

DUCK TRACKS

By ELBERT HAWKINS

Mike picks California . . . "I think Southern California is a strong team—but I still believe California is the conference's best bet," says Mike Mikulak, who has seen every team in the conference with the exception of Washington and Oregon.

*Tex Oliver's "co-chief football scout" saw the Trojans whip Stanford in Palo Alto Saturday, 13 to 2. Southern Cal, characterized by Mike as "a smart club," smothered Stanford's unsteady offense and had possession of the ball approximately 70 per cent of the time.

Podunk may lose, 7 to 6, or even 9 to 0 to Siwash, but it is a winner to the trained scout if it monopolizes the ball two-thirds of the time.

It was a big surprise to Mike when Idaho's highly-touted Vandals were whipped by UCLA, 33 to 0. He saw them thoroughly outplay Oregon State, 12 to 0, early this season, and rated them as UCLA's equal (which means that Oregon is due for a busy Homecoming).

*Duck Tracks made a grave social error yesterday in calling Howard Hobson Oregon's "chief scout." Friendly Mike laughingly dubbed Hobby that nickname and is apt to yell "Hiya chief scout" at him from now into eternity.

Not too happy . . .

Football teams at three Coast conference schools—Washington State, Washington, and Stanford—are having domestic troubles.

At Washington and Stanford State, two perennial top teams, usually winners, are in the doldrums of defeat. Jimmy Phelan's Huskies were rated beforehand by other coaches than Phelan—as championship contenders. Five games have been played, they're still waiting for a win, and the wolves are howling.

Babe Hollingbery's WSC Cougars have reached a new low, making Pullman citizens very unhappy, by losing in succession to Oregon, California, Stanford, Southern California, and Oregon State. (Please turn to page three)

Webfoots End Transcontinental Tour at Station Today

Oliver's Squad In Good Condition For Portland Tilt

Trojan Delegation Is Rated Big, Fast By Mikulak

Completing the last lap of their transcontinental tour this morning, Oregon's footballers will close another colorful chapter in the Webfoot book of grid memories and post mortems today at 11:55 when they arrive in Eugene.

For Oregon, the latest episode was marked by few headights, and included a rather bitter twist. An early 10 to 0 lead and a fourth-period 16 to 13 advantage held by the Ducks in their tussle with Stanford were the only features favorable to the Orecons as far as the gridiron chapter was concerned.

After the Stanford debacle which Coach Tex Oliver's boys lost 27 to 16, the Webfoots shifted their action to the East. The climax, a very unpleasant one for the Webfoots, was the 26 to 0 defeat plastered on the Ducks by Fordham's mighty helmet heroes.

Scouts Await Oliver Awaiting Coach Oliver in Eugene are his two chief scouts, Mike Mikulak, backfield coach; and Howard Hobson, basketball mentor. Both Hobson and Mikulak have detailed scouting reports to give the Webfoot headman.

"Iron Mike," who has seen every team in the conference but Washington perform, scouted Southern California Saturday, and came back home to warn the Webfoots of a big, fast and powerful team.

Trojan Line Strong Mikulak reports that USC's line is very strong, and that the weakest link, if a weak link is to be noted, would be at the end posts. Southern Cal, according to Mikulak, also has a wealth of backfield material headed by such stars as Bob Peoples, Phil Sangster, Grenny Lansdell, Ollie Day, and Mickey Anderson, the 9.6 second-man from Dean Cromwell's track team.

Under the Howard Jones system, the quarterback and the fullback are the ball carriers, and the two halfbacks are the blockers. And despite the loss of the hard-running Ambly Schindler, the boy who wrecked the Webfoots last year, Jones has four capable speedboys for each ball-carrying position.

The Oregon squad was termed in good condition by Webfoot Trainer Bob Officers when the team stopped off at Nebraska.

Eugene Hunt Club Has Confab Tonight

Tonight the Eugene Hunt club will hold its weekly drill and meeting in the riding hall at the county fair grounds. Paul R. Washke of the physical education department will lead the drill.

Following the drill, Dean Morris of the school of business administration and president of the Hunt club, will preside over the meeting. After the meeting, Miss Margaret Thompson will review the history of the Hunt club. Anyone interested in the club is welcome to attend both ride and meeting.

Dean Morris has invited the Lane county court to the meeting. Discussion will be held concerning the need for increased seating facilities at the riding hall.

One week from tonight the annual masquerade ride will be held in celebration of Halloween.

Ski Squad Tryouts To Be Held Tonight

All men interested in turning out for the University ski team will meet at the Sigma Chi house tonight at 7:30.

Entry in a December tournament at Sun Valley, Idaho ski resort, is a possibility, according to Pat Dolan, member of last year's team. Tentative plans for the meet include representatives from ten western state colleges.

Also included in the plans are a week at the resort preceding the tourney, with instruction and practice scheduled.

Last year was the first that Oregon's ski team was recognized by the athletic board. Minor letters and numerals were given to members of the four-man squad after last season.

(Wrong Down) Getchell's Waterloo

Here's a scene from Saturday's game which Notre Dame won over Carnegie Tech, 7 to 0, with the aid of Referee Johnny Getchell. The official unwittingly caused Carnegie Tech's signal caller to run a ball in midfield and lose it on fourth down when he wrongly informed him it was third down. Notre Dame went on to score from there. George Muka, Tech right half, is seen making a 5-yard gain.

Warren Alters Frosh Team for Little Husky Tilt

Jensen Is Shifted to Quarter; Culwell Not in Uniform

Two changes likely to affect the Duckling starting lineup were announced by Frosh Mentor Warren last night as he put his squad through strenuous blocking and passing drills in preparation for the tangle with the Washington Babes in Seattle Saturday.

