Higher Education Costs Are Found Low to Taxpayer

Restored Salaries and Large Enrollment Bolster Session

Although the program involved a total expenditure of $64,000, the actual cost to the state of furnishing instruction in 1937 in seven summer sessions held under the direction of the state board of higher education, was less than $1.50 per student, a report made public here yesterday showed.

The sessions held at Portland and Eugene under the auspices of the University of Oregon, at Oregon State College, at the normal schools at La Grande, Monmouth, and Ashland and at the marine biology station on Coos Bay, drew a total enrollment of 3282, a substantial increase over the previous year.

Students themselves paid the session a total of $57,000 in fees and the federal government provided $1900, the report showed, thus leaving but $4900 to come from the state board funds.

Students were not only drawn from every part of Oregon but from 30 states, Hawaii, Alaska, Cuba, Canada, and India.

Net cost to the state of the sessions at the seven units was $1871 at the University of Oregon at Portland; $1546 at the University of Oregon at Eugene for regular and post sessions; $181 at Oregon State College for regular and post sessions; $942 at the normal schools at Monmouth, La Grande, and Ashland, and $413 at Coos Head unit on Coos Bay.

Plans are already under way for the 1938 sessions, which will be similar to those of the past successful summer, it was announced. The state board of higher education at its recent meeting authorized the sessions, and upon the recommendation of Chancellor Frederick M. Hunter, voted to restore salaries for the faculty to the pre-depression level.

Prof. Wright Chosen By Orthograpists

Leavitt O. Wright, professor of Spanish at the University of Oregon, was recently honored by the Hispanic American association for phonetic orthography by being appointed official representative of that society in the United States.

The society, which advocates phonetic spelling, notified Professor Wright through its international president, Professor Alberto Brambila of Guadalajara, Mexico. Mr. Wright may attend the fourth Inter-American education congress at Bogota, Colombia, this coming August as delegate of the orthographic society.

The Spanish professor is familiar with Mexican affairs, having visited there last summer. He has also written a paper on phonetic orthography which he read at the third Inter-American congress in Mexico City last year. The article has been published in several Mexican periodicals.

Kappa Delta Pi to Offer $1000 Prize

As part of the celebration of the coming centennial of Horace Mann and the revival of the common school, Kappa Delta Pi, national educational fraternity, is sponsoring a $1000 contest.

Any significant phase of the history of American education can be the subject of the entries submitted. Contestants can be anyone from anywhere, the only stipulation being that writing be English. The contest closes September 1, 1939.

Emerald Workers To Meet Wednesday

The news staff of the Oregon Daily Emerald will meet in room 105 Journalism building Wednesday evening at 7:30 for the regular reorganization meeting. Editor LeRoy Mattingly will be in charge. Another special edition of the Emerald will appear Friday morning. Regular publication of the campus daily will begin Tuesday of next week. All staff members are requested to be on hand for the meeting. New positions will be announced and old ones reassigned. New students interested in journalism are also invited to attend by Editor Mattingly.

Jameson Elected Sociologists' Prexy

Dr. Samuel Jameson, professor of sociology at the University, was elected president of the Pacific Sociological association at a recent meeting of the group in Claremont, California.

Krazy Kopy Krawl Set for January 14

Announcement was made last night of the revival of the "Krazy Kopy Krawl," the annual dance sponsored by the campus chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, men's advertising honorary.

The dance, a campus feature for several years, has been scheduled for January 14. Doug Milne, senior in advertising, has been named chairman.

Happy New Year

We welcome the opportunity of wishing all students a Happy New Year and the pleasure of thanking everyone for their generous patronage in 1937. We are appreciative, and hope you'll do the same during 1938.
