

3 Gubernatural Nominees Speak At Demo Meeting

Oleen, Hess, Martin Air Views on Points Of Platforms

The first bit of political wind-braggery of the season came to the campus last night, when three candidates for the democratic nomination for governor spoke at a meeting sponsored by the Lane County Young Democrats club at the Igloo.

The speakers, O. Henry Oleen, state representative from St. Helens; Henry L. Hess, state senator from La Grande; and Governor Charles H. Martin, adhered surprisingly closely to the 15-minute speaking limit announced, though the meeting was delayed by late arrivals.

All three candidates declared themselves in favor of old age pensions. Oleen and Hess both emphasized their approval of public power policy, while Martin discussed pensions and unemployment assistance at length.

Martin for Roosevelt
Martin attacked those he said accused him of no longer being a friend of Roosevelt or of changing his policies. He said, "I'm a democrat, a life-long democrat. Put that in your pipe and smoke it." He announced himself as pro-Roosevelt, "my good friend."

Paul Plank, president of the democratic organization sponsoring the meeting, introduced the candidates. He cautioned the young democrats not to back any one candidate before the primaries, but promised a united front after the party has selected their men. The Odd Fellows band provided music.

Coeds Give Requirements For Campus Gentlemen

By BETTY HAMILTON
"You, too, can be popular boys," is the attitude of representative Oregon coeds. After countless personal interviews a few of the short cuts on this subject are herewith presented for what worth they may have.

Every girl unanimously agreed that, to be popular, a lad must be a man's man, and possess all the qualities of a gentleman. They also agreed that a man must have a sense of humor and definitely should not tell dirty jokes. "It is a reflection on my character to have a boy tell me a joke of ill repute," emphatically asserted one female.

'Dirty Politics' Seen As Tug Teams Limited

First indications of "dirty political dealings" for spring term were seen last night when it was learned that Sophomore Class Prexy Dick Litfin has persuaded Frosh Prexy Tiger Payne to limit the size of the tug-of-war teams to 75 men to make that Junior weekend event more even for the second-year men.

'Peer Gynt' Will Be Advertised on KORE

Speech Instructor to Initiate Series of Broadcasts

Taking to the air to publicize "Peer Gynt," superlative-filled McArthur court production, University students and the speech department will broadcast a program each day for five days, starting Thursday, over KORE.

First of the broadcasts will come at 8:45 p.m. Thursday, with Paul Kiepe, instructor in speech and dramatics, discussing the philosophy of Peer Gynt and Henrik Ibsen, Norwegian author of the play. Scenes from the first act of the drama will be presented before the microphone Friday morning at 11:45, with Walden Boyle and Janet Felt, starred as Peer Gynt and Asa in the production, giving a sample from the play.

Saturday's program, which will come at 4:15 p.m., will be a description of the staging, a unique system of construction which utilizes the whole of the east balcony of the Igloo. Each of the first three programs will be 15 minutes each. A half-hour broadcast is scheduled for Sunday, with time and details to be announced later. Script is being worked on now for the program.

ALUMS GET JOBS

The University employment service announced yesterday that the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company have hired Douglas Stark and Herbert Ehrsam, class of '37, to work in their Portland office.

Politicos Flood University With Buttons, Signs

Buttons and placards began to flood the campus yesterday as students of the University of Oregon joined in the fanfare of pre-primary campaigning with the formation of a local chapter of the "Re-elect Governor Martin Club."

Frosh Glee Tickets On Sale at Igloo

First Year Men to Be Pledged to Group; 12:30 Permission

Plans for the Frosh Glee, first-year frolic, featuring Dick Jurgens this year on April 29 are rapidly being completed, Dick Williams, general chairman, announced last night.

Tickets can now be purchased at the office in McArthur court and will remain on sale until Thursday, April 28. The admission is $1.25 if the ticket is purchased before April 28 and $1.50 at the door.

Freshman class card holders will be given a 50 cent reduction, but must take their card to the ticket office in order to get the reduction. All freshmen desiring to go to the dance can buy their cards early and get the 50-cent reduction in the coming class elections, Williams said.

Skull and Dagger, men's freshman honorary, will pick their new pledges at the dance. "Snow White," queen of the freshman class girls will also be chosen. All students have been granted 12:30 permission for the dance and will therefore be able to dance until 12:15 or 12:30, Williams said.

