

Panel Group To Continue Peace Talks

Discussion Pertinent To Peace Relations Fill Meetings

Oregon's peace education program started yesterday afternoon, when two groups met in Gerlinger hall to discuss peace and war propaganda and American defense under Dean Eric W. Allen, S. Stephenson Smith, Dr. Warren D. Smith, and Lieutenant-Commander Stewart F. Bryant.

The panel discussions will continue tomorrow in Gerlinger hall, when Lieutenant-Commander Bryant will again be present to tell of his proposals for peaceful administration of the Far Eastern situation.

Bryant will address the entire student body in Gerlinger auditorium on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. A special forum will be held in the alumni room at 11.

Nearly thirty students attended the first conferences on methods of peace insurance, when students and faculty discussed world conditions pertinent to keeping peaceful relations among nations.

Bryant gave particular attention in his talk to the conditions in the United States Pacific possessions, and stressed the importance of the education of the American people on international relations.

Marion DeKoning, Peggy Robbins, Mrs. John Stark Evans, Dr. Victor P. Morris, and Francis Beck are in charge of the effort at constructive peace action.

Mental Inertia Is Reason for Use of Slang

By ALYCE ROGERS

"We use slang from mental inertia," according to Professor Frank Davidson of the Indiana University English department. "And it is because we are reluctant about taking enough time in our conversation to use conventional words and expressions. There is a certain vitality in slang that is manifested with power," according to the professor. He explained that most slang is not universal and its usage evolves from laziness in particular situations where we are unable to find proper expression.

Anticipation . . .

As part of Northwestern university's peace demonstration recently, members of the editorial board of the student newspaper planted a maple tree in their own commemoration. The tree is to remain on the campus until the first member of the board is killed in some future war.

Unborn Piggies Aid Scientists In Lab Classes

This little piggy may have gone to market, but these little piggies went to class, and as a result approximately 150 (count 'em) unborn piglets have been dissected during the past few weeks by the combined zoology classes.

These foetal pigs were shipped to Oregon from Kansas City, where they were embalmed, according to J. E. Herbertson, instructor in zoology, and they are being experimented with by the zoology classes because the anatomy of the pig is very similar to that of the human being.

Dr. G. Rebec Will Be Honored at Banquet

All Friends Invited to Portland to Honor Philosophy Prof

Dr. George Rebec, head of the philosophy department for more than a quarter of a century, and dean of the graduate division, will have tribute paid him by his friends, co-workers, alumni, and students of the University at a dinner Friday night at the University club in Portland.

Dean Rebec announced his retirement from academic life earlier this year, to take effect at the end of spring term, although he may possibly teach during one of the summer sessions.

"All friends of Dr. Rebec are invited to attend the dinner," Alfred Powers, dean of the general extension division in Portland, announced Monday. Dr. Powers is making arrangements for in the event, and Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel, is in charge of preparations on the campus.

Dr. Rebec received his bachelor of arts degree in 1891 and his doctor of philosophy degree in 1896 from the University of Michigan, on which faculty he later served before coming to Oregon. He is a Prince Lucien Campbell professor of philosophy.

Eugeneans who wish to attend the dinner may obtain reservations through Karl W. Onthank.

HUNT CLUB LETS

A meeting of the Hunt club will be held today at 9 o'clock p.m. at the Fairgrounds, preceded by the weekly ride at 8 o'clock.

William McLean, manager of the Eugene Hunt club, will give a talk on the coming horse show.

Seniors Set Aside $100 for Class Gift At Business Meet

$50 to Buy Oreganas For High Schools; $50 for Books

Setting aside a total of approximately a hundred dollars as a class gift to the University, turning thumbs down on an endowment insurance plan for the class, and discussing the class picnic and commencement plans were the items of business at last night's senior class meeting, held in 105 Commerce.

Fifty dollars to buy Oreganas to be placed in small high schools of the state for University promotional purposes was moved by the class following consideration of a lengthy list of suggestion for the disposal of surplus class funds.

The remainder of the approximately one hundred dollar fund was moved for library books.

