

Eighteen Dances Listed by Houses Fill Social Weekend

By RITA WRIGHT

Spring formals, informals, and dinner dances completely fill the weekend as seventeen living organizations have scheduled their dances on a crowded social calendar and they will bring to the campus such well known orchestras as Bart Woodyard, Les Hite, and Dan Flood.

Phi Delta Theta Spring Formal

Holding their annual spring formal in the Masonic temple Friday night will be Phi Delta Theta to the swinging strains of Bart Woodyard's music.

Using a spring time motif, flowers and the fraternity colors will be the only decoration. The programs will be in blue and white with a silver crest.

Sigma Chi's Plan Semi-Formal

Sigma Chi's spring semi-formal will also use a spring time motif. By placing a high fence around the yard, it will be completely shut off from the street. A fountain will be placed there and by the use of palms and spotlights, a garden setting will be created. The programs are blue leather fashioned after the fraternity crest with a Sigma Chi pin in gold in the middle.

Maury Binford's campus orchestra will play.

Chi Psis to Dance On Pleasure Yacht

Friday will be the occasion of Chi Psi's spring formal as they turn their chapter house into a pleasure yacht for the evening.

The inside of the house is being fixed up in nautical fashion by the use of life preservers, ropes, and sketches on the wall. One room is being fixed up as a modernistic cocktail lounge where punch will be served.

In front of the porch on the mill race will be a barge connected to the house by the use of a gang plank. This is being fixed up like the prow of an old-time schooner with a realistic steering wheel.

Art Holman's orchestra will play. The programs will be passports.

Tri Deltas to Have Dinner Dance

Delta Delta Delta will hold a dinner dance at the Eugene hotel Friday night. Jimmy Johnston's orchestra from Oregon State will play. Spring flowers will be the only decorations.

Dorm to Have Spring Formal

The interdormitory spring formal will transform John Straub Memorial hall into the Royal Hawaiian court. The entrance will be a volcano.

Kailis, tall decorative posts loaded with flowers, will be placed around the hall. The orchestra will be placed on a throne decorated in the Hawaiian colors, red and yellow. Hawaiian cutout figures will be placed around the room.

The patio will depict a scene direct from Hawaii by the use of murals and an artificial moon. Jimmy Amato's orchestra will play.

Betas Use Southern Motif

Beta Theta Pi will use a southern plantation for their motif as they prepare for their annual spring formal this Saturday night.

A miniature Mississippi steamboat will reside in the mill race.

To Be Undersea
Going undersea will be Sigma Alpha Epsilon at their formal on Saturday as they prepare their tennis court for an aquatic night.

Featuring Dan Flood's orchestra they will have it placed at one end of the tennis court with a sea shell behind it. Tropical fish will be placed around the walls. The tennis court will be closed off from the street by a canopy.

At the opposite end from the orchestra will be placed a star fish. The bluish-green of the sea will be possible by the use of a weird lighting effect.

The programs will be of purple leather with a gold crest.

Oregon Men Take Firm Stand In Their Dislikes About Women

By BETTY HAMILTON

"The affectionate girl with a veil; like kissing someone through a fence."

"When the escort reaches for a radish and finds only his girl's red fingernails."

"Twisted seams in hose."

"Sun smeared powder."

Twenty Oregon men have definite ideas about these and other things they dislike about women. Each man interviewed went into the lengthy detail about his pet peeves, covering everything from clothing to the "College Side old maids."

Bright red finger nails, bleached hair, forced smiles and attempts at being "cute" to attract masculine attention, were named as peeves by these boys. They agreed that girls who giggle, talk baby talk, or swear are on their "list."

"Nothing is worse than going out with a girl who is continually saying, "I did this and I did that, etc." was given as a pet peeve by one of the boys.

Gossips Disliked

"Did you ever listen to this sort of thing, 'She said to me and I told her that he, etc.?' asked another disgusted male. The conclusion to be drawn is that most men dislike girls who gossip and who are forever talking about themselves.

Short dresses and knee-high hose were brought up continually. Even a professor chose to remark in a discussion carried on after class, "When the girls file into the class, proceed to sit down and cross their legs, I feel like suggesting that they are 'big' girls now and to please lengthen their dresses." Most of the boys agreed that short dresses looked all right on some girls but "Would the chubby variety please lengthen their dresses?"

Moderate Smokers Preferred

The question was raised, "Why do women, when taken out to dinner, smoke one cigarette after another until our appetite is lost because of the incessant fumes?" These boys prefer women who are moderate in their smoking and who will curb the desire if their escort isn't a cigarette hound.

In regards to the local hangouts, "Why do all the unattached girls sit in the College Side from morn to night as if they are waiting for something to come along?" This subject was the biggest peeve. Every boy mentioned it. Their opinion was that every time they saw four "old maids" playing bridge and consuming one cigarette after another they wondered what the college was coming to. "I don't mind seeing girls in the Side without escorts, but when they play bridge or sit around and stare for hours at a time, it makes me wonder why they are in this
