Duck Squad Includes 21 Lettermen; Frosh, Subs, Bolster Team

Transfer Cadenasso Fills Vacant Center Post; First Eleven Has 10 Veterans

When Tex Oliver, new Webfoot grid mentor, makes his debut in Pacific coast conference football September 24 against the Washington State Cougars, he will have 21 lettermen, 13 graduates of Warren's winning frosh, five reserves and two transfers from which to choose his squad.

The squad shaped up well in spring practice, and according to recent releases the first team will probably look something like this: ends, Reginato and Lance; tackles, Jensen and Peters; guards, Giovanini and Walden; center, Cadenasso; quarterback, Nilsen; left halfback, Nicholson; right halfback, Gebhardt; and fullback, Rowe.

Second Team Strong

16 Have One Letter

Although there were 21 lettermen who turned out for practice, 16 of these carry but one stripe, and only five are two strippers. Five holdover reserves, two transfers,

Sports Cup Given to University By Store

Men's living organizations will have even greater incentive to show well in intra-mural sports next year when the winner will be presented with a large new trophy by The Man's Shop operated by Byrom and Kneeland. The plan is to present the cup to the winning organization each year, and permanently in case of three consecutive first places.

Never before has such a trophy been available to organizations with possibility of permanent ownership. The cup will be engraved each year with the name of the group placing first.

Intra-mural sports have increased in spirit in recent years until at present they compare favorably with the fine school spirit whole.

