

Brown Sr. Inspires Uclans in Practice Says Bruin Writer

"The football season hasn't officially begun at UCLA until Joe E. Brown, Sr., comes around for practice."

So declared Jack Rothwell, sports editor of the Daily Bruin, yesterday as he watched the University of California at Los Angeles footballers work out.

"Why he's out every night watching practice, and the boys all like him. And say, young Joe can really block."

A week or so ago, Ken Thickstun, UCLA yell leader, and Rothwell, decided to come to Eugene to watch the Uclans match grid power with the Oregon Webfoots.

Join Rally Here Yesterday they awoke in Eugene, and found themselves right in the midst of big pre-game festivities, taking an active part.

"You have a beautiful campus here," said Ken, the Bruin maestro of the megaphone. "I like the trees, the lawns, and the atmosphere."

"Our campus? No, I don't think reports of it have been exaggerated. I wouldn't go to school anywhere else. We have unlimited room for expansion. Our buildings are something to look at, and Westwood, a typical college town, is a maze of light at night. Practically all the service stations have tall, lighted towers."

Stowed Away "Coming up here was a cinch. We were stowaways. We just boarded the train with the boys and weren't molested. The trip didn't cost us a cent."

Men's Debate Team To Meet Next Week

Squad Will Include Frosh, Soph Men, Says Dahlberg

Men's debating for the year showed first signs of life yesterday as the speech division sent out a call for the first meeting of the men's varsity group.

A new departure this year will be the addition of freshmen and sophomores to the squad. In previous years varsity debate has been largely confined to juniors and seniors, according to W. A. Dahlberg, speech professor in charge.

The program for this year's symposium debating, as outlined by Dahlberg, includes a trip to Pomona, California, where the Pacific Forensic League is sponsoring an intercollegiate program. Plans are made to take in the World's Fair at San Francisco en route.

The debaters also cover almost every part of the state during their yearly program, appearing before community groups of all kinds to discuss their subjects. The speech division has never been able to completely supply the demand for appearances, Dahlberg said, due to the flood of requests received.

The number of debaters on the squad will be raised this year to approximately 35, Dahlberg said. The meeting will be at 7:30 Wednesday evening, October 5, in 108 Friendly. For particulars see Prof. W. A. Dahlberg.

Six PCC Elevens Clash Today in Important Tilts

Firing in Pacific Coast conference football will begin to pop today when the six Coast teams wage conference battles.

At Pullman the University of California's Golden Bears start defense of their championship against a supposedly weak Washington State eleven. Coach Babe Hollingbery has been giving his team plenty of practice this week but the Bears are not expected to have too much difficulty in taking the game.

New Hours Set for Infirmary Visiting

Visiting hours at the Infirmary will be from two o'clock until four and from seven to eight this year. Visitors are asked to consider the patients' welfare by not staying longer than twenty minutes. In this way the condition will be individualized and all patients will have an equal chance to see visitors.

New Libe Plan For Fall Term, Says Douglass

A new system for taking out overnight books is being tried out this term by the University library. M. H. Douglass, librarian, announced yesterday. This experiment permits students to sign in advance, on the day the book is to be taken out only, for the books he wishes.

Registration on a card provided for the purpose is necessary before the book may be reserved, it is announced. Requests will be filled in the order in which they are received. The applicant must be in the reserve lobby when his name is called just before closing hours.

No requests for holding books will be received by telephone, Mr. Douglass stated.

Crother's Comedy First on Slate

"As Husbands Go" Will Be Presented By College Players

"As Husbands Go," a sparkling comedy by Rachel Crothers, will open the fall season for the University Theatre, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Ottilie Seybolt, director of the theatre. The play, presented during last summer by Horace W. Robinson, assistant professor in the drama division, met with such success here that the repetition has been urged.

Mrs. Crothers, whose most recent comedy, "Susan and God," starring Gertrude Lawrence, has been a brilliant success from coast to coast throughout this past season, is well versed in what makes Americans laugh. "As Husbands Go" is one of her most humorous bits, Mrs. Seybolt explained.

The cast is headed by several players from the regular University summer theatre company. Also featured are Mary Staton, Wilfred Roadman, and Gene Edwards of the present student body in important roles.

According to Mrs. Seybolt the theatre is again planning to offer subscription tickets at reduced rates. Prices will be announced later.

The date of the production has not been definitely settled. It will be announced in the Emerald within a few days.

Landsbury to Talk At Music Meeting

John J. Landsbury, dean of the school of music, has been given an invitation to write and deliver the keynote speech at the regional national music educator's conference in Tacoma, the last part of March.

Dean Landsbury, who has accepted the invitation, will, by his speech, present the keynote of the entire conference. Representatives from the entire Northwest will be there.