Oregon Will Have Representatives at Corvallis Confab

The program of the eighth annual state speech conference to be held in Corvallis Friday and Saturday was released yesterday by Bernice Conoly, Lane county director of the Oregon speech association.

The University of Oregon will have three representatives participating in the conference: Elizabeth Montgomery, assistant professor of education, will preside at a speech clinic demonstration; Mrs. Ottilie Seybolt, director of drama, will preside at an interpretive exhibition of student readings; and Betty Jane Quigley, fall term winner of the women's division Jewett speech contest, will give a dramatic reading entitled, "Dear Brutus."

Landscape Crews Return to Projects

Library Drive, Side Walk Will Get First Work

Back on the job yesterday after a one-day layoff were two WPA landscaping crews, both working on projects near the library. One crew was completing work around the curbing of the horse-shoe at the Kincaid end, while the other landscaped the bank at the side of the walk on the opposite end of the building.

The bank, which was not finished when the walk was built last year, is being graded and smoothed, following which it will be planted with flat-growing shrubs. The shrub to be used at first is cotoneaster in two or three varieties, with other types of shrubbery to be introduced later.

A new injection of funds for campus landscaping is expected on or about April 23, according to local WPA heads, although no official confirmation has reached here as yet. News of the allotment was released through Portland WPA headquarters some time ago, but no notice was sent to local offices.

The new allotment will continue the present landscaping project, with the campus due to undergo several new face-lifting operations in the course of the work.

Among the new branches of the landscaping will be a new driveway, of modern design and construction, for Hendricks hall to replace the present approach.

Seven Girls Act as University Boosters

Seven Oregon boosters started on a pilgrimage to Portland this morning. A modern crusade, it has a two-fold purpose, to influence the Oregon Mother's club to boost Oregon, and to stop any untrue rumors that may be circulating.

A meeting of the Mother's club is to be held at two this afternoon, at which each girl will speak, explaining campus rules and activities. Those going are Ruth Tawney, representing the dormitories; Ruth Ketchum, the YWCA; Katharine Phelps, the independents; Brandon Young, heads of houses, and Patsy Taylor, president of Pan-Hellenic. Dean Schwering and Miss Janet Smith will accompany them.

Grace Phelan's Typing Makes Students Gasp

Grace Phelan, world's amateur champion typist from Duquesne college, made students gasp yesterday by writing a memorized sentence at the rate of 260 words per minute.

The demonstration was given yesterday in room 105 of the business administration school before about a hundred students, by courtesy of the Underwood typewriter company.

Miss Phelan answered questions of students and talked to them about the way one should type, while gradually raising her speed from 40 words per minute to 140 words.

Eugeneans Behind UO Pennant Holders

Mayor Large Makes Friday, 22, Official 'Baseball Day'

Oregon's baseball team, defending northern division pennant holders will meet Oregon State here on Howe field April 22 for the opening game of the 1938 season on a day Mayor Elisha Large has proclaimed as official "Baseball Day."

Dedication of Howe field's new gates will be an added attraction to the gala opening day celebration that is being planned.

In his proclamation the mayor stated: "I hereby set aside Friday, April 22 as "Baseball Day" for the city of Eugene, Oregon.

"Whereas baseball is America's national pastime and is considered one of the finest sports for the youth of the nation to follow and one of the greatest games for the 'oldsters' to watch, and,

"Whereas the University of Oregon always produces a strong and colorful team and the opponents for the day will be the Webfoots' traditional rivals, Oregon State college,

"I, Elisha Large, mayor of the City of Eugene, officially proclaim Friday, April 22 as Baseball Day."

Signed, ELISHA LARGE, Mayor of Eugene, Ore.

Male Paradise Is Invaded by Maid

It would have been a "men only" day yesterday at the infirmary if it hadn't been for Barbara Ward. Of nine patients confirmed at the infirmary yesterday, eight, including ASUO Prexy Barney Hall, were males in various stages of major and minor illnesses.

"Guests" registered at the "Hotel de Miller" were Paul Anderson, Lloyd Hoffman, Bob Gridley, Bill Thompson, George Drach, Alan Sherrill, Ruben Libke, Barney Hall and Barbara Ward.