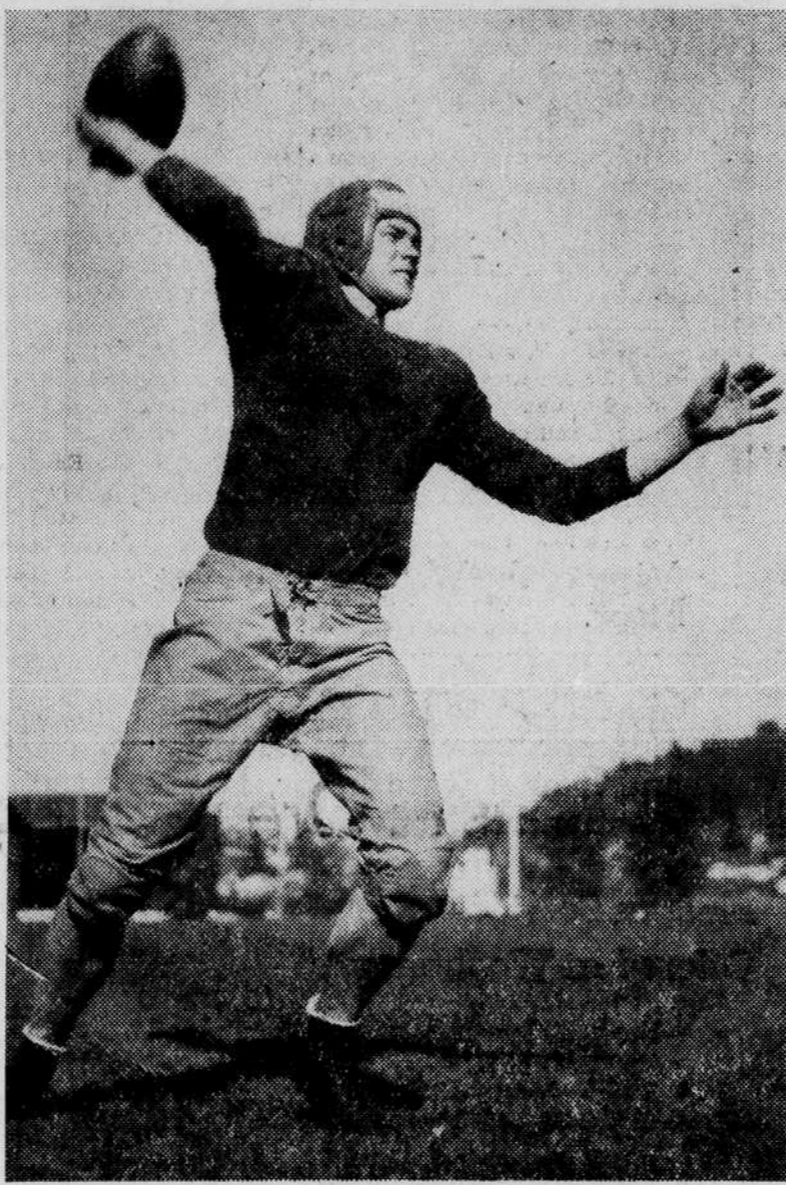

and five sophomores make up the balance of the Webfoot gridgers.

With a new coaching staff and an entirely new style of play, the dopesters have labeled the Webfooters the question mark team of the coast.

Admission to the two concerts will be free to ASUO card holders. In addition, student body members will be entitled to four football games—UCLA at Eugene, Idaho at Eugene, Oregon State at Portland, and Washington at Portland—the Fall Frolic, subscription to the Emerald, and many other ASUO activities, at a large sav-

Robinson and Varoff Score In Track Wins

Oregon Track Stars Make Headlines by Fine Showings in Many Contests

Oregon's track luminaries, George Varoff and Mack Robinson, made the sport headlines in the nation's major field meets in the season just past.

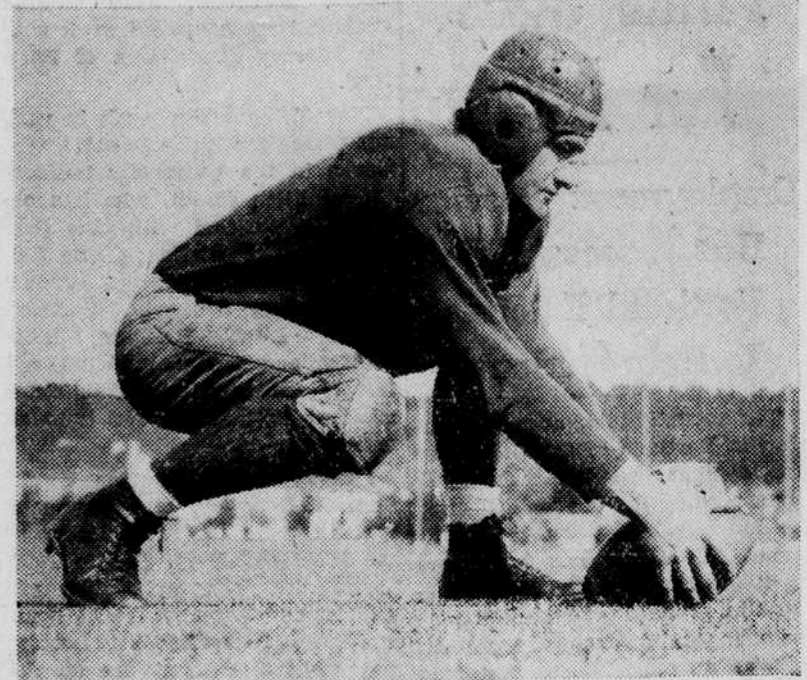

In the northern track events, Robinson garnered a total of 75 points for the season. He gained four first places against the University of Portland, four more from the U. of W., two against W. S. C., and three from O. S. C.

In the coast conference meet at Berkeley, Robinson placed first in the broad jump and the low hurdles. He came in fourth in the 220 jaunt. By virtue of his marvelous showing on the coast, Robinson earned a place in the NAAU meet where he walked off with the 200-meter run.

George Varoff, Oregon's star pole vaulter, gained national recognition when he tied for first in the coast conference meet held in Berkeley. In the NAAU event held in Buffalo, Varoff tied for second. Accepting the invitation to tour Europe, which his teammate Robinson turned down, Varoff meets the continent's leading vaulters.

At the last report Varoff was competing in Berlin, Germany, where he placed second for the United States team with a leap of 13 feet 7 1/2 inches.