Bill Jensen, who will see action in his home town Saturday, has been shifted from right half to quarterback where he will probably start in place of either Steve Fowler or Dominic Giovanni.

LaVerne Van Marter, Heppner star, will probably go to right half to take the vacancy left by Jensen's shift. Van Marter played an outstanding game in the rook tilt at Klamath Falls.

Clickard Injured Don Clickard, Fullback Brenner's understudy, suffered the only major injury in the Southern Oregon tilt. He injured his knee and it has developed an abscess which may keep him out of the weekend encounter.

Val Culwell, regular starting left tackle, will be out for a week or more with stomach trouble. Len Surlis, 200-pound tackle from Bend, and Ed Moshofsky, 200-pounder from Beaverton, will fight it out for the starting position left vacant by Culwell.

Bob Davis, left guard, and Ray Segale, right guard, received minor injuries in their losing encounter with the rooks, but are expected to be in shape for the "Little Husky" tilt.

Babes Win 26 to 0 The Washington Babes won last year's game by trouncing the frosh, 26 to 0, in a very fast game played on Multnomah field in Portland. So far this season the frosh have won one, tied one, and lost one.

Doug Caven, halfback, and Bill Brenner, fullback, according to Warren played an outstanding game Saturday. Brenner's kicking was a highlight of the game, as was Caven's 71-yard touchdown gallop.

John Leovich, rook left end, was hero of the Orange team by booting the point after touchdown, giving his team the winning margin.

Four Crack Teams Reach Divot Semis

Four crack teams went into the semi-finals of the intramural golf tournament by trouncing opponents over the weekend. Winners of matches were Kappa Sigma, Phi Delta Theta, Beta Theta Pi, and Phi Gamma Delta.

Outstanding score card turned in was that of the Beta Theta Pi team. R. Werschkul chopped three strokes off par with a 69. E. Fortmiller had a 73, and Hal Duden, the tournament's most consistent shot thus far, turned in a 75.

Semi-final matches will be played this week, with the Betas seemingly having the inside track to the championship.

has announced that students will assemble at the College Side as soon after 11:30 as possible and at 11:40 will begin their noisy trek through downtown streets to the station, where a special platform has been built on which members of the team will appear as soon as they step from the train. A public speaking system is being installed for the occasion.

Private cars are to be provided to transfer the returning players to the campus, and students are urged to wait until the team is assembled in cars before they leave the depot, allowing the grid-sters to precede them in a parade through downtown streets, rally chairman announced.

Trucks will be provided by the committee to take students without adequate transportation to the meet if they will appear at the College Side before 11:40.

"It is my belief that a very good percentage of students in college have as their main interest the idea to acquire learning, to achieve self development. They want to think about life and about the world. I have never yet found a class that remains uninterested if I can show it how the subject matter relates to life."

Bud's Column definitely masculine

IF YOU are going to hoist a raucous stein to dear old Oregon, that's one thing. If you are going to bend an elegant elbow with the best, that's another thing. There's no reason for overdoing the pomp and circumstance when you can hew to the simple, straightforward line and still reek with good taste. Throughout this weekly column you will find light references to many subjects. . . . Read them and settle those ticklish fashion and social problems.

DON'T LET anyone tell you that the college man scorns accepted stylings, and lets his imagination choose his wardrobe. It seems that wide-awake college men are still spending pa's dough on single breasted odd jackets. Campus wear has a country tang and the odd jackets are very good. They are found mostly in single breasted, notch lapel, with three buttons . . . cloth—rough tweed, chevot, or flannel. Slacks often match the jacket or are plain grey flannel. . . . "Duck" into JOE RICHARDS and see what we are talking about, and while you are looking, ask about JOE'S new Oregon green sport jacket with white leather sleeves. It's absolutely pa-leanly nice!!! The jacket is wool, treated to withstand rain and contains leather lined pockets.

IF YOU want to hold up the bar in elegance or if you have a heavy date in Portland this weekend, try the new three-button, notch lapel, single breasted, hopsack worsted suit in charcoal brown, the perfect shade for these occasions and which seems to flatter all complexions. . . . Kuppenheimer suits can be seen at WASHBURN'S and Ken Griffith is just the man to show them to you. He told me this morning that he would like to meet some more of you fellows, so drop in and tell him BUD sent you. . . . If you are sitting, a good choice would be a double breasted black, worsted suit with chalk stripes. DeNEFFES have it in the British Blade style with fullness through the chest and shoulder blades.

CLAY BAXTER, (DeNEFFES) also showed me the new white shirt with horizontal stripe. . . . As you know . . . it's not only your suit, it's what you wear with it. BYROM and KNEELAND have just received a new shipment of accessories. Key chains are being worn more and more by men who know. Belts are still used to hold our trousers up, also. Mr. Byrom will be glad to show you a white or light colored shirt to go with that British Blade suit we mentioned before or a tan and brown striped shirt, starched matching collar, and a brown and white tie to go with the single breasted, charcoal brown suit.

P. S. D. GREEN wants to introduce the new Fingertip, rubberized raincoat for the Oregon vs. USC Portland trip. It's lines are good and it is not bulky when in use or otherwise. I suggest that you see "Paul D." before the winter rains set in. . . . P. S. BUD'S sensational suggestion of the week . . . It will enhance your reputation as a gentleman. . . . Upon recognizing a girl, wait for her to acknowledge the acquaintanceship. It's up to her to continue it or not. If you've never tried this, try it for a month and you'll begin to realize how popular you aren't.

"BUD" W. Brad Smith.
