

Pacific Coast Colleges Adopt Oregon's Original Symposium Debate Plan

By EUGENE SNYDER

The adoption of the symposium type of debate, originated by the Oregon speech department, was voted for coast colleges at the annual Pacific collegiate forensic conference, held last week at the University of Nevada at Reno.

The vote, by representatives of the eleven universities attending, was made after U. of O. and U. of W., which had previously adopted the Oregon system, put on a demonstration debate in symposium style. "The Labor Problem" was the topic.

Symposium replaces the old "high school" fiery type of pro and con debate formerly in the conference's favor. Under the new plan, the topic is divided into several speeches, with all the facts presented and the audience left to draw its own "intelligent" conclusion.

Prof. W. A. Dahlberg, one of those representing Oregon, was elected vice-president of the conference. Professor Achley of Whitman was chosen president and Professor Scott of Pomona, secretary.

Students entering the conference's contests from Oregon were Marshall Nelson, Kessler Cannon, Zane Kemler, and Joe Frizzell, accompanied by Professor and Mrs. Dahlberg.

The two contest divisions, extempore and after-dinner speaking, were both won by Whitman college. Next year's meeting will be at Pomona, so that entrants may include the San Francisco fair in their trip, Dahlberg said.

Colleges represented at the meet were Whitman, Idaho, Willamette, U. of W., O.S.C., U. of O., Stanford, U.C.L.A., U.S.C., Pomona, and University of Nevada.

W. L. Gosslin Speaks

W. L. Gosslin, private secretary to Governor Martin and a member of the parole board, declared that Oregon should have a parole board of three members, appointed by the governor, with a full-time, adequately-paid chairman, and this board should be given broad and sweeping powers in administration of parole, probation and other matters pertaining to the penal situation in the state.

Judge James T. Brand spoke on services a court judge would like to expect from a parole board.

A panel discussion was led by Judge J. O. Bailey, including the speakers of the afternoon and morning.

Ideas advanced at the conference are expected to prove valuable and helpful in formulating legislation for the prison situation in Oregon, but the state should proceed cautiously and make changes only after obtaining facts, Governor Martin warned in a talk at the annual commonwealth conference dinner Tuesday evening at 6:45 in the men's dormitory. ## Browsing Room Rugs Designed By UO Artists

The design of the browsing room rugs was the reply to a question as to what Miss Brownell Frasier and Miss Maude I. Kerns of the art school faculty and two students were so busily engaged in painting.

This design, the size of the completed rugs, will be sent to the Chinese weavers. Carried out in the design is the rose and green colors of the browsing room furniture. Also there is a rich brown with a hint of red.

But before this design came many hours were spent in finding an appropriate pattern. Then for days Miss Frasier patiently dyed rug samples in order to get the right shade.

Next came a small drawn-to-scale design. Finally the full-size and detailed design had to be made. Much time is spent in mixing the paints for this design because the weavers will copy them exactly when making the rugs.
