

THE HOT CORNER

By BILL NORENE

But when he once attains the up-most round, He then unto the ladder turns his back, Looks in the clouds, scorning the base degrees By which he did ascend.

This is just a little more than a bit of crude apple-polishing, or a hint to my Shakespeare professor that I know more about Julius Caesar than the last quiz would seem to indicate.

Up to last week the Ducks were truly high-flying Ducks. They had swept through 11 pre-season games with only one scare, that one by an aggregation of former Oregon State basketball players performing for Portland's Multnomah club.

These same Cougars had twice outclassed Slats Gill's lads in the same week that Oregon had so easily taken WSC. The first OSC-WSC game the Cougars won 42 to 31 without too much trouble, while they came back in the second half of the second game to overcome a 13-7 Orange half-time lead to win, 25 to 21.

According to that, beating the Orangemen should be as easy as admiring one of Petty's drawings. But that was just the trouble. They entered the game with it already won. Somehow or other, though, their plans failed to materialize.

The Staters went into an early lead, but were overcome after a little more than five minutes when Sarpola dropped in the two foul throws awarded when Hardy was fouled by Kebbe and had to be taken from the game.

Sigma Chis Win Two Games With Peters, Applegate Leading Way; Hotelmen Use Fourteen Men in Beating Soupers

It was too much Richard Peters for the Canard clubbers yesterday as they bowed before the strong quintet from Sigma Chi in a fast A league game, 25 to 15.

Not only did Peters score 13 points for his team, but he also scored for the club. He came out of a wild scramble for the ball and turning, whipped the ball through the hoop for a perfect one-handed goal—but it was in the wrong basket. Thus he scored for both teams.

After a half of ragged play the score was 11 to 8 for the Sweethearts. Turning on the heat in the final canto the lads from Sigma Chi outran the Canard five and went home with the bacon—their second win of the year.

Sigma Chi 24, Omega 11
Following the example set by their big brothers, the Sigma Chi E leaguers took an easy contest from a game but outfought Omega half five, 24 to 11.

Staging a comeback from a 2-to-14 score at half time, the Omega team rallied, but were unable to overcome the early lead of the junior Sweethearts.

Applegate, substitute for Sigma Chi, was high point man of the contest with 8 markers, while Olmstead led the half team with 4.

ATO's 36, Campbell Co-op 9
Bowling over a weak Campbell Co-op team, Alpha Tau Omega, B league champions of last year, won their second game of the year, 36 to 9.

At the half time the score was 21 points for the ATOs and only 1 for the Co-op crew. Many substitutes were sent into the fray for the "Hotelmen" at this point, scoring 17 points, besides limiting the Campbell team to 8.

Anderson was outstanding for the ATOs with 10 points.

G. P. "Jiggs" Dahlberg, coach of Montana State university's basketball team, was a forward and captain of the Montana basketball team in 1925.

Led by Berl Maxwell, who scored 12 points, Sherry Ross hall drubbed the Pi Kaps yesterday 23 to 8. The Pi Kaps were no match for the clever Maxwell and his mates for they couldn't hold on to the ball, dribble or find the hoop. They seemed to lack coordination and the old "eye."

The score at half time stood 9 to 4 for Sherry Ross, but at the end of the third quarter they had worked it to 17 to 6. Maxwell, Marnie, Wilson and Samuelson bucketed field goals for the Sherry Ross five with Larsen the only man able to connect in the last period.

Maxwell was high point man for both teams. The outstanding feature of Maxwell's playing was his scoring all but 2 points of those made by his mates in the first canto. Scoring honors were divided among the Pi Kaps.

Grizzlies Here But Won't Play In Bare Skins

By VINCENT GATES
"Jiggs" Dahlberg and his Montana Grizzlies tonight at the Igloo. The Ducks will attempt to play the part of Maggie.

With some of the Ducks being exposed to chickenpox there seems to be something to the idea that you don't have to be an athlete to have athlete's foot.

