

Thirteen Runners Enter Northern Division Meet At Seattle From Oregon

Robinson Is Expected to Take Four Firsts; Barker, Storli, Hansen, Brown Are Booked For Needed Seconds and Thirds

By GEORGE PASERO

A small contingent of Oregon athletes, 13 strong and all determined to bring the northern division championship back to Eugene, swung off the northbound train at Seattle yesterday and promptly began marking time until the starter's gun sends them into action this afternoon and tomorrow against the pick of the northwest track and field athletes.

Star athletes from five northwest colleges—Oregon, Washington State, Oregon State, Idaho, and Montana—poured into Seattle yesterday to await the first call along with the host team, Washington. Qualifying heats will be run in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, low and high hurdles, and trials will be held in the high jump, broad jump, shot, discus, and javelin this afternoon. Finals in all races, jumps and throws will be run off Saturday.

Ducks Dual Champs

Three squads—Oregon's dual meet champions, Washington's powerful Huskies, and Washington State's Cougars—are pre-meet favorites.

The eyes of northwest track followers, however, will be centered on the sprints where 10 of the nation's premier sprinters roar down the "grandstand stretch."

Mack Robinson and Jim Buck of Oregon, Marion Hay of Washington, Lee Orr, Mel Pettichord, and Curt Ledford of Washington State, Bob Leslie and Aaron Funk of Oregon State, Allan Poole of Idaho, and Emigh of Montana comprise one of the classiest fields of sprinters to appear on a northwest track in many a moon.

Robinson, Oregon's colored cyclone, will be entered in four events, and according to Colonel Bill Hayward, Webfoot mentor, he may win all four.

Sophs Carry Hopes

On the performances of four sturdy sophomores, all potential first-place winners, may rest the fate of the Webfoot squad, according to Hayward.

Kirman Storli, powerful half-miler; Don Barker, strong two-miler; Rod Hansen, up and coming polt-vaulter; and Boyd Brown, tow-headed javelin tosser, are the boys whose efforts Saturday may spell victory or defeat for Oregon's thinclads.

Storli will be one of the 880 men favored to win. His hardest competition is expected to come from Ben Adams, Washington sophomore who has done 1:56 this year, but was beaten by Storli once, and Latham, an Idaho boy who also has a 1:56 mark to his credit.

Oregon's close-cropped lad may also find plenty of competition from his teammate, Jim Schriver.

Hansen Hits 13 Feet

Rod Hansen jumped 13 feet at Corvallis Saturday, and if George Varoff's leg bothers him, the Olympia sophomore may come through with a win if he can beat Washington's Ken Wright and Ed Bingham, who have cleared 12 feet this year without fully extending themselves. Otherwise, Varoff will be favored.

Thumbless Boyd Brown, the boy who throws the spears in spite of the greatest handicap, in Hayward's opinion, a javelin thrower could have, has a chance to win in spite of Idaho's Don Johnson's toss of 207 feet this year.

Hayward terms the two-mile a "dog fight" but gives his runners, Barker and Crawford Lyle, a slim chance against Clyde Wooten and Ed Little, the Washington State duo, and Wayne Getchell of Montana.

Women's Co-op Tips Kappa 9-8 In Coed Softball

Margaret Macdonald Pitches Girls' Co-op To Softball Title

By EVA ERLANDSON

The Women's Co-op added another cup to its collection when they tipped Kappa Kappa Gamma 9-8 in the championship game in coed softball Thursday afternoon.

The game was hard fought all the way through, with quite a lot of it a pitchers' battle. Dorothy Bates pitched a beautiful game for the Kappas, striking out several and walking only one in the entire game.

The score was 2-2 at the end of the first inning and the game was neck and neck from then on, with the score 8-6 in favor of the Kappas at the beginning of the last half of the last inning.

Most of the scoring on both teams was made on overthrows to home. The strong point of the Kappas was crashing home. The Co-op won with their pitcher.

In the last half of the last inning a double by Mildred Snyder, Co-op, in a batting spurt brought in two runs to tie the score, with the winning run coming in on an error. The only home run in the game was hit by Billie Richardson, Co-op.

DUs, Gamma Hall Start Intramural Softball Play-offs

The DUs and the Gamma hall baseballers lead the way in the intramural ball finals playing their first game at 4 o'clock today. The Comets and Phi Sigs play again today, and the winner of that game plays the ATOs Saturday to determine the winner of division five, which is now in a three-way tie.

