Oregon's Football Headman, Oliver, Arrives on Campus

Ex-Arizona Mentor Faced With Coaching Staff Problem; Will Await Athletic Board Meet to Name Assistants

By VINCENT GATES
Gerald A. (Tex) Oliver, Oregon's new football coach, arrived on the campus Sunday night from Tucson, Arizona. The transplanted Texan, who gave up the reins of Arizona football to accept a similar post at Oregon last month, was scheduled to talk to several clubs and alumni groups almost immediately upon his arrival in Eugene. Anse Cornell, graduate manager, was busy arranging interviews and conferences for Oliver with almost every organization in town and on the campus, many of which will have to be declined, he said.

Chem Student Uses Science On 'Chiseler'

From the chemistry department comes an idea for getting even with the roommate who borrows things. Silver nitrate when applied to the skin causes it to turn black. One eve before commencement an underclassman poured a healthy dose of silver nitrate into his shaving mug which his roommate, a senior, invariably borrowed.

On the morning of commencement the senior awoke to find that the dark circles under his eyes blended alarmingly into a deeper black on his cheeks and chin. Convinced that he was suffering from some terrible malady, he immediately rushed to the infirmary, where, after a careful examination, the attending physician announced that he had been on the receiving end of a practical joke.

No Without Us, Say 'Bama Gals To Men Folks

Inate coeds at the University of Alabama are hurling all sorts of charges at the men on the campus. They think they have a good reason since they recently learned that the university "cooking" shop has one of its biggest crowds after 10:45 p.m., when the men must return their "dates" to dormitories and sorority houses. The boys insist they aren't trying to save money on the girls by waiting until they have one mouth to feed. "We like a late evening snack," they said by way of defense. "And besides, there are some dishes a gentleman can't eat gracefully in the presence of a lady."

A sorority is a group of girls, living in one house, with a single purpose—to get more girls, to live in one house, with a single purpose. —Rocky Mountain Collegian.

Oakie Wire Fun . . .

Northwestern university's sophomores recently invited Jack Oakie, one of cinema's funny men, to their annual jib. With all due preparation, etc., Mr. Oakie couldn't accept the subpoena but sent this wire: "Best wishes for your big Joe College dance Saturday. Eat, drink and be merry I always say for tomorrow there might be a law against it."

"Smiling" Tex Oliver, new University of Oregon football coach from Arizona, will be officially adopted by University students at the last assembly of winter term on Thursday morning when he will be introduced by Anse Cornell, Oregon athletic manager.

Oliver, who arrived in Eugene on Sunday, will share the limelight at the associated student meeting with basketball coach Howard Hobson and his Webfoot team. The Ducks, who have been forging their way to the top of the northwest conference competition, will be introduced individually to the student body at this time. ASUO president Barney Hall will direct proceedings at the meeting, which

Recently Resigned President Will Play Same Active Part As in Past Years

Dr. C. Valentine Boyer, recently resigned president of the University, returns to his former office in Villard hall this morning to resume his duties as head of the English department and dean of the college of arts and letters.

During most of his administration, Dr. Boyer maintained his office at Villard hall, and it was only at the beginning of this fall term that he moved into the newly decorated president's office in Johnson hall.

Among his other duties, Dr. Boyer plans to teach English courses, beginning next fall, but for the present he will conclude the unfinished business of his recent office, and will offer his assistance to Dr. Donald M. Erb, new president of the University, in assuming the responsibilities of the presidency.

Dr. Boyer took office as president of the University in February, 1934, being formally inaugurated in February, 1936. He resigned last summer, giving ill health as a reason for his action.

Spring Term Music Schedule Planned

Colorful and interesting music events to begin spring term at the University music school have been scheduled by George Hopkins, professor of music, he announced yesterday.

David Smith, 12-year-old master of the piano who last year evoked such hearty approval from an audience in the music auditorium by his interpretation of the Mendelssohn concerto, will again appear on the campus April 5. The little boy is the only youth to appear with the Portland symphony orchestra under Willem Van Hoogstraten.

Shortly after David's appearance, Marion Hagg, another of Mr. Hopkins' out-of-town piano students, and Barbara Ward, University vocalist, will appear together in a recital in Klamath Falls. Later they will appear on the campus.