Freshman Course In Science Changed

Quirinius Breen Is New Professor in Charge of Lectures

Background of social science classes starting this quarter, will have one quiz hour and two lecture hours a week, giving the students greater opportunities for discussion, said Dr. Samuel H. Jameson.

Instead of the previous five classes, each taught by a different professor, there will be only one professor lecturing on social science. The four quiz sections will be taught by four assistants. Quirinius Breen will be in charge of the lectures.

Dr. Jameson, former chairman of the department of social science explained the change is to give the students in all sections equal chances.

"Previously each professor stressed certain points and ideas and though they agreed on the questions to be asked in quizzes the classes were not equally prepared to answer them," Mr. Jameson announced. There are 300 students in the background of social science classes at present.

Quirinius Breen has been appointed the new chairman of the department of social science.

Dr. Barker Brings Reprint Collection For Oregon Libe

Dr. Eurt Brown Barker arrived in Portland last Wednesday with 600 feet of photo copies of important documents for the University library, Dr. R. C. Clark, head of the history department, said yesterday afternoon.

There are 7,000 pages of reprints in the collection which is to be presented to the University of Oregon library with a reader. The documents were collected in London and Edinburgh and are the only known records of the Hudson Bay Company.

Dr. Barker has been in Europe since June, where he attended the International Red Cross conference in the American representative. He is returning to the campus today.

New Curriculum Topic of Speech

Dr. F. G. Macomber, professor of education, is spending the week-end in Prineville, where he will speak to the Central Oregon School Masters' club on the development of the new curriculum. On Monday and Tuesday he attended the regional teachers' conference at St. Helens, where he spoke on curriculum problems.

Dr. Nelson L. Bossing will spend his week-end in Salem and Portland, where he is in charge of extension classes in curriculum. Also in Portland will be Dr. C. L. Hufaker, who will be organizing the graduate classes in education offered by the school of education each winter.

UO Newsreel Snaps Campus Scenes, Action

Should someone shove a little black box under your nose and start cranking away, don't get alarmed—it's just a cameraman for the Oregon Photophone News, latest campus enterprise.

Every University event of importance will be covered by this newsreel agency which is managed by students. The entire UCLA game this afternoon will be filmed by the News as well as half-time activities. Shots were taken last night of the rally and dance which followed.

The newsreel is being produced every month with the first issue to appear around the middle of October. A campus advisory board to supervise and censor the actions of the news agency includes L. F. Beck, Charles M. Hulten and George Godfrey.

Frosh Footballers Get Stiff Practices

Warren's mighty horde swings into a tough practice today at 9 a.m. with a stiff session for the line and backfield in both blocking and tackling.

With about a week of drilling under their belt the frosh are slowly rounding in condition for their opening tilt in Grants Pass, October 7, with the Southern Oregon Normal school.

George Stovall, former assistant to Anse Cornell at College of Idaho, and Tony Amato, captain of the 1937 Oregon varsity squad, are helping on Warren's coaching staff.

Warren, starting his fourth year as mentor of the Ducklings, has his best turnout in history this year. Pass plays and pass defenses will soon take up most of the practice periods, Warren stated last night.

Dominic Giovannini, frosh quarterback candidate, is not sticking true to Giovannini style by going out for the backfield instead of the line. Dominic's brother, Nello, is regular guard on the varsity eleven.

Miss Dill Resigns Position to Marry Ralph Nason Soon

Miss Dorothy Dill, secretary of the school of journalism, is leaving her job today to marry Ralph Nason, in Portland, October 22. She will be replaced by Miss Jean Gulovson, who has been learning the ropes this last week.

Miss Dill was graduated from Oregon in June, 1937, having majored in journalism. Mr. Nason, ex-'37, also majored in journalism here but switched to geology and is now working as a field geologist. Miss Gulovson, who was graduated here last June, is well known on the campus as a booster of cooperative living houses.

MORSE ENDS DISPUTE

Wayne L. Morse, who was recently named arbitrator in the San Pedro waterfront employers' case, held that the employers of San Pedro harbor have the right to make use of "liftboards" in loading cargo, and members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union must perform their work with this device at the regular wages.

Homer H. Hanna Succeeds Kiepe; Likes UO Campus

Homer H. Hanna, graduate of Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois, has taken over the work of former University of Oregon Professor Paul E. Kiepe. He will work under the guidance of Mr. John L. Casteel, head of the speech division.

Since his graduation, Mr. Hanna has taught at Carlton College in Northfield, Minnesota, and the University of South Dakota. He took his undergraduate work at the University of Illinois.

The new instructor expressed his delight with the Eugene campus and mentioned that he had been anxious to come to this part of the country for several years.

Mr. Kiepe was in the speech department for two years. Interested in politics, he is now editing a newspaper as part of the Democratic campaign. He still has his home in Eugene.