Monday the Theta Chis and the Sig Eps will play their end of the quarter finals, while the winner of the DU-Gamma hall game plays the winner of division five.

The intramural sports program will be all over for the year 1937-38 when the winners play on Tuesday for the baseball championship of the year.

Varsity Racquetters Will Oppose Huskies

By CHUCK VAN SCOYOC
Oregon's varsity tennis team will make its final bid for conference dual met honors this Saturday when they meet the league-leading Washington Huskies in a seven match battle in Seattle. The Huskies are undefeated in conference play while the Ducks hold a firm second position with one loss to Oregon State.

On their way north for the big match, Washke's netmen will stop off at Linfield college this afternoon to play a return match with the Linfield Wildcats. The varsity swamped the McMinnville team 6 to 1 earlier in the season on the University courts.

Chances for upsetting the mighty Huskies on their own courts are very slim, according to mentor Paul Washke. The Oregon State club which split its annual series with the Webfoots was trampled 7 to 0 by the Washington racquetters two weeks ago to drop them out of the league race. Washington also holds a 4 to 2 win over the strong Linfield net squad which is vastly improved since its early season showing.

By Page, Captain

The Oregon varsity, paced by Captain By Page, is one of the strongest aggregations ever to play under the tutelage of Jack Torney, veteran Washington coach. Larry Crane, Duck singles ace, will oppose Page in the feature match of the afternoon in Seattle. Les Werschkul, who staved off all challengers to his team position this week, will meet George Ravenscroft in the No. 2 singles battle.

Ellsworth "Vines" Ellis, husky No. 3 singles man for the Webfoots, will meet veteran Bill Crapo of the Washington team, Bill Zimmerman will play Curtis Coons in the No. 4 position clash, and Karl Mann will probably meet Dewey Ostrom in the final singles match.

Oregon's veteran doubles team made up of Seniors Larry Crane and Bill Zimmerman, will oppose the powerful Page-Ravenscroft combination in the No. 1 doubles encounter, and Ellis and Werschkul will clash with Crapo and Coons in the final doubles contest.

No Shakeup

A shakeup in the Webfoot squad which seemed imminent following the match with the super-varsity last Tuesday, failed to materialize after challenge matches were completed yesterday. Chuck Eaton, who was billed to replace Werschkul in the No. 2 spot, failed to come through in his challenge match with the young sophomore star Wednesday, and chose to drop out of the picture for this season's activities. Werschkul defeated him 11-9, 6-2 in a hard-played match Wednesday afternoon.

Ellsworth "regained" his position as No. 3 singles man by stopping Karl Mann 3-6, 6-4, 6-3 Wednesday.

The Oregon varsity will wind up the season a week from Saturday when a picked four-man team will again make the 300-mile trek to Seattle to participate in the northern division match. The results of the conference tournament will have no bearing on the dual meet standings of the conference.

Gamma Hall, Sig Eps Win Loop Gonfalons; Phi Sigs Defeated for Triple Tie

Bob Engelke, Porky Andrews Pitch Clubs to Play-Offs; Alpha Hall and Delts Also Take Games to Wind Up Play

Sig Eps and Gamma hall yesterday won their respective division championships. The Sig Eps defeated the Fijis 11 to 9 and Gamma hall took the Canard club 8 to 3. The Comets made it a three-way tie with the ATOs and Phi Sigs in division five by defeating the Phi Sigs 13 to 4.

Alpha hall raised themselves out of the cellar position by beating Campbell co-op 13 to 8. The Delts brought their standing up from the cellar spot to tie for the cellar spot by winning from the Phi Psis, 10 to 6.

Sig Eps 11, Fijis 9

Porky Andrews pitched the Sig Ep boys to a win allowing 14 hits in the seven inning fracas. The Fijis Adams also allowed 14 hits to make a grand total of 28 hits. Andrews gave up 3 walks and struck out 3. Adams gave Sinclair the only walk the Sig Eps got and struck out one.

hall to his and their fourth consecutive victory to win the fourth division. Eengelke was replaced in the fifth by Dariotis after Gamma hall had scored their eight runs. Engelke allowed the Canard club men only one hit in his four innings and one run. Dariotis gave up two runs on two hits.

Jacobsen had bad innings in the third and fourth, Gamma hall collecting seven of their eight runs in those frames. Jacobsen presented