Robert Garretson, brilliant University piano artist, will appear in recital the last part of April. Early in May, Mr. Hopkins is planning a concerto program of varied and colorful selections, which will include Gershwin, Ravel, Chopin, and McDowell.

Executive Arrives Here on Monday to Begin New Job as UO Head Man

It's President Donald M. Erb now. Dr. Erb, seventh to succeed to the office, will hang up the "in" sign on the door of the executive offices in Johnson hall this morning, where he will be ready for action at the president's desk.

Dr. Erb was in Eugene yesterday, visiting the campus, being interviewed by reporters, and posing for pictures. No program was announced for his first day, Monday being in the nature of a breathing spell before the youthful executive takes up the strenuous duties of his office.

He will perform his first official act as president Wednesday afternoon, when he will preside over the regular monthly meeting of the University faculty.

The new president is residing temporarily at the Osburn hotel. His family will not arrive here until June, in order that his children may finish their school year in Palo Alto. After the arrival of the family he will occupy the president's residence on the campus, now the home of Chancellor Frederick M. Hunter. Dr. Hunter will move to the recently-donated chancellor's residence on Fairmount Heights.

UO Students Invited To McCall's Forum

Three Oregon students have been invited to participate in a McCall's magazine forum in Portland March 26. The subject of the forum which will be conducted by Jay Allen, noted foreign correspondent and graduate of the University, will be "Peace."

Students asked to participate are: Jack Enders, student head of the ROTC; Bob Recken, ex-'39, and Bill Scott, junior in journalism. Miss Toni Taylor, an editor of McCall's, was on the campus Sunday interviewing the students.

The magazine is conducting the forum of 30 young people for the purpose of securing information on what young people are thinking, said Miss Taylor. The group is organized in an effort to get a true cross section of what the younger generation think and feel rather than an academic interpretation of the situation, said the editor.

In his address tonight Professor Moore will outline methods which

Oregon Grid Teams Under Leadership Of Fourteenth Coach, Records Reveal

By PAT ERICKSON
Smiling Tex Oliver takes his place as Oregon's fourteenth coach on record. Altogether there have been seventeen vacancies in the coaching job since 1900 but several men have had two non-consecutive jobs, library records reveal.

The University policy of distribution of NYA jobs is to give freshmen and new students the benefits of the national fund until permanent, independent work can be secured, and to extend the aid to other new students who have not had opportunity to get employment by private means.

Faculty members who compose the committee are, beside Dean Onthank, Clifford L. Constance, assistant registrar; Virgil D. Earl dean of men; J. O. Lindstrom, business manager of the University; Miss Janet Smith, employment secretary; A. E. Stillman, of the school of business administration, and Miss Harriet Thomson of the school of physical education.

Young First Coach

In 1893, a football team was organized with Cal Young as coach. The first real game was played in 1894 against Albany college. The score came out Oregon 44, Albany 2.

From 1896 on, Oregon had a team every year and played games with other colleges of the conference which included Newburg, Willamette, Albany college, Linfield, Portland academy, and others no longer in existence.

Lawrence Kaarsberg, who had attained fame as a fullback at Berkeley, was brought to Oregon as coach in 1900. The next year he was replaced by Richard Shore Smith, who had been a stellar player from both Oregon and Columbia, and an All-American fullback. "Dick" Smith stayed from 1901 to 1904.

"Bezdek Best" Bruce C. Shorts followed him, and stayed but one year, 1905.

In 1906, Hugo Frank Bezdek, an All-Western fullback from the University of Chicago, came out to Oregon. He stayed only a year, but came back again later. In an old interview Cal Young remarked that Bezdek was one of the best coaches Oregon had ever had.

1907 saw the installation of Gordon B. Frost as head coach. Robert W. Forbes succeeded him in 1908 and stayed two years. William J. Warner was Oregon's next coach, and he stayed 1910 and 1911. Louis Pinkham coached in 1912.

Huga Bezdek returned in 1913 to stay till 1917. Upon leaving Oregon, he became director of playgrounds in Chicago.

The Rose Bowl Charles A. Huntington, who was better known as "Shy," took over the coaching post in 1918. He remained until 1923, when he resigned to go into business in Eugene; he is now associated with the Manerud-Huntington Fuel company here. He coached the second Oregon team ever to play in the Tournament of Roses. Under him Oregon met Harvard, and lost by only one point.

