Three Days off Before Exams At Indiana U.

By ANNA MAE HALVERSON

A pre-exam break has been given the business administration students at Indiana university in the form of a three-day "reading period" just before the semester examinations during which all classes in the business school are dismissed.

Giving students an opportunity to review courses, this system releases them from having to prepare daily assignments for the three days preceding final examinations. All late work may be made up, term papers completed and reviewing done before the eight-day examination period begins.

The University of Texas has been considering a similar system. Voted on favorably by the college of arts and sciences, the plan, including a ten-day reading period before exams, must now be submitted to the general university faculty, which is to meet May 17.

Could It Be?

Drop here a tear for Johnny, His heart was none too strong; It was a shock that killed him— Too great to bear for long. It seems his course required Some reading to be done. He sent his call slips to the stacks, They filled them, every one.

Submarine Zoology

Diving helmets and bathing suits were correct classroom apparel for the entire zoology class at the University of Miami recently. As a departure in their nature studies, the class donned diving helmets and took turns exploring the bottom of Silver springs at Ocala, Florida. They photographed various forms of marine life 29 feet below the surface.

Busy Lawyers Take Time Out For 'Ball' Game

Law school students must study very hard, much harder than the common lot of scholars, so the assertions of neophyte barristers have claimed during the past many years. And this claim is their proffered reason for maintaining a student body and an honor roll listing separate from the rest of the campus.

Law school examinations for the term are scheduled to begin next week. Why, then, inquired visitors in Oregon's second and third floors last night, is it that Reva Hearn, Frankie Nash, Talant Greenough, and Jason Lee were not studying last night at the late hour of 7:30?

Investigators and the curious, including Prof. Schumacher, found the bar's best having a fast game of "work-up" outside the Law Review offices, using a tennis ball, a copy of the Oregon Law Review, and a wastepaper basket for equipment.

The game was called when the paper-bound bat broke.

Music Students in Classical Program

Woodwinds, Strings Used in Recital Last Night

A recital of woodwind and string instruments was presented in the school of music auditorium last night by students of Mrs. Lora Ware, professor of cello, and John Stehn, assistant professor of music.

The ensemble program was opened with a sonata by Brahms for the clarinet and piano, given by Mrs. A. C. Breyman at the piano and Phoebe Breyman playing the clarinet.

Two movements of a Kotschan scherzo and a selection by Piston were given by a group of three musicians, with Mayo Sorenson at the flute, Charlotte Plummer playing the clarinet, and Wendell Gilfry the bassoon.

Miss Plummer again played with Madge Conaway and Edith Farr in a Brahms trio for the clarinet, cello and piano.

Concluding the ensemble program was a Vivaldo concerto, featuring Howard Jones at the cello with Audrey Aasen, Jack Powers, James Bailey, Mary Booth, and Norman Gaeden forming a string quintet accompaniment.

Foods Class Will Give Formal Dinner

Several faculty members will be entertained by the foods class at a formal dinner Friday night at the home of their instructor, Miss Mabel A. Woods.

Guests will be Chancellor and Mrs. Frederick M. Hunter, Dr. and Mrs. C. Valentine Boyer, President Donald M. Erb, and Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Schwering.

Two other sections have served their formal dinners, one to a group of faculty women and the other the Smorgasbord for the minor faculty.

Pennant Chances Fade As Cougars Trip Ducks 3 to 1

Hardy Yields 8 Hits Mates Make Boots; Gordon Homers

Oregon's Ducks were virtually knocked out of a chance to tie Oregon State's high flying Beavers yesterday when Buck Bailey's Cougars behind Louis McCollum's two-hit pitching defeated the Ducks, 3 to 1 at Pullman.

The defeat is the Ducks' fifth, while the Beaver forces have dropped only a single game. The loss also dropped the Ducks back into third place in the conference standings, behind Oregon State and the Cougars.

Bob Hardy, lanky southpaw, went the route on the mound for the Webfoots, but he gave up eight hits in the eighth inning, while his mates were committing three errors and only collecting two bingles, one Gordon's third home run of the two-game series.

The Cougars bunched their hits in the second and eighth innings to produce their three runs. Their first two and winning runs were

Student Group Meets to Make Plans for Its Summer Promotional Entertainment; Alumni Organizations Back Plans

A picture of an enlarged and increasingly active University of Oregon through an intensive promotion campaign this summer among high school students was held up yesterday before a hand-picked representative group of student campus actives as they met to learn of the projected campaign from ASUO Prexy Harry Weston.

Part of a far-reaching movement involving associated and independent alumni throughout the state as well as University students, the meeting was the first local step in the organization of the machinery which will operate to bring desirable high school students to the University.

Students Invited

More than fifty invited students appeared at the meeting and signed up for active participation in the campaign, which is to begin immediately and continue throughout the summer. The students attended through individual invitations from ASUO Prexy Harry Weston, ASUO Vice-President Zane Kemler, Alumni Secretary Elmer Fansett, and Barney Hall, newly-retired ASUO prexy of this year.

A program to "sell the University to others as we are ourselves sold on it" was urged by Barney Hall, who told the group that the success of the movement would depend on the spontaneity with which it is executed.

Entertainment Discussed Much

Discussion centered around rushing picnics and get-togethers such as the picnic-dance at Jantzen Beach at Portland in the late summer of last year, to which high school students were brought and introduced to University students.

Alumni Secretary Fansett told the group letters had gone out yesterday to all of the more than seven hundred University alumni on the teaching staffs of state high schools asking them to cooperate with the new promotion federation in getting the names of eligible high school students interested in the University.

Fansett said cards bearing blank

Zane Kemler Leaves Tonight For Student Prexy's Meeting

Scheduled to leave tomorrow for Seattle to attend a conference of student body presidents of eleven western states, Zane Kemler, ASUO vice-prexy, representing Oregon, decided to leave tonight in order to register at the first morning session on the University of Washington campus.

Kemler will attend the three-day session along with representatives from as widespread places as Hawaii, Arizona and British Columbia. He will take the place of Prexy Harry Weston, who will be competing for Oregon's track team in the Northwest conference meet.

The three days will be spent discussing the problems which face associated student executives. Oregon has not had a representative at the meet in several years. This year's convention will be headed by Bill Smith, prexy of the San Francisco State college student body.

New officers for the association will be elected Saturday night on a yachting trip on Puget Sound.

Entertainment planned for the visiting student leaders includes a trip through the Boeing airplane factory in Seattle, a trip to Mt. Rainier and other points around the sound, the Washington campus carnival and two dances in Seattle.

Connecticut State College coeds successfully protested the imposing of five cent fines for holes made in walls of their dormitory rooms.