Veto Endowment Plan

After discussing an endowment plan offered the class by way of a gift to the University the class rejected the idea for this year but went on record as favoring such a scheme.

Five speakers will appear on this year's commencement program, Committee Chairman Ed Robbins told the class. The five include President Donald M. Erb, Governor Charles H. Martin, Chancellor F. M. Hunter, Vice-president Burt Brown Barker, and Willard Marks, chairman of the state board of higher education.

Erb to Be Installed

The speech of Dr. Erb will be both a commencement and installation address in one, the commencement exercises also including the formal installation of Dr. Erb as

Commander Bowley Arrives to Inspect UO ROTC Units

First of three May inspection tours of ROTC headquarters and units here on the campus was made yesterday by Major General A. J. Bowley, commander of the 9th corps area.

Major General Bowley arrived on the campus in the afternoon and after a brief inspection of the ROTC quarters, called on President Erb and Chancellor Hunter.

In the evening he was guest at a dinner given by Oregon's Colonel E. V. Murphy. President Erb, Chancellor Hunter, Carlton Spencer were among the guests present at Colonel Murphy's home.

Green Goose Geniuses Going on Gossip 'Gem'

A special emergency meeting has been called for members of the Green Goose staff tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Emerald sports room to make plans for the engraving of campus and picnic ground snapshots which will appear in the publication.

Final plans for the designing and selling of Green Goose advertising copy will be drawn up. With the publication date and the copy deadline approaching rapidly, all pledges are urged to come to the meeting.

Reprisals involving the chill waters of the millrace were threatened by meeting callers for pledges failing to attend.

Hobson Withdraws Bid for Portland Job; Likely to Stay Here

Coach Not to Try for Physical Education Director Post Because 'Would Rather Stay At Oregon;' Other Offers Made

By LYLE NELSON

Howard Hobson will still be Oregon's basketball and baseball coach.

His withdrawal yesterday from the race for director of physical education of the Portland schools, leaves Oregon fairly certain of having the popular mentor's services for at least another year.

Hobson, who in his three years at Oregon has had one northwest championship basketball team and two championship baseball nines, was one of the five candidates to be considered by the Portland school board meeting tonight. The terms of the contract of the Portland position were reported to be more attractive than those the Oregon head man is now working under. The salary of the Portland position was also reported to be almost $500 more than that which the Oregon coach is now getting.

He'll Stick Around

Likes Oregon Best

When stating his reasons for withdrawing from the race, Coach Hobson said that after he had thought it over he decided he would rather stay at Oregon. With a basketball team coming up next year that is highly favored to win the coast championship and with a trip to New York in the offing, the reason for his decision can easily be seen.

Even though the Oregon mentor is definitely out of the running for the Portland position, his staying at Oregon is by no means secure. Several other colleges have bids in for his services. Among these is Stanford, where Hobson and his team made a great hit in the coast conference play-off this year.

Ducks to Play in East

With the trip back east scheduled for next fall, the Oregon team will meet some of the best squads in the country. The result of this meeting is likely to be other coaching offers, for the Hobson type of basketball is very popular with the fans.

During his three years coaching basketball at the University, Coach Hobson has had much to do with building a winning ball team out of a second class squad, increasing the gate receipts at basketball.

Piano Students Will Give Program Soon

Seven star pianists, students of George Hopkins, University professor of piano, were featured in a concert program, presented in the University music auditorium last night.

The students making up the program were Lural Burggrad, Jaqueline Wong, Lilly Belle Angell, Marian Hagg, Robert Garetson, Leone La Duke, and Eleanor Hayes.

The program began with the first movement of Rubenstein's "Concerto in D-Minor." Concertos by Arensky, MacDowell, and Chopin followed.

"Bolero" by Ravel, and Grafe's "On the Trail" were included on the program. The concerto concert was concluded with the popular Gershwin's "I Got Rhythm."

'Syphillis' to Be Topic of Speech For Asklepiads

Dr. George Snyder, representing the state board of health, will lecture on "Syphillis" to members of Asklepiad and interested persons in Villard hall tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

The lecture will be followed by a film concerning the disease. The public is invited to attend the program, which is being sponsored by the pre-medics honorary.
