

MYSTERY to HISTORY

By GLENN HASSELROOTH

Two writers, who in the past have been known for vivid telling of their own lively memoirs...

Negley Farson is one. Two years ago he published a very revealing autobiography called "The Way of a Transgressor..."

R. H. Bruce Lockhart, author of "British Agent," is also with us. And he, like Mr. Farson, makes the reader feel he is being far more truthful than ever before...

As long as he writes Mr. Lockhart remains the writer of 50 remembering when he was a boy; he is never a little boy who does not know that he will be a successful writer when he is 50...

The recently-added "Pro and Con" department in the Reader's Digest gets our vote of appreciation and thanks. For years upon end many magazines have conducted Vox Pop sections in which readers have had their say...

feel that the editors did not wish to become partisan. Some letters have been unreasonably biased.

The Reader's Digest has no Vox Pop column, nor has it waited for readers to report their ideas haphazardly. Now, to present facts without prejudice, staff writers have gleaned from many sources material for and against many topical issues...

State College Program Approved for Financing Science School Building

Special to The Emerald PORTLAND, Jan. 25.—Methods for financing construction of a modern $400,000 chemistry building to house the Oregon State college school of science were approved by the state board of higher education at their meeting today.

A $250,000 loan will be floated with the unpledged $2 portion of the student building fee as security and a plea for an additional $250,000 will be made to the state legislature, board members said.

Under the plan to enlarge the facilities of the school of science at Corvallis, $75,000 would be spent to remodel the old building for laboratories and class rooms.

Other Plan Folds A new plan to finance the construction was drawn up after PWA grants had been withdrawn.

A $100,000 grant from an anonymous donor to match the sum recently offered by the Rockefeller foundation of New York City for increasing the library facilities of the University of Oregon medical school was assured, a report to the board revealed.

A report from Chancellor Frederick M. Hunter on the enrollment in the state system showed record highs on both the Eugene and Corvallis campus. Oregon state enrollment was 4025 and University, 3014.

Boyer Lauded To Dr. C. Valentine Boyer, retiring president of the University, the board conveyed "its grateful appreciation of the thoroughly competent service he has rendered as president during the past four years—a service characterized by sound judgment, earnest convictions, high ideals, and a spirit of constructive cooperation."

GRAD IN SCHOOL WORK Margaret Young, graduate of the University in December, 1937, has accepted a position in handling remedial work in the high and grade schools at Ontario, Oregon.

Sigma Chis to Pledge Nugget Cheese Champ

The Sigma Chis have a new pledge, Little Freddie. He's one of their best boys and has the makings of a great activity man. He comes from a good line of descendants as they have practically over run the Sigma Chi house for years.

Fred came to Oregon this term and established himself in the Sigma Chi house immediately. After several attempts to ding him with ski poles, pretending they were big game hunters, the boys gave up. He insists on staying.

He has the makings of a would-be athlete, as he runs around the sleeping porch at least ten times a night. The mouse traps won't work, the cats can't catch him—maybe they'll initiate him.

Self Quizzes (Continued from page one) "The number of questions which the students asked themselves varied from the youth who asked himself 18 questions to one who dared ask but a single question. The average student felt that he could safely asked himself seven questions."

Boon or Bane Gripe department: One of the lads in the house who got an electric razor for Christmas complains he isn't getting satisfactory results. The bristles, he says, react as though the shaver were a massaging device, and they grow faster and longer.—Indiana Daily.

Competition "The better women skiers are much better than the average man," says Peter MacKinnon, ski instructor in the Seigniory club at McGill University in Montreal, Quebec, and ex-champion of Canada. It is "because they have developed their technique, and when a woman develops her technique it's time for man to watch out." These comments were made when Mr. MacKinnon gave advice and encouragement for women learning to ski at the university.

Friday Deadline Set For Dock Trouble Pacific Coast Ports May Be Idle Again This Week

By GORDON RIDGEWAY SAN PEDRO, Calif., Jan. 25.—Longshoremen and warehousemen of the CIO union will stop work Friday afternoon, reports here said today. Such a move that would prevent all shipping on the Pacific coast is being made to gain recognition for the union as a bargaining agent for San Pedro longshoremen. It is also a protest against a court order naming a Los Angeles attorney receiver of the association.

Harry Bridges, union leader, yesterday warned Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, that a strike would become necessary.

Filibuster? WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Senator Neely of Virginia tonight filed a petition of cloture with the chair in a final effort to break the anti-lynch bill filibuster. Under this procedure the senate in two days shall automatically vote on whether or not to proceed with the debate on the bill.

Reed Wins WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Stanley F. Reed, former solicitor general, gained senate confirmation of his nomination to the supreme court today. He will succeed Justice George Sutherland, retired. He is expected to assume his duties Monday.

Drive Would Cut Off Corner Of Villard Hall

Survey work preparatory to constructing a curved road through the campus around the northwest corner of Villard hall was begun yesterday. The curve will be a super, six-lane road, starting at a water pipe just north of Villard and bending around in an arc to a large fir tree near commerce hall.

This is not a WPA project, but an annual practice survey which members of Mr. Adams' construction class are building... on paper only.

The Whiskerino dance, scheduled for this Saturday night in Gerlinger hall, is to be a dress affair... according to word received from Lloyd Hoffman, co-chairman of the dance with John Dick, yesterday afternoon.

Committee members, meeting at four yesterday in the Side, decided to make the dance this year strictly informal. Coeds can come in suit, skirts and sweaters, slacks... and fellows the same.

Deans to Study Occupation Survey At Portland Meet

Deans Karl W. Onthank, personnel, Victor P. Morris, business administration, and James Ralph Jewell, education, left yesterday for Portland for a conference with Oregon State and Reed college representatives to outline the possibility of forming a survey of occupations open to college graduates.

These representatives will confer with Dr. Edwin A. Lee of the national occupation conference, who is making a similar survey with Portland high school officials.

Last December these same schools with the Washington State college and University of Washington sent representatives to a similar conference in Portland for the same purpose.