Now that Silver, Hardy and Gale have joined the infirmary, there's talk of the infirmary entering a basketball team in the intramural league.

The Webfeet found the championship waters pretty muddy. Darned by the Beavers.

Coach Hobson says foo to the campus nitwit who wanted to know if the Grizzlies played in their bare skins.

Dahlberg, Hoopers Go Through PE Plant

George P. "Jiggs" Dahlberg, Montana State university hoop coach, herded his troupe of basketeers through the University of Oregon physical education plant—from one end to the other—yesterday afternoon, and pronounced it the best he had ever seen.

"Of course, I haven't seen very many," Dahlberg said, "but I have seen all in the Northwest and the one at Minnesota—considered one of the best."
And his hoopers from the copper state were equally impressed. When Anse Cornell, official guide of the party said, "If some one turned out the lights, it would be hard to find your way out of the two buildings," one of the Montana boys added, "Why turn them out?"

Coach Soft-Spoken
The Montana coach—a soft-speaking, mild-mannered young fellow—threw a lot of light on the Montana "mystery" as he talked of the basketball situation in the Rocky mountain state. The Emerald reporter, popping questions at intervals, learned that...

The swimmers were divided into two teams, the Turtles and the Swans, each composed of swimmers from both schools. The final score was Swans 20, Turtles 10.

That lack of height has handicapped the Montanans no end. That "held balls" are a menace to Dahlberg's team because "every time a held ball is called it is just the same as giving the other team the ball."

That the Montana gym holds 2500 people and was filled to capacity every time the Grizzlies played.

That Dahlberg teaches his boys to "run and shoot." That Washington has another good team.

That the Oregon State "rough-em-up zone defense" threw the Grizzlies off, especially the first night.

That Joe Mariana, five-feet-six inch forward, is the smallest player in the northern division, and a good ball handler as well as a good shot.

Oregon's Ducks Gunning For Montana's Hoopers Minus Silver, Bob Hardy

Minus the services of Dave Silver and Bob Hardy, Oregon's injury-riddled varsity basketball team battles an unknown quantity—Montana State university—tonight in the first of a two game series in McArthur court. Game time is 8:15 o'clock.

Silver, six-foot-four-inch forward, is still in the infirmary recovering from a case of chicken-pox and will not be on the firing line for at least another week. Hardy's broken ankle, incurred in the Oregon State series, will keep him out the rest of the season.

Lanky Laddie Gale, who Wednesday sojourned briefly in the infirmary, returned to the team yesterday and promptly took a first string berth. Gale will probably start, Coach Hobby Hobson announced last night, but may not see action the full game. He is still suffering from a chest cold.

The remainder of the squad was pronounced in good condition by Hobson after the final workout Thursday afternoon.

The Grizzly pack from the copper state, back in the northern division hoop race after ten years, are still somewhat of an unknown quantity. Jiggs Dahlberg's quint opened the chase with a pair of victories over what was considered the best Idaho club in years, to rate as a darkhorse threat.

Mystery Team
Called a "mystery" team by the press, Dahlberg's boys entertained Hec Edmundson's Washington

Huskies the next week. Washington solved some of the mystery yesterday with a pair of victories.

Montana comes to Eugene on the second leg of a road trip into Oregon. The Grizzlies lost still more of their mystery stamp Tuesday and Wednesday nights at Corvallis when the Beavers took them by 46-to-36 and 43-to-31 counts.

Lazetich, Thompson Forwards
Teaming at forward for the Grizzlies probably will be Captain Bob Thompson and Bill Lazetich with "Leetle Joe" Mariana, five-feet-six inch speedboy, who is about the smallest court caper in the northern division circle, held in reserve. Jim Seyler will open at center, but will alternate with Barney Ryan. Slated at the guard posts are Paul Chumrau and Chuck Miller.

The Grizzlies present a team that plays unorthodox ball. They
