into a campus tradition. Last year Santa had presents for the guardians and instructors of the campus family and this year Santa is reported to have an extra large gifts bag.

Not only will the campus be invited to this affair, but also any townspeople who may desire to

Senior Photos Must Be Taken by Dec. 10

Deadline for all senior pictures in the Oregana has been set for Friday, December 10, Margaret Ray, editor of the senior section announced yesterday.

Members of the senior class who have not had their pictures taken with organizations should call the Kennel-Ellis studios and make arrangements for an appointment as soon as possible.

Activity slips will be distributed to seniors through living organizations this week and must be filled out and turned in at the Oregana office by December 10. Students not living in organizations may call for their slips at the Co-op.

see the fun, Miss Lewis added.

Helping Mrs. Lewis and Larry Reid, chairmen of the party will be: Miss Lewis and Don Fry, program; Dorothy Davis, music; Elizabeth Linn and Leonard Hufford, decorations; Betty Backlund and Hugh Simpson, reception; Relta Powell and Hubard Kuokka, publicity; Orva Hanson and Don McAfee, refreshments, Leota McCracken and Arthur Murphy, cleanup.

The refreshments will be cider and cookies. Although it is a mixed party, that is, generally no date, dates will be permissible.

Shouting Lewis, Chewing Green Meet for Peace

NRLB, Too, Becomes Entangled in Free Press Issue

By GORDON RIDGEWAY
WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Face to face, literally, but politically back to back, the leaders in labor's civil war, John L. Lewis and William Green, met here today to talk of peace.

At the conclusion of their initial session Lewis shouted at interviewers that he and Green had reached no conclusions.

Chewing his gum in vigorous fashion, Green offered, "It was an interesting discussion."

Along with other labor troubles, the national labor relations board attempted to subpoena the records of a magazine, "Mill and Factory," which has been defiantly criticizing the board recently. The subpoena was granted.

But editors and publishers announced that the document will be ignored, believing it to be a violation of the constitutional guarantee of a free press.

In that event, the board declared, federal courts will be called upon to uphold the board's authority.

Sig Ep power and steadiness proved too much for them. Leading the Sigma Chi attack was last year's tower of strength, Ed Wheelock.

Betas Triumph

In the first playoff in the B league series, the Betas bested the Kappa Sig minor leaguers in the most erratic series of the entire season. In the initial game, the Kappa Sigs appeared to be invincible by white-washing their mill-race brothers, 15-0, but in the second and third games the tables were practically reversed with the Betas running off with the winning margin, 15-5, 15-5.

In a league 4 championship playoff, the Phi Delta B leaguers the Theta Chi in straight games, 15-13, 15-4. After battling on practically even terms in the first game, the Theta Chi lads folded up in the second, thus eliminating themselves from a place in the championship playoffs.

Sig Ep Babes Win

In a postponed B league game, the Sig Ep babes dropped the Fiji volliers in straight games, 16-14, 15-5. The games had no bearing on the championship playoffs.

Two games have been scheduled for the courts this afternoon, the DU A leaguers meeting the Sig Eps on court 38 at 4 o'clock, and the Gamma hall B team opposing the Phi Deltas.

The DUs drew a bye in the A league playoff and the winner of today's game will attempt to take the title away from the defending Phi Delta sextet at 4:45 Monday. The Gamma hall-Phi Delta match will be the second game in B league playoffs.

How to Lose Friends, Art, 'Nap's' Glands Interest to 'Browsers'

Cooking and composition can now cooperate without turning the result into a cookbook. The latest author recruited from kitchen ranks is Sally Salminen, who was in domestic services in a home in this country when she received word that her novel, "Katrina," had been chosen as the Helsingfors prize novel.

Written at night and on afternoons-off this story of the peasants fisherfolk of the Aland Islands was submitted to a prize contest sponsored by two Scandinavian houses. Its choice was unanimous and upon publication in Sweden it had immediate success. The 50,000 marks prize has freed Miss Salminen for more literary work, and she has now returned to the Aland Islands where she was born to work on a second novel.

Rupert Hughes says of David Edstrom's "The Testament of Cellini, and make room on the narrow shelf of great autobiographies for this self-life by David Edstrom, a rival of your genius in sculpture as in revelation of himself and of the amazingly various people he has met." (We agree.)

Just in case you aren't aware of it, there are a great many people in the world who want to take the bull by the horns, open the door when opportunity knocks, and generally make friends and influence people. It is the thing to do, if you want to get out of that imaginary rut you're in, say the book publishers. For a long time now they've had the public eating out of their hands. Can anything stop it?

Yes! And the leader of the counter-attack is Irving D. Tressler, whose latest anti-popularity document is "How to Lose Friends and Alienate People," a burlesque of all success books, (one in particular.) In this tongue-in-cheek treatise, Mr. Tressler formulates a sound and workable recipe for antagonizing your friends and making yourself repulsive.

Mr. Tressler tells you the best way to start grudges, how to shake hands in that bone-crushing style, how to lip and talk about yourself in a steady stream, how to keep a chip on your shoulder, how to get rid of your boy friend, how to forget names and people, how to be late for appointments (dates to you), how to be generously unflattering, how to contradict, but wait, we could go on forever telling you how to assert yourself distastefully.

If you crave lonesome evenings, read this satire, (or you might try "Let Your Mind Alone" by James Thurber, who shares a similar point of view.) Look it over, maybe to see through some of the farces the older generation is fooling itself with, maybe to get a few chuckles and belly laughs.

Whether or not you go in for any extra-curricular reading, try to remember Mr. Tressler's most provoking maxim for failure, "Always keep a snarl on your face." Personally, we don't care much for sourpusses, but after reading the book, we're anxiously waiting for someone to disagree with us...

Sheldon Cheney in his "World History of Art" looks at the past 10,000 years of art and sees it through the eyes of today. "Art is joyous if one can get at it," says Mr. Cheney, and he has set out to help the reader "get at it" through present-day appreciations and viewpoints.

Well, now maybe poor Napoleon can rest in peace! Dr. Boris Sokoloff has gone after Napoleon's physical eccentricities to explain what someone has called "history's most complex individual."

The so-called mystery of Napoleon seems to be the transformation of one of the most determined and

Oregana Orders Near Quota Mark

The Oregana quota of 2000 books has almost been filled, according to Howard Overback, business manager of the yearbook. One thousand eight hundred twenty-five have been sold, Overback said yesterday.

Any student waiting until winter term to sign for an annual will be placed on the waiting list with no guarantee of a book.

This year features a painless payment plan by which the student signs a contract with his house agent, no down payment necessary before winter term.

Dick Williams is promoting sales of the remaining copies of the annuals. Those wishing Oregana are urged to sign at the Oregana office right away.

Mrs. Seybolt Seeks Poor John, Dearie For Coming Play

Do you have "Poor John," "Oh, Bedelia," or "Dearie"? If so, Mrs. Ottilie Turnbull Seybolt, head of the drama department, would like to see you.

The titles mentioned belong to sheet music not to people, and this music is needed for the production of "Ah! Wilderness," by Eugene O'Neill to be produced early next term.

Other collector's items which are needed for the play are costumes of the period of 1906. Especially desired are motoring costumes of the day. The large veiled hats, the linen dusters and goggles, all these are needed to complete the atmosphere of the first decade of the twentieth century.

The completed cast of the play will be announced soon and progress on the production is already well under way.