Huntington was succeeded by Joe Maddock in 1924, who in turn was succeeded by Dick Smith in 1925. In 1926, John J. McEwan, the West Point grid mentor, was selected as the head coach under a five year contract. He had been head coach of the Army from 1923 to 1925.

McEwan remained through 1929, when he was replaced by Dr. Clarence W. Spears in 1930. Spears' greatest triumph was defeating NYU in 1930 by a 14 to 6 score at New York City. In 1931, he broke his contract to go to Wisconsin.

Football seasons from 1932 to 1937 have seen Prink Callison as head grid mentor.

Conference Hoop Playoff Dates Set; UO Still on Fence

Playoff dates of the Pacific Coast conference were tentatively agreed upon yesterday, following receipt of a telegram to Anse Cornell, graduate manager, from Al Masters, Stanford graduate manager.

The dates are contingent upon Oregon and Stanford winning the northern and southern divisions, respectively—a probability. If Oregon wins the northern title the playoff with Stanford—precluding an upset by California this Saturday—will be held in Palo Alto Saturday, March 12, Monday, March 14, and, if necessary, Tuesday, March 15.

Should the northern division end in a tie the playoff will be held on those same dates, probably in Eugene, with the playoff for the coast championship slated for March 25, 28, and 29 in Palo Alto. If the southern division ends in a tie between California and Stanford their playoff will be held March 12, 13, and 14.

Oregon leads the conference again!

Washington State's Cougars have tumbled!

Bill Kramer's promise has been more than good! And all because University of Idaho's gallant Vandals rose from the depths of defeat last night to smite the Washington State college Cougars from the top of the northern division hoop standings, winning by a score of 41-34 at Moscow.

When Idaho left Eugene last week after losing two to the championship-bound Oregonians and dropping virtually out of contention in the race for the flag, Kramer, speaking for the whole Idaho squad, told the Webfoots that they would "fix" Washington State for the Ducks.

Idaho Turns Tables

The silver-and-gray-clad Idahoans lost the first game of their Washington State series Saturday night 43-34, but last night turned the tables on the Cougars and lived up to their promise.

Coach Forrest Twogood's boys trailed by a 17-15 count at half-time, and it looked like the Cougars would pocket another game and go swinging merrily along the title trail. But they failed to take into account a certain Mr. Bill Kramer.

Three Seniors Star

Kramer must have thought of his promise to Oregon. He rallied two seniors—Roland Winters and Captain Don Johnson—around him, and these three boys, playing their last game in Idaho colors, gave Moscow something to remember them for.

They poured basket after basket through the iron ring to catch Jack Friel's Cougars, pass them and then pull away at the finish.

Idaho won despite the loss of Lyle Smith, steady guard, who was ejected from the game with personal fouls six minutes after the half.

Washington State lost Captain Corky Carlson, Al Hooper and Ed Kerpa also via the four-personal route.

Short Illness Takes Wife of Dean Rebec

Funeral Services Will Be Tomorrow at 2; Dr. Boyer to Read

Mary Lowell Rebec, wife of Dean George Rebec of the graduate division of the University of Oregon, died last night at the Eugene hospital. Mrs. Rebec had been ill for the past ten days.

The funeral will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the Veatch chapel. Dr. C. Valentine Boyer, former president of the University, will read the service.

Mrs. Rebec was born in Michigan 64 years ago. She was a student of the University of Michigan, earning her A.B. and M.A. degrees from that university.

Before her marriage to Dean Rebec she was active in educational circles, teaching at the Minnesota State teachers college, Vassar, and the Western Michigan State normal school. At the last named institution she served as head of the English department.

In 1910 she married George Rebec in Boston, moving immediately to Oregon and settling at Medford. The Rebecs stayed at Medford until 1918 when they moved to Portland where Dr. Rebec was engaged in founding the extension division of the University. Since 1923 they have lived in Eugene.

Mrs. Rebec is survived by her daughter, Elizabeth Rebec Van Nice, a graduate of the University, who is at present working in Paris with her husband, Robert Van Nice, also an Oregon alumnus. News of Mrs. Rebec's death was cabled to Paris last night.
