

They Use These Methods

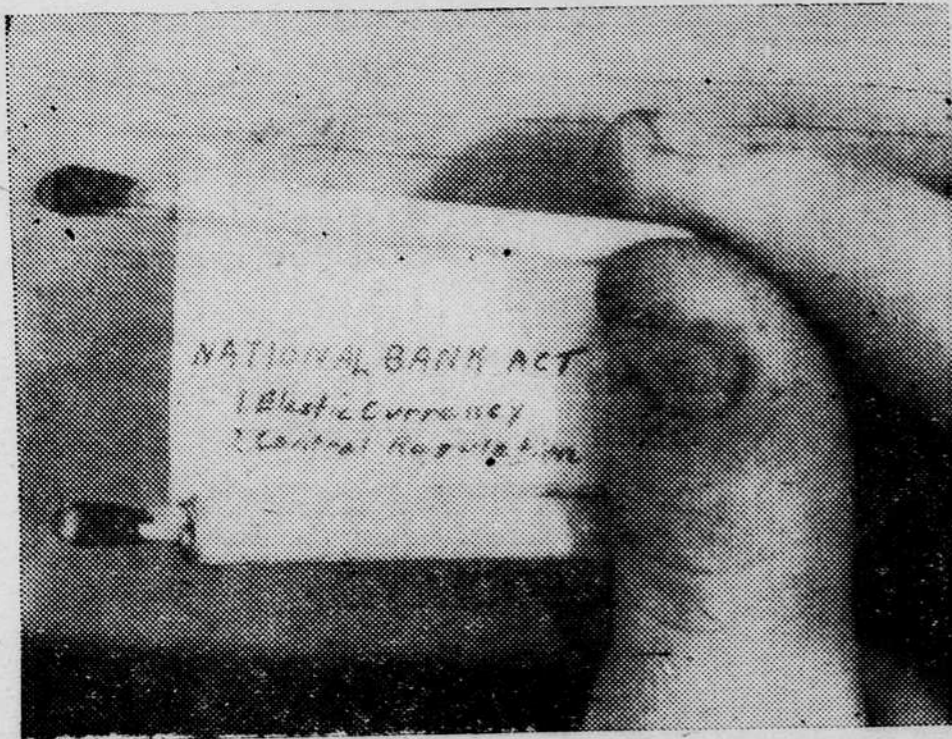

Poney cards are a popular means used by students in "assisting" themselves through exams. This method is too obvious to escape professors' eagle-eyes. So . . .

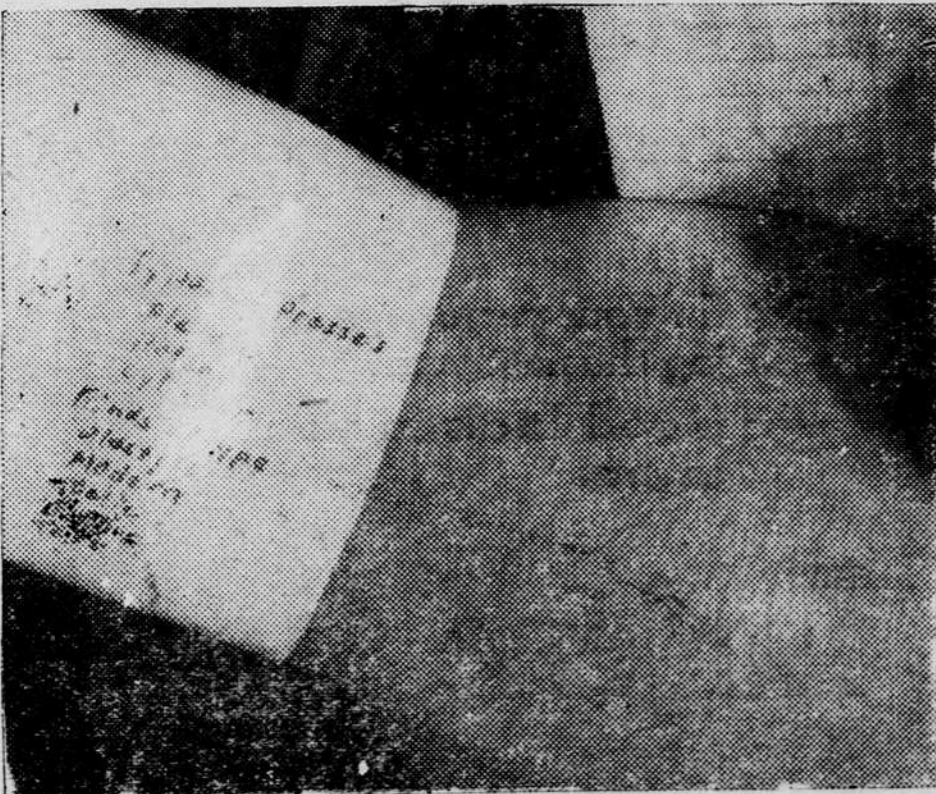

Finger tip notes are sometimes used, although little information can be compiled on small surfaces. Thus . . .

The "on the cuff" system is used by many who desire both volume and legibility.

This "cheating instrument" is considered the best because it provides the acme of legibility and space. Known as the Santa Clara pony it is constructed by wrapping a strip of paper around matches and twirling it between the fingers.
